SELLOUT OF U.S. AIR RIGHTS AT PARLEY FEARED

Threat to Military Security Foreseen.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 3.—Consternation and amazement at the American position in international air transport as stated by Adolf A. Berle and fear that the international civil aviation conference in Chicago would result in a complete sellout of American overseas aviation and peril to the military security of the United States were expressed here today.

These views came from high Washington officials and some of them were echoed by top army and navy officers who broke silence only because they recognized the enormous threat to America in the White House dictated position taken by Berle at the conference.

Chairman of Delegation.

Berle is chairman of the American delegation in Chicago and president of the international conference there of more than 50 allied and neutral nations. He stated the United States policy in an address which opened the conference yesterday. The corrections made in his original text, received here, and comparison with his speech as delivered, indicated to some spokesmen the behind the scenes fight which must have taken place in secret councils of the American delegation.

These spokesmen also disclosed that the sudden withdrawal of Russia from the Chicago meeting was known in London far in advance and was stated by Lord Rothermere in the house of lords as early as Oct. 12.

The state department announced that it did not know the Russians had decided to withdraw their delegation until Oct. 30, two days before the conference opened.

Strong Position in Air.

They charge that Berle, as agent for Mr. Roosevelt and Harry Hopkins, pledged or attempted to pledge America to the following points, which they said will destroy her strong position in the air:

1. "Freedom of innocent passage" thru the air all over the world. America steadfastly has refused this position in the past, it is contended, and does not need any such agreement to operate on international airways. It gives foreign nations the right to fly freely over American territory and to conduct possible military reconnaissance or attack under the guise of commerce.

2. Giving American military transports to the air lines of foreign powers at "reasonable cost" as they are released from military use,

DEMOCRATS CANCEL TRUMAN TALK AFTER HIS BONER ON WALSH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 3.—Sen. Truman, Democratic nominee for Vice President, has been barred by his own party's national committee from making radio speeches during the last crucial days of the campaign because of his "boner" in calling Sen. Walsh [D., Mass.] an isolationist who could be reformed, it was learned from Democratic sources in Washington tonight.

The disclosure that Truman will be kept in the background until after the election was made after a two network, major political speech to have been delivered by Truman tomorrow night was canceled summarily last Tuesday. This was the day after Truman made his remark about reforming Sen. Walsh.

Replacing Truman on the air tomorrow night will be two other speakers. Phil Witten, political program director of the Mutual Broadcasting system in New York, said that the radio time had been contracted for several weeks ago by the Democratic national committee specifically for a speech by Truman.

Gov. Bricker Blasts F.D.R. One-Man Rule

Dewey, F. D. R. on Air

New York, Nov. 3 (AP).—President Roosevelt and Gov. Dewey will share the air waves tomorrow night, the first time they have spoken on the same night since the campaign began. President Roosevelt will speak in Boston at Fenway park. It will be broadcast by the NBC, Blue, and CBS networks beginning at 8 p. m. [Chicago time]. Gov. Dewey will appear at a Republican rally in Madison Square Garden, New York. His address will be carried by NBC and CBS beginning at 9:30 p. m. [Chicago time].

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 3 (AP).—In his final pre-election appeal to the nation Gov. Bricker tonight said Thomas E. Dewey was better qualified to "preserve representative government" and serve in these capacities:

1. Winning the war.
2. Constructing a lasting peace.
3. Solving the domestic problems of post-war America.

On the other hand the G. O. P. Vice Presidential nominee said, President Roosevelt "has repudiated free representative government."

Wants to "Go It Alone."

He asserted President Roosevelt "lacks faith in the common man," wants "to go it alone" and "does not want to be bothered about the restraints of constitutional government."

The Ohio governor rolled into Philadelphia aboard his special train to receive his greatest welcome in nearly 16,000 miles of campaigning. It was estimated 7,000 persons were in the crowd that greeted him at the Broad street station. The Metropolitan Opera house, where he spoke, was filled by 3,000 persons, while 5,000 more crowded about the entrance.

His speech here followed addresses earlier in the day at Wilmington, Del., and Camden, N. J.

Urges End of Alien Dogma.

In his address tonight Bricker asserted a Republican vote on Nov. 7 would be "a mandate that America be restored as a government of law—unregimented by burocrats—unexploited by vocal reformers—and unmolested by the peddlers of alien dogmas."

"Mr. Roosevelt has repudiated free representative government in bypassing congress and in lashing the federal courts to the pillars of the White House," Bricker asserted. "That's why we have one man rule in America today. To keep the policy making power in congress and to keep the judiciary free to preserve our inherited liberties, there must be a change in the White House."

He said one man rule has led to "confusion, arrogance, and bickering in government."

The Ohio governor will wind up his quest for the Vice Presidency tomorrow with four speeches in his home state.

PASTOR WARNS RED ATHEISM PERILS COUNTRY

Dr. Almer W. Pennewell, pastor of St. John's Methodist church, 74th st. and Jeffery av., declared yesterday that "there need be no confusion in any one's mind about the anti-religious character of communism."

The clergyman referred to the Boston address last Wednesday of Gov. Dewey, Republican candidate for President, in which Dewey quoted Earl Browder, draft dodger, convicted perjurer, and America's No. 1 Communist.

Dewey quoted Browder's book in which the Red leader said: "We stand without any reservations for education that will root out beliefs in the supernatural . . . we Communists do not distinguish between good and bad religions because we think they are all bad for the masses."

"In view of the new infiltration tactics of communism in gaining control of a political party or a labor organization," Dr. Pennewell said, "the anti-religious aspect of communism thus becomes the most dangerous threat to American life today."

6 in Wedding Party Killed in Auto Crash

A young sailor home from the invasion of France, his bride-to-be, and four persons who accompanied them on a pre-wedding party, were killed last night when their automobile crashed into the rear of a motor truck stalled on Highway 54, four miles north of Kankakee, Kankakee county.

List of the Dead.

The dead:

James C. McGinnis, 23, of 634 Woodlawn park, Chicago, who returned recently after 13 months of service with the navy overseas.

Miss Ethel M. Residori, 22, of South Wilmington, Grundy county, his fiancee.

Miss Mary Heenan, 40, 4329 Ellis av., Chicago.

Loren Bouk, 24, of Cabery, Ford county, driver of the car.

Louis Heenan, 12, and his sister, Elaine, 8, both of 3122 Emerald av.

Three persons were critically injured. They are Mrs. Patricia Heenan, 40, of 3122 Emerald av., mother of the dead children; another of her children, Dennis Heenan, 3, and Miss Marie A. McGinnis, 22, of 4329 Ellis av., a sister of the sailor. They were removed to St. Mary's hospital, Kankakee.

Hospital attendants reported the three survivors probably will recover. Miss Heenan was a sister-in-law of Mrs. Heenan.

Wedding Set for Today.

All nine were crowded into a medium type sedan. The Chicagoans had been picked up earlier in the evening, and the party was being driven to Cabery for the night. The wedding was scheduled for this morning in Miss Residori's home town, South Wilmington.

The crash occurred during fog and rain. The truck, stalled by a blowout, was standing partly on the road, but the driver Chance White Young, of Clarksville, Tenn., had placed warning flares all around it, Sheriff Cecil Duguay said.

Because of the festivity of the wedding drive, the sheriff said, the driver probably did not notice the truck, Sailor McGinnis was holding a large wedding cake, bought in Chicago, on his lap when the crash occurred.

Reveal Single Bomb Hit 3 Bristol Buses; Killed 48

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Bristol's 1,299 deaths in 76 air raids were highlighted tonight by the revelation that a single bomb which fell on the city in August, 1942, set fire to three buses, killed 48 persons, and injured 56. The city's raid toll included 3,305 persons injured and 89,080 properties destroyed or damaged.

Political Locusts Plague Supporter of Gov. Dewey

Harry J. Berninger, a Republican business man, of 2147 Gladys av., said yesterday he has been plagued by inspectors from various city departments since he told the Democratic captain of his precinct that he intends to vote for Thomas E. Dewey.

On Oct. 16, said Berninger, who owns the AA Electric Service company at 310 S. Hoyne av., Harry Shulman of 325 S. Leavitt st., Democratic captain in the 4th precinct of the 25th ward, asked him if he would vote for Roosevelt. Berninger said no. He always has been a Republican, and he thinks he influences maybe eight votes in all.

Then Come the Inspectors.

Since he refused to vote Democratic, Berninger said he has been kept busy.

Oct. 17. A policeman ordered him to buy a license for the dog he keeps at his electric company, and to appear in Des Plaines Street court. As tho on second thought, Berninger said the policeman suggested that he see the precinct captain. Berninger bought the license.

Oct. 24. Berninger went to Desplaines st. court and showed his dog license.

Oct. 26. Berninger received a suspect notice from the board of election commissioners, signed by Shulman, altho he has lived at the same address since 1921.

Requalifies as Voter.

Oct. 30. He appeared at the election commissioners' office and requalified himself as a voter.

Nov. 1. A city health department inspector called at his electric shop and found fault with a pile of lumber kept in the back yard by a tenant who lives over the shop. The inspector also observed that the garbage can was not covered tightly.

Nov. 3. Berninger received an order from the health department to elevate the lumber pile at least 18 inches above the ground; to provide a tight cover for the garbage receptacle; and to maintain his premises "in a clean and wholesome condition."

"My premises are 'clean and wholesome,' Berninger remarked, 'and that's the kind of government I'd like to see."

Terrorists Busy

Five more attempts to intimidate supporters of Gov. Dewey by smashing windows displaying pictures of the Republican nominee for President were reported yesterday.

Mike Brown, 51, of 6201 Woodlawn av., a World War I. veteran just returned from treatment in the Hines hospital, was struck on the foot, but not seriously hurt, by a rock thrown thru a window showing Dewey's picture alongside a service flag for Mrs. Brown's brother, Tech. Sgt. James Neary.

Rocks also were thrown thru windows in the homes of G. Patrick Warner, who lives across the street from Brown at 6200 Woodlawn av.; John G. Kulovitz, 2316 W. 71st st., a Republican precinct captain, and John P. Rebmann, 2115 Gladys av., a printer, formerly a Republican precinct captain.

Mrs. Esther Strom, 7744 S. Paulina st., a widow, said a grapefruit was thrown thru the living room window in her home, where a Dewey picture was shown beside a service flag with a star for her son, Richard, 24, who is in the navy.

HURL BUDAPEST DEFENSE BACK TO CITY'S EDGE

Capture 100 Towns; Revolt Reported.

LONDON, Nov. 4 [Saturday]—(AP).—Russian forces converging on Budapest crushed axis positions only seven miles outside the Hungarian capital yesterday, hurling reenforced German and Hungarian defenders into trenches on the edge of the city. Berlin termed the situation critical.

[The Budapest radio said that two mechanized soviet divisions had reached the southern suburbs of the capital but that Nazi SS [elite guard] forces and German Tiger tank reenforcements "warded off this acute danger temporarily."]

A Moscow bulletin announced the capture of 100 localities on an assault arc between the Danube and Tisza rivers, including Alsonemedi, seven miles southeast of the city.

Amid unverified reports that civil warfare and looting had broken out inside Budapest, the Russians battled their way to within sight of its spires and to within easy artillery range of axis troops girding for a final stand.

Axis Hurls in Reserves.

A midnight soviet bulletin said the Germans and Hungarians had hurled all available reserves into the battle.

"They are taking away from various other sectors of the front artillery and tanks and hurriedly transferring them to the Budapest area," the bulletin said.

Enemy troops fleeing into Budapest along the east bank of the Danube were abandoning arms and much war material, Moscow said, in their effort to escape entrapment.

A Bucharest, Romania, radio broadcast recorded by Reuter said "a revolution is in full swing" in Budapest, but there was no confirmation of this report and the Budapest radio late last night said the Hungarian government still was in the city and parliament had met during the day.

Report City Constantly Bombed.

Budapest is being bombed incessantly by Russian planes, said reports to the Turkish press from correspondents in the city. "Russian bombers are overhead constantly and air raid alarms are continually sounding," said one dispatch relayed from Ankara.

On the eastern end of the Budapest front, along the west bank of the Tisza river, the Russians captured Toszeg, four miles southwest of Szolnok, axis stronghold on the Budapest-Debrecen railway 50 miles southeast of Budapest.

In German East Prussia, where the first heavy snowfall of the winter was reported, the Russians said the 3d White Russian army had repulsed attacks by large enemy tank and infantry forces north and south of Goldap, 19 miles inside the Nazi province.

FIGHTER PILOTS CUT JAP ROAD CONVOY TO BITS

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH 5TH AIR FORCE, Leyte, P. I., Nov. 3. — Fifteen American fighter pilots today attacked a Japanese convoy 10 miles long as it moved northward on a highway from Ormoc on the west coast of Leyte.

The convoy, which was traveling bumper to bumper, was virtually wiped out. Hundreds of enemy infantrymen, marching on either side of this longest convoy ever seen in the Pacific area, were killed as P-38s [Lightnings] strafed the road.

[Gen. MacArthur's bulletin said 30 Japanese trucks and two tanks were destroyed by the flyers.]

The Japanese fired light machine guns and rifles in an effort to save what was believed to be an entire division. The motors of several planes were shot out and bullets hit many planes, but only one pilot was forced to bail out. On the way back to their base the crippled planes, most of which were out of ammunition, were attacked by 20 Zeros and one craft crashed in flames.

Attack at Tree Top Level.

The attack on the convoy came after Capt. Donald Cook, Turlock, Cal., an air liaison officer, received information the Japs were moving north out of Ormoc. Lt. Charles McElroy, Wayne, Ark., was the first to come upon the flank of the column on a narrow stretch of road.

At tree top level the 15 Lightnings sped along the entire length of the mass of men, trucks, tanks, field artillery, and mules. The lead tank fired once but a 20 mm. shell from a plane hit it and the tank caught fire.

Drivers jumped in panic from their trucks, leaving them to crash into others or to run into ditches. Soldiers dived into ditches and tried to hide behind coconut trees. As each plane reached the end of the convoy leaving blood and fire behind, the pilots climbed, circled, and came in again. Thus, for a half hour, a hard hitting chain of planes cut the division to pieces.

Fire 30,000 Rounds.

"It was the kind of strafing job you dream about," said Lt. Don Fisher of Onarga, Ill.

"We put about 30,000 rounds of 50 caliber and 20 mm. ammunition into that road. When we came over it last every truck and all the tanks and armored cars were burning. I'm sure not one will ever be used again.

"Mules were kicking their heels in the air after breaking loose from their carts and there were dead Japs everywhere."

The attack came on the heels of

Grabs Jap General's Limousine

BY HAROLD SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH GEN. MacARTHUR'S FORCES ON LEYTE ISLAND, Nov. 3.—En route by jeep from one village to another today to find Arthur Veysey, the Tribune war correspondent in the Southwest Pacific, this writer was left agape at the halfway point upon seeing a late model Packard sedan painted a flashy green.

It was by far the most spectacular thing on the island. It was assumed that it was Gen. MacArthur's vehicle. On our arrival Veysey was reported to have gone to the front. He returned presently—at the wheel of the gorgeous limousine which he had annexed earlier in the day from newly conquered territory near Cavite.

Owned by Jap General.

Natives said it had belonged to a Japanese general. A talented G. I. sign painter had emblazoned "CHICAGO TRIBUNE" on each side.

Greetings which delighted troops gave us as we drove along furnished eloquent proof of the big part Chicagolanders are playing in this war. The soldiers said the sight of the Tribune car is like a breath from home. They flock around it in droves and cheer it on its way.

Wounded by Can of Jam.

Veysey received his first wound soon after our meeting. We were sitting on a curb in front of press headquarters during an evening's air alert. Veysey suddenly was hit by a heavy object. He bled profusely from a scalp cut. The missile was a can of blackberry jam accidentally pushed from a second floor window. Veysey confiscated the jam in lieu of a Purple Heart.

He got little sympathy from the doctor who dressed the wound.

"You should have been wearing your helmet," the doctor grunted as he worked in the feeble light of a masked flashlight.

SEVERAL SHIPS ARE DAMAGED IN AERIAL BLOW

Casualties Light, Nimitz Says.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, Nov. 3 (AP).—Japanese planes attacked one of the carrier groups of the United States 3d fleet Wednesday, Nov. 1, Adm. Nimitz announced today. Several ships were damaged and personnel casualties were light. Nimitz did not give the location of the attack, but the 3d fleet has been operating in Philippine waters.

The enemy flight which attacked the carrier group was made up of fighters and dive bombers. Anti-aircraft fire knocked down six of them, and American fighter planes got four more, for a total of 10.

The attack was reported in a bulletin which also told of the first enemy aerial offensive in the Marianas Islands since the occupation of Saipan by American ground forces last spring.

Strafe U. S. Air Field.

"During the night of Nov. 1-2 nine enemy twin-engine bombers, presumably from bases in the Bonins [850 miles away], bombed and strafed Isely air field on Saipan and the northern air field in Tinian," Nimitz' bulletin said.

"Three of the enemy raiders were shot down, one by night fighter aircraft and two by anti-aircraft guns. Our personnel casualties were four killed and one seriously injured when one of the enemy planes was shot down and crashed on the field.

"Minor damage was suffered at both air fields.

"An enemy reconnaissance sea plane attacked Peleliu Island on Oct. 31 but was shot down by one of our Hellcat night fighters.

"Eleventh air force Mitchell bombers dropped fragmentation and incendiary bombs on Paramushiro on Oct. 31. One of our planes was attacked by five enemy fighters but is reported to have landed safely."

Raid Bonin Islands.

Army and navy Liberators teamed to raid the Volcano and Bonin Islands Tuesday and Wednesday. Army Liberators caught four enemy cargo vessels at Chichi and also bombed shipping in Haha harbor and at Iwo and the air strips at Chichi and Iwo.

Marine Corsair planes bombed Yap, in the Carolines northeast of Peleliu, and Rota, in the Marianas, and set several barges afire at Babelthuap Island, north of Peleliu.

Army Thunderbolt planes made a rocket attack against supply dumps on Pagan Island, also in the Marianas.

JAPANESE CLAIMS.

A Japanese bulletin yesterday said six American warships were sunk and four damaged in Leyte gulf and Surigao strait Wednesday. The ships claimed sunk were listed as two cruisers, three destroyers, and a transport. On Thursday Tokyo said four cruisers were sunk and three battleships damaged in the gulf.

The Tokyo radio reported "several" Super Fortresses raided Truk, in the Caroline Islands, while two B-24s bombed Marcus Island, northeast of the Marianas, yesterday.

MANY NEW RED GROUPS BORN IN 4TH TERM DRIVE

Take Campaign Job from Regular Democrats.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 3.—A survey completed today by congressional investigators of un-American activities disclosed that more than a score of Communist front organizations have mushroomed into existence during the Presidential campaign, virtually superseding the regular Democratic party organization in the fourth term drive.

The typical Communist technique has been followed in setting up these groups, it was noted. Imposing letterheads carry the names o prominent persons, but the contro of the organization is in the hands of the persons listed in fine type. A majority of these are avowed Communists or those whose communistic affiliations have been listed in congressional files.

Leader among these groups is Business Men for Roosevelt, Inc., which has Andrew J. Higgins of New Orleans as honorary president and J. Louis Reynolds, a member of Sidney Hillman's national citizens political action committee, as executive chairman.

Financed F. D. R. Talk.

This organization sponsored and financed President Roosevelt's radio address at Philadelphia Oct. 27. It has reported contributions thru Oct. 25 of $85,132, including $15,000 from Higgins and two members of his family.

Among the leaders of this group are Leo J. Linder, attorney, and Leverett S. Gleason, publisher, both of New York City. Linder drafted legislation claimed by the Communist party as its own. He is listed as a supporter of the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties, branded by the justice department as subversive, and other communistic organizations.

Gleason, present owner of Comic House, Inc., publisher of "Sabotage," a smear publication, formerly was business manager of Friday, a well known communistic magazine.

Members of PAC.

The following members of this organization are members of Hillman's NC-PAC, characterized by the house committee on un-American activities as 83 per cent communistic:

James H. McGill, Walter Wanger, Jennings Perry, Morris S. Rosenthal, Otto Bremer, and J. Louis Reynolds.

The NC-PAC has formed Religious Associates, Inc., in an attempt to appease anti-communist church groups. This organization is headed by Dr. Dwight J. Bradley, supporter and member of such communistic fronts as the Council for Pan-American Democracy, American Friends of Spanish Democracy, American Committee for Protection of the Foreign Born, and the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties. The last named is on the attorney general's subversive list.

Recall Picketing.

Another fourth term group is the Engineers and Technologists' Committee for Roosevelt, headed by Walter Rautenstrauch, a member of the National Council of the American Peace Mobilization, one of the most notorious of communist organizations. The APM picketed the White House and assailed President Roosevelt as a war monger during the period of the Stalin-Hitler pact.

Following are other fourth term groups that follow the Communist party line, according to the evidence in congressional files:

Washington Commonwealth federation.
United Labor Committee [CIO] for Roosevelt and Truman.
Hollywood Democratic committee.
Hollywood Committee for Franklin D. Roosevelt.
City Central Citizens' Committee of Polish Americans for Roosevelt.
Business and Professional Man's League for Roosevelt.
Physicians and Dentists' Independent Voters' Committee for Roosevelt.
Independent Republicans for Roosevelt.
Labor Joint Committee for Roosevelt.
Independent Voters' Committee of Arts and Sciences.
Publishers' Committee for Roosevelt.
Young Voters for Roosevelt.
Italian-American Women for Roosevelt.
National Independent Committee for Roosevelt and Truman.
Educators' Committee for Roosevelt.
Professors' Committee of the Bronx [New York City.]
West Side Nonpartisan Committee for Roosevelt.
F. D. R. Victory Bandwagon.
Nonpartisan Congressional Committee [Pittsburgh.]

All the organizations mentioned have been publicized and praised in the columns of the Daily Worker, official organ of the Communists in the United States.

FREE DEMOCRAT WARNING ISSUED ON SOLDIER VOTE

Committeemen of the American Democratic national committee, anti-fourth term organization, were warned in a letter sent out yesterday by John J. O'Connor, chairman of the executive committee, to keep state headquarters open in all states where close elections may be changed by soldier votes.

"If on next Tuesday," O'Connor warned, "the election results in your state are close enough to be changed, by any possibility, by the later counting of the soldier vote, please hold your organization intact, including your headquarters, and especially have your lawyers stand by for any eventuality.

"The New Dealers and the bosses, under the leadership of Hillman and Browder, will stop at nothing to steal the election.

"You will shortly hear from me in reference to our plans."

HILLMAN CALLED FOUNDER OF U. S. COMMUNIST UNIT

New York, Nov. 3 (AP).—Herbert Brownell Jr., Reublican national chairman, tonight said Sidney Hillman "was a founder of an organization that contributed almost 2 million dollars to communist causes in America."

Brownell, saying that Robert E. Hannegan, Democratic national chairman, in a radio talk last night had attempted "to prove that Mr. Sidney Hillman had no communist connections," said the CIO-PAC leader was a director of the American Fund for Public Service, founded in 1922.

"A Democratic committee of the congress has described this fund as a large project to finance communistic subversive activities in the United States," Brownell said in a statement.

Member of Board.

"The same congressional committee stated that Sidney Hillman was mixed up with this project. He was more than mixed up. Sidney Hillman was a member of the board of directors of this project."

Brownell said Hillman later quit the organization but, he added, "the fact remains that he was a founder of an organization that contributed almost 2 million dollars to communist causes in America, including financing of the New Masses, Revolutionary Age, the Young Workers League of America, and the Workers' school." Brownell said the fund also contributed to the Daily Worker and the Communist Federated Press.

Foster a Director.

The Republican chairman said that among other directors of the fund were William Z. Foster, "then head of the Communist party in the United States," and Robert Morss Lovett, "so definitely a Communist that the congress passed legislation to remove him from the pay roll of the federal government."

Brownell said the fund contributed $500 to the Ferrer school, and, he added, the secretary of the fund wrote: "We gave to the Ferrer school for its educational work with children, which is certainly not sectarian, altho the auspices are, as you say, largely anarchistic."

The "Ferrer school" was not further identified.

MICHIGAN VOTES TO EXTEND ITS POLLING HOURS

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 3 [Special].—Michigan legislators, in a special session, today approved three bills pertaining to the Nov. 7 election, the chief of which permits local governing bodies to extend voting hours from 8 to 10 p. m. in areas where the extra time is needed to allow all qualified citizens to vote.

Gov. Harry F. Kelly, who called the session at the behest of the Detroit election commission and the CIO political action committee, urged passage of the measures.

One of the other bills expresses legislative intent that an absentee ballot cast by a member of the military forces shall be presumed to have been cast by a person still living on election day unless an official notice to the contrary is received. The third bill provides that the legal time prevailing in a specific voting district shall govern polling hours unless a different time has been advertised.

Firemen Arrive Too Late to Quench a Romance

Meridian, Ida., Nov. 3 (AP).—The bride and groom were perspiring a little more than usual at a ceremony here. The program began promptly at 7 p. m. and at 7:10 the guests began to squirm and shuffle feet. At 7:15 the minister pronounced the couple man and wife and then everybody hurried out while the fire department extinguished a blaze in the church basement.

Lilacs Blooming! It's Campaign Heat, Maybe

Union, N. J., Nov. 3 (AP).—The campaign, the weather, or perhaps both, must be warming up this Union county community. Mrs. Otto Koffler found lilacs on her lilac bush this morning.

CIO'S ELECTION GAS OFFER HELD ILLEGAL BY OPA

Plans of two CIO unions, one of them Sidney Hillman's own Amalgamated Clothing Workers, to use thousands of gallons of gasoline illegally in Chicago on election day were exposed last night by letters to shop stewards and statements of office of price administration officials.

Members of the garment makers union were promised $15 a day and two C coupons, each good for five gallons of gasoline, in an effort to get 4,000 drivers to carry Roosevelt voters to the polls. Stewards of the United Electrical workers union were told to consider themselves members of the CIO political action committee, election day committee, and were promised 10 gallons of gasoline for each driver they recruited.

John F. Kamerick, regional OPA rationing executive, issued an interpretation of the regulations which would forbid the issue of election day gasoline rations on mass applications by union or other groups.

Names and Numbers Required.

All applications, he said, must be made for individual cars and drivers, with name, address, and license number on each. The use of loose coupons, as promised in the CIO letters, is illegal, he said, and gas station operators have been instructed not to honor detached coupons.

Area OPA officials disclosed that heads of the CIO-PAC had requested the issue of extra gasoline for one worker in each precinct in Cook county. The OPA officials said they had denied the request under Kamerick's ruling.

The letter to the electrical worker stewards listed Louis Torre as chairman and John T. Bernard as director, with Ernest DeMaio and Irving Krane among the executive committee members. All are known Communists. It asked the stewards to draw up lists of drivers and send them to the committee and said, "We will see to it that they get coupons for 10 gallons of gas."

Asks Driver for Each Precinct.

The Hillman union members got letters signed by union officials asking one volunteer driver for each union member.

precinct in Chicago and promised each driver "two coupons."

The letters also advised all members to take two hours off from their work on election day, as provided by state law, but "if there is a long line waiting at the polls, we advise you to stay there until you vote." The letters concluded with a last minute plea for $1 contributions to the fourth term campaign fund, "which have been coming in much too slowly."

Kamerick's statement said he interpreted OPA regulations to permit group applications for election day gasoline, but that each application is to be considered on its merits. He said any group or individual may apply and is entitled to extra gas if proof is given of intention to take to the polls voters who otherwise could not get there.

Decision Up to Local Board.

Organizations which send in individual applications by groups may hand them in at ration boards other than those having jurisdiction over the individuals, he said. Thus a union or other group with headquarters in one ward may turn them into the board in that ward, altho the individual drivers may be scattered thruout the city. All boards are given the power to grant or reject applications, he said.

A special certificate is issued to each driver whose application is approved, he said, and the extra gasoline can be used only in the car for which it is issued. He pointed out that this would not permit the CIO unions to distribute coupons or certificates promiscuously.

COURT ENJOINS SPENDING OF CIO POLITICAL FUNDS

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 3 [Special].—Los Angeles' largest CIO union, local 9 of the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers, today was enjoined by Superior Judge Emeet H. Wilson from spending union money for political purposes.

The order also was directed against political candidates who allegedly were beneficiaries of the union's spending of about $30,000 without proper authorization. Among the candidates are Hal Styles, former Ku Klux Klan officer who is a Democratic candidate for congress, Helen Gahagan Douglas, and Sheridan Downey.

DICK LYONS BIDS FOR SENATE ON FIGHTING RECORD

Got New Deal's Number Early; Never Let Up.

BY GUY GENTRY.

Striking at New Deal ideologies with the same vigor that has characterized his public career for more than a decade, Richard J. Lyons as Republican nominee is making his second bid for the office of United States senator.

Lyons was a candidate against his present opponent in 1938. His vigorous campaign then won him a majority of more than 100,000 votes downstate and more than 50,000 in the country towns of Cook county, but he lost when Chicago rolled up a 255,000 majority for his Democratic opponent.

A predicted Republican majority downstate this year ranging from 300,000 to 400,000 and an expected 100,000 majority in the country towns are counted on to overcome any machine voting or fancy ballot counting in Chicago.

He's Republican Spearhead.

In his present campaign Lyons has been his party's spearhead against its Democratic foes and their communistic cohorts. He has warned that the New Deal, failing to solve unemployment thru 10 years of experiments, will return to the dole if retained in power in the post-war era.

"The New Deal campaign," Lyons charged in a recent speech, "is based on the fallacious philosophies of unlimited tenure of office and of the indispensable man." He added that "only the fundamental American institutions are indispensable."

Lyons' popularity with Illinois voters, demonstrated by the enthusiastic welcome he has received at every downstate appearance in the present campaign, is the result of hundreds of speeches made over the state in previous campaigns in his own behalf and that of other Republican candidates. An ebullient, forceful speaker, Lyons' most frequent response from his audience is the cry of "Pour it on."

Warned of War Long Ago.

As state representative from Lake county, Lyons began an early attack on the New Deal in the depths of the depression, denouncing Roosevelt waste and inefficiency, warning of the threats of burocracy, and pointing out long before Pearl Harbor that the Roosevelt foreign policy would involve the United States in any war that might break out.

Lyons was born 48 years ago in the old Bridgeport district north of the Chicago stock yards, the 13th child in a family familiar with poverty. He left school when 12 years old and began work as a telegraph messenger. When 24 years old he started in retail business for himself in Area, now Mundelein. He has been engaged in the real estate business at Libertyville since 1924.

Lyons started in politics as he did in business, at the bottom as a precinct worker. He defied the county boss to win his office of state representative in 1928. He remained in the legislature until he resigned in 1938 to make the race for the senate.

He was a candidate for governor in 1940, but lost in the primary to Gov. Green and began working the day after the primary election as vigorously for Green as he had campaigned for himself. He was appointed a member of the state tax commission in 1941. When the legislature created the department of revenue he was named deputy director.

Lyons was married in 1916 to Blanche Mitchell of Prairie View. They have two children, Richard E., now in the army air force, and a daughter, Mrs. Dan Lee Smith, who is with her husband, an army air forces major and instructor.

Morning Ballot Deliveries Urged in Fight on Frauds

BY GUY GENTRY.

Delivery of ballots to the 24th ward and other areas of Chicago known for voting irregularities in the past on the morning of election day was urged by George Fisher, Republican county chairman, in a letter mailed yesterday to the board of election commissioners.

"It has been the sad experience that ballots delivered to the homes of various judges and clerks are susceptible to chain ballot usage and other election frauds," Fisher wrote. "I am certain that you join me in desiring that every possible protection be afforded an honest election.

Committeeman Backs Request.

"To best assure an honest election, especially in the 24th ward," the Republican chairman suggested, "it is my request that the ballots in that ward be delivered to the polling places on the morning of Nov. 7, instead of the evening of Nov. 6, to the homes of judges and clerks. Paul W. Rothenberg, Republican committeeman for the 24th ward, joins in the request.

"Will you kindly augment the direct distribution of ballots to the polling places in whatever precincts you have knowledge of previous difficulties."

Leo Carr, Republican nominee for sheriff, charged yesterday that hoodlums thruout the county are waging a reign of terror and violence in an effort to coerce voters to support his Democratic opponent. He said this violence included smashing store windows, slashing automobile tires, and demolishing Republican sign boards. Carr declared "the city hall machine not only refuses to curb this lawlessness, but instead encourages the action."

Fraud Watchers Sought.

A last appeal was made yesterday for volunteer workers to assist in preventing election frauds next Tuesday by the Business Men's committee, the Joint Civic Committee on Elections, and the Honest Ballot committee.

Frank Durham, vice chairman of the Business Men's committee, said late volunteers will be welcome at the instruction class to be held at 1 p. m. today in Kimball hall, 308 S. Wabash av. Mrs. Harriet Robertson, head of the Honest Ballot committee which needs 800 more volunteers for the "bad" precincts of the city, said classes will be held at 2:30 p. m. today and 7:45 p. m. Monday in room 352, 53 W. Jackson blvd.

Guy E. Reed, chairman of the joint civic committee, said the final instruction class of that group will deal with the prevention of chain voting where one voter takes a marked ballot into the polling place, drops that into the ballot box, and takes the unmarked ballot handed him outside, where it is marked and brought in by the next voter in the "chain."

Writ Is Made Permanent Against Large Oil Firm

A consent judgment permanently enjoining the Martin Oil company, one of the largest independent distributors of gasoline in Illinois, from violating office of price administration regulations, was entered yesterday by Federal Judge William J. Campbell. The action backed up the OPA's suspension of four of the company's 50 stations. It enjoins the company from transfer of gasoline or gasoline coupons and other irregularities.

Bridge at Belmont Av. Will Be Closed Sunday

The Belmont av. bridge will be closed to vehicular traffic from 8 a. m. to 4 p. m. Sunday while repairs are being made, it was announced yesterday. Pedestrians may use the bridge.

2 NAVY OFFICERS SUE FOR $400,000 IN UNION BRAWL

BY PHILIP DODD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 3.—The "battle of the Statler" reached the District of Columbia federal court today when Daniel J. Tobin and his International Brotherhood of Teamsters were sued for a total of $400,000 for allegedly libeling the two naval officers involved in the fracas with union officials following President Roosevelt's address to the teamsters Sept. 23.

Separate suits for $200,000 each were filed on behalf of Lt. Comdr. James H. Suddeth and Lt. Randolph Dickins Jr. They charged that an article in the November issue of The International Teamster, organ of Tobin's union, falsely accused the officers of being drunk and disorderly, cursing the President, and, in Dickins' case, with assaulting and molesting a woman. Jury trials were asked.

Accosted About Vote.

According to public statements made by the two officers last month, they were accosted in the Statler hotel by teamsters who had just heard the President speak and were asked if they were going to "vote for their commander in chief." The officers said that when they told the teamsters it was none of their business, they were attacked by the teamsters.

The naval shore patrol broke up the fight and removed the officers from the hotel, but no charges against them have been announced by the navy department.

Both suits charged the motive of the teamsters union in publishing the article about the naval officers was to "influence the election of the present incumbent to another term in the office of President of the United States," in addition to "destroying the good name, fame, and reputation and character" of Suddeth and Dickins.

Charges Recovery Retarded.

It also was charged in the suits that publication of the article made the officers subject to trial by naval court martial, with penalties which might result in their being dishonorably discharged from the navy.

Dickins, who was a patient at the naval hospital at Bethesda, Md., at the time of the Statler affair, charged in his suit that publication of the article made him "nervous, ill and distraught" and retarded his recovery. Dickins had 44 months of sea duty prior to his hospitalization.

CROWLEY SPEAKS ON BROADCAST FOR ROOSEVELT

Washington, D. C., Nov. 3 (AP).—Leo T. Crowley, foreign economic administrator, tonight called speedy victory, a just and lasting peace, and greater productive employment the only "real issues" of the Presidential campaign. He spoke on a radio broadcast in behalf of a fourth term for Roosevelt.

The FEA chief said Mr. Roosevelt "has demonstrated time and time again in the waging of this war and the planning for the peace that he knows how to develop a strong working partnership with the other peace loving nations which we can be confident he will carry on to a successful conclusion.'

Crowley said he believes strongly "in advancing individual freedom and private enterprise" and opposes "Communism in the United States." He said the President "holds the same views."

DEWEY SPEARS VOTES WILLKIE MISSED IN 1940

Running 8.4% Ahead in Downstate Straws.

BY LEWIS HUNT.

THE TRIBUNE'S straw vote today finds Gov. Dewey winning the favor of Illinois voters outside of Chicago to an extent that would have swung the state to Wendell Willkie four years ago. In 1940 President Roosevelt won Illinois with a plurality of only 102,000 votes.

Dewey's straws now give him an expectancy of 8.4 per cent more votes than Willkie polled in the downstate area covered thus far in the poll and 3.9 more in the Cook county towns. Chicago, where the vote next Tuesday probably will be slightly less than that of the country towns and downstate combined, remains Roosevelt territory. The straws taken thus far indicate, however, that Mr. Roosevelt will run no stronger in the city than he did in 1940, when he got 58 per cent of the votes.

The candidates' straw standings in each of the three poll sectors are:

	1944 straws. [Percentage] Roose- velt.	Dewey.	1940 votes. [Percentage] Roose- velt.	Willkie.
Chicago	42.7	57.3	42	58
Cook county towns	62.9	37.1	59	41
Downstate	58.4	41.6	50	50

36,846 Straws Downstate.

Dewey's position downstate is reckoned from 36,846 straws taken in 223 cities and towns. They include industrial and rural centers, large and small, and are representative of the entire state outside of Cook county. In 1940 these places, taken together, split their votes 50-50 between Roosevelt and Willkie, while now they give Dewey 58.4 per cent. Downstate as a whole give Willkie 53 per cent of its vote in 1940.

Two strongly Republican suburbs, Arlington Heights and Wilmette, raise Dewey's standing in the country town tabulation. His last previous showing, however, had been lowered by straws from Democratic Cicero. The day's switch brings Dewey back to the level he reached earlier in the canvass.

In Chicago, Mr. Roosevelt benefits by straws gathered in six south side wards. Another ward in that area, the 18th, in Englewood, gives Dewey 54.1 per cent of its straws.

Lyons Even with Dewey.

West side wards in the tally give the President 51.5 per cent and account for his 1 per cent drop under his previous showing. Three of this group, the 37th, 38th, and 39th, which lie northwest, marked a majority of their straws for Dewey. North side wards, which, as a whole, had expressed Dewey sentiment, now give Roosevelt the better of it by 6/10 of 1 per cent.

Straws taken in THE TRIBUNE'S state-wide poll on governor and United States senator forecast the reëlection of Gov. Green by a larger vote than he received in 1940 and indicate that Richard J. Lyons, the Republican senatorial candidate, has the same favorable chance that Dewey has.

Cook county tests place the candidates for state's attorney, John T. Dempsey, Republican, and William J. Tuohy, Democrat, only a fraction of a percentage point apart.

Final returns on all four offices, together with THE TRIBUNE'S view of what is likely to take place election day, will be printed tomorrow.

DEFEAT LUCAS, JEFFERSONIAN DEMOCRAT ASKS

Harmon Raps Record of Senator.

Jacksonville, Ill., Nov. 3 [Special].—Robert E. Harmon, prominent lawyer and Jeffersonian Democrat, called for the defeat of Sen. Lucas, Democratic candidate for reëlection, in a stirring talk before a large crowd of Democrats and Republicans in the Morgan county courthouse tonight.

He accused Lucas of selling both his state and his party short, and of shutting his eyes to the menace of communism. Harmon identified himself as an independent Democrat.

Harmon recalled that only a few days ago Sen. Lucas appealed to Morgan county voters for support, and that Sen. Hatch [D., N. M.], also stumped for him. Both Lucas and Hatch ridiculed communism, Harmon said, and Hatch went on to say that communism could spread only in time of distress.

Ignored Party.

"How ignorant the senator is about the spread of communism!" exclaimed Harmon. "At this time, in these days of great prosperity, members of a sect are going about here in Jacksonville preaching communism and atheism. Communism and atheism go hand in hand, in fact, are inseparable."

Harmon charged Sen. Lucas had sometimes ignored his party in appointments, thereby selling the party short, and that he had tried to foist a fraudulent soldier vote bill upon the country, thereby selling his state short. Then he hammered on the "McGinnis incident."

"The papers," Harmon said, "are filled with articles about the removal of Lt. Comdr. McGinnis from the navy war ballot office. It was Scott Lucas who acted as office boy for Mayor Kelly in demanding McGinnis' transfer because McGinnis would not get any votes for Roosevelt."

Taken In By Kelly.

There was a time, years ago, Harmon said, when Lucas used to lambaste Mayor Kelly in no uncertain terms as "one of the most vicious scoundrels that ever held office in Illinois." But, Harmon went on, Kelly's machine elected him, and Lucas since then has never uttered a word against him.

"Lucas was taken in by Kelly," Harmon continued, "and now the senator wants you to reëlect him. I urge you Democrats to pile up a big vote against him next Tuesday."

COUNT JUDICIAL VOTE FIRST TO CUT FRAUD, G. O. P. GROUP ASKS

The 12 Republican candidates for Municipal court judgeships yesterday sent a letter to County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki asking that election clerks be instructed to count the separate judicial ballots before the large general ballot is tabulated.

"Experience in prior elections has shown," the letter said, "that the clerks and judges in polling places are likely to neglect the count of the Municipal ballots because there is less general interest in these offices than in the major offices on the large ballot.

As a result inadequate attention is given to the judicial ballot, the count often is inaccurate, and there is greater opportunity for election frauds."

The letter was signed by all the Republican candidates: Patrick B. Prescott Jr., John J. Lyons, George W. Hansen, Stephen M. Fleming, John R. Lamb, Eugene C. O'Reilly, Stanley M. Pulaski, George M. Schatz, John A. Filipi, William J. Remus, Henry E. Pieruccini, and Anthony A. Olis.

DEWEY BACKED BY 60 PER CENT OF NEWSPAPERS

New York, Nov. 3 [Special].—Gov. Dewey is being supported by 60.1 per cent of the daily newspapers in the United States representing 68.5 per cent of the total daily circulation, according to a revised poll by Editor and Publisher.

President Roosevelt is being supported by 22 per cent of the dailies accounting for 17.7 per cent of the circulation. Remaining independent in the Presidential battle are 17.9 per cent of the dailies, or 13.8 per cent of the circulation.

The revised survey increased to 1,324 the number of papers responding, which is 75.6 per cent of all the dailies. They have a circulation of 38,914,046, or 87.6 per cent of the total daily circulation in the United States.

U. S. TO PAY WAR PLANTS FOR TIME GIVEN TO VOTERS

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 3.—President Roosevelt today announced that the government will reimburse all firms with federal contracts for time off given workers to vote on election day.

With a note of warning, he asked any employe, not allowed enough time to vote, to inform him personally of the circumstances, "together with the name of his company and any other pertinent facts."

"It is important that the mandate of the election should be as representative of the whole people as possible irrespective of whom they vote for," the President declared in a formal White House statement.

Essentially American.

"There has been much interest in the subject of soldier voting. I am sure that there is an equal interest in facilitating the vote of civilian workers, regardless of their choice. This point of view seems to be essentially American."

The new ruling, permitting war workers to vote, in effect, at government expense, was revealed by Mr. Roosevelt as he urged that all employers give employes an adequate opportunity to vote next Tuesday.

The announcement came several hours before the President was scheduled to depart on his final vote seeking expedition of the campaign which will carry him thru Connecticut and Massachusetts tomorrow, climaxed by an address in Boston in the evening.

Mr. Roosevelt told a press conference he was praying for good weather on the trip. He announced a stop and brief speech at Bridgeport, Conn., in the district of Rep. Luce, outspoken Republican opponent of the New Deal.

Speech on Insurance.

At Hartford, Conn., headquarters of several large insurance companies, the President said he might make a speech regarding insurance policies, noting they were still safe despite prophesies made by his opposition in 1936 and 1940.

He dismissed a question about the progress of the campaign with the remark that he was busy writing a speech and it was no time for opinion questions.

Concerning a Chicago Tribune story that Secretary of State Hull is ill and will be replaced after the election by Vice President Wallace, the President said the article might be one of the things he and Democratic Chairman Hannegan talked about last night. He referred to his and Hannegan's radio speeches assailing "whisperings and rumorings . . . trumped up . . . to panic the people on election day."

Finally Says No.

When a reporter persisted, asking it there had been any indication that Hull plans to resign, the President said no.

Mr. Roosevelt said he did not know whether Sen. Glass, veteran Virginia Democrat, would support the fourth term as announced recently by War Mobilization Director Byrnes. Five hours later, Presidential Secretary Early announced that Sen. Glass had telephoned the White House and stated that Byrnes' announcement was correct.

Absentee Voting Booths Will Close at Noon Today

John S. Rusch, chief clerk of the board of election commissioners, said yesterday that 99,275 absentee votes have been received in mail from civilians and military personnel and 9,704 have been cast in the voting booths in the commission's office. The booths will be closed at noon today. Thursday was the last day the commission accepted applications for absentee ballots.

Found Guilty

Miss Ruth Lois Boisnes, 19, of 60 N. Delaplaine rd., Riverside, "just found $400" in her purse after she had spent some time drinking cocktails last week with Thomas Weathers of Providence, R. I., a machinist's mate in the navy, she told Judge Frank E. Donoghue yesterday in Women's court. She met the sailor in the La Salle Street railroad station, and he missed the money from his wallet as she was leaving. He reported her to the shore patrol, and the money was recovered. Miss Bolsnes said she did not know how it got into her purse. Judge Donoghue found her guilty of disorderly conduct and said he will rule Nov. 17 on a petition for probation.

Political Notes

Edward J. Kaindl, Democratic nominee for reëlection as recorder of deeds, told members of the Independent Order of Vikings last night that the county "is in splendid financial condition." This was news to the public which has been told by county commissioners that the county still has outstanding debts of $2,486,000 contracted prior to Dec. 1, 1942. Kaindl spoke in the Viking headquarters at Sheffield av. and School st.

Republican leaders in their headquarters in the La Salle hotel are preparing for a huge crowd of celebrators next Tuesday night. The hotel's Chicago room will be opened to the public, and returns will be announced immediately after they are received over the telephone and special leased wires.

John T. Dempsey, Republican candidate for state's attorney, yesterday was presented with a football bearing the colors of both Notre Dame and Northwestern universities. It signalized support by alumni of both institutions, who met with him at a luncheon in the Hotel Sherman.

DEWEY RETAINS NARROW LEAD IN NEW YORK POLL

New York, Nov. 3 [Special].—The first results of the recheck in the New York News Presidential poll of the state has disclosed no significant new trend. President Roosevelt showed a gain of .9 of a percentage point in the area repolled, but a preponderance of the straws were taken in upstate industrial centers and New York City districts favorable to him.

The change is small and Gov. Dewey continues to hold approximately the same hairline lead he held in the final results of the original poll.

For all practical purposes, the poll and repoll still indicate a tie, with the verdict Tuesday to be determined by the unknown and unsampled soldier vote.

In the final tabulation of the 72,086 straws of the first poll, Dewey had 50.8 per cent to Roosevelt's 49.2 per cent.

DEWEY IS READY FOR VITAL PUNCH WITH N. Y. SPEECH

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 3.—Gov. Dewey will bring his campaign to a climax tomorrow night with a nation-wide address from Madison Square Garden in New York City. The speech will be on the air from 9:30 to 10 o'clock [Chicago time].

The governor arrived here this morning from a tour thru Pennsylvania designed to assure that doubtful state for the Republicans. Many political observers expect Pennsylvania's vote to have an important bearing on the election. If the election is close, the final results may not be known until Pennsylvania counts its soldiers' ballots on Nov. 22.

Declines to Change Program.

Dewey had been urged by some of his lieutenants to stump Connecticut or New Jersey in this final week-end of the campaign. He is sticking to the program he set for himself soon after his nomination last June.

Dewey, in the executive mansion here tonight, was writing his speech for his final mass meeting of the campaign. Whether it will be another indictment of Roosevelt and his backing by Sidney Hillman's political action committee and Communist Leader Earl Browder was not disclosed.

Dewey was not giving the opposition the advantage of a 24 hour notice of his final topic.

May Summarize Issues.

From his conduct to date in the campaign it might be guessed that tomorrow night's address will be a summation of two issues: [1] How the electorate on Tuesday can hasten the end of the war abroad by ending dissension in Washington, D. C., and [2] How the electorate can assure a post-war continuance of American institutions.

On Sunday, Dewey will return to Albany from New York City. On Monday night from the mansion he will broadcast his final speech of the campaign. Traditionally, election eve talks are appeals to citizens to exercise their franchise.

On Tuesday, the governor and Mrs. Dewey will go to New York City to vote. Their home is a Pawling, N. Y., farm and their official residence is the executive mansion but their legal residence is in New York City.

BUROCRACY EVIL, M'LEISH ADMITS, BUT HITS CRITICS

Archibald MacLeish, librarian of congress, admitted here yesterday that there was and is a burocracy in Washington and "a good many citizens have suffered from it," but charged in a speech that certain newspapers have done the nation a disservice by attacking men at the head of the bureaus. The attack, he said, has aroused in the United States "dormant, but dangerous and powerful emotions of general distrust of governmental workers."

MacLeish addressed a conference of civil service personnel directors sponsored by the Civil Service assembly of the United States and Canada in the Stevens hotel. Asserting that criticism of burocrats had been aimed at the wrong men, he said he could not understand why Donald Nelson should be a great business leader when he boarded a train for Washington and then overnight become a subject for burocratic criticism.

The real burocracy, MacLeish said, is made up of lesser employes "who have dug in to hold their jobs and have succeeded in obstructing many things." "Honest men have raged," he continued, "when they found decisions being made by men who ought not to be allowed to even approach a decision."

PLAYWRIGHT HISSES VILLAIN, NEW DEAL, AS PROVEN FAILURE

Channing Pollock, playwright, author, and critic, yesterday reviewed the record of planned economy under the New Deal and asked the question: "Has complete government control and regulation worked out so well that you'd like to see it continued after the war?"

"There's nothing new about the idea of a planned economy," Pollock told the Executives club at a luncheon meeting in Hotel Sherman during a debate with Lewis Browne, author. "It probably took root very soon after men ceased swinging from trees by their tails. The system has been tried scores of times; liberty always perished under it, and prosperity never was born.

"Necessarily, now and thruout the war, we are living under complete governmental control. Has it worked out so well that you'd like to see it continued after the war?"

Browne, in reply to Pollock, contended that governmental regulation of business was natural and was necessary to provide jobs for everyone after the war. He added that private enterprise led to monopolistic power and a low standard of living.

County Votes 2% Bonds to Pay $2,468,965 Bills

To pay county bills of $2,468,965 for 1941 and 1942, the county board of commissioners yesterday authorized the issuance of 2 per cent bonds in amounts of not more than $1,000 each. The county was authorized by the state legislature last year to sell bonds for debts that accrued prior to Dec. 1, 1942. Bond will be given to the county's creditors, and interest will be paid by property tax levies. The securities will be distributed late this month. The county owes $243,997 to the city, and $37,624 to the sanitary district.

ILLINOIS VOTER ROLLS BOOSTED ABOVE 4,500,000

Democratic Cook County Exceeds Downstate.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

There are 4,561,410 persons registered for next Tuesday's battle over Illinois' electoral votes, with 2,470,880 on the polls lists in Cook county and 2,090,530 in the remainder of the state.

Final tabulation last night showed a sharp increase in the Cook county figures. These are not only 196,033 higher than the 1940 Presidential registration lists, but 50,297 above the total for 1944 announced two weeks ago by election officials.

"It certainly is unprecedented for registration figures to be apparently increased by revision," said Republican County Chairman George M. Fisher. "Undoubtedly the Democratic machine has some 'stingers' on the list. But on the whole I take the boost as a good omen of a heavy protest vote against the New Deal."

The Chicago election board offered this explanation: Earlier figures had listed about 98,000 "suspects"—persons who couldn't be found by canvassers at the addresses given. These were deducted from the previous registration figures. Then it was found that most of them were in the army and navy and had to be put back on the rolls.

381,000 Greater than Downstate.

In any event, the new figures show Cook county having a registration 381,000 greater than that of downstate's 101 counties.

With straw votes showing Cook county with a Democratic majority and downstate with a Republican majority, the comparison is of the utmost political importance. In the 1940 Presidential race the vote was almost equal—2,138,150 in Cook county and 2,124,046 downstate.

Chicago now shows 2,031,011 voters—far and away an all-time record. This is an increase of 116,975 over 1940, or 6.11 per cent. Earlier figures of the election board showed an increase of only 48,000, or about 2 per cent.

In the suburbs of Cook county there are 439,869 persons shown registered, which tops 1940 by 79,058, or 21.91 per cent. This increase was less surprising to political observers because of the continued trend toward suburban residency and the room for expansion there.

OFFICIAL TENURE AMENDMENT HIT AS AIDING GRAFT

Disapproval of the constitutional amendment removing the one term restriction on sheriffs and county treasurers and approval of the state banking act amendment, the $3,000,000 bond issue, and two amendments to the Municipal court act has been voted by the directors of the Citizens' Association of Chicago, President Wallace J. Stebbins informed members in a letter issued yesterday.

On the constitutional amendment defeat was favored "for the reason that while the present situation is unsatisfactory, the proposed change does not hold out sufficient prospect of improvement to warrant support.

"As to the possibility of the county treasurer succeeding himself, the change would prevent a situation where chronic inexperience in office every four years is inevitable, by enabling the continuance in office of an experienced incumbent. On the other hand, the present system increases the opportunity for the disclosure of any dishonesty which has taken place in the past. Such disclosures are not certainly guaranteed by the audit now required."

The $3,000,000 bond issue would provide for purchase of additional street lighting equipment.

Dependent Child Checks Rise $97,656 in October

State payments for aid to dependent children rose to $769,935 in October, $97,656 over the total for September, State Auditor Lueder announced yesterday. The number of warrants, however, dropped from 20,221 to 19,841. Increased allowances authorized recently raised the average amount of the vouchers. The October roll included 47,334 children.

FRENCH WOMEN LINE UP FOR 1ST VOTE IN HISTORY

BY ROBERT SAGE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 3.—For the first time in French history, Parisian women today joined the lines of men waiting at the polls to register for the forthcoming elections. It was the first time French voters had registered since 1939. The first liberation election of departmental officials will be held a week after the close of registration.

Under the Algiers decree of last June 2 all French citizens regardless of sex who will be 21 or older by Feb. 4, 1945, are eligible to vote in local, departmental, and national elections. In addition to presenting identity and food cards, voters are obliged to give proof of continuous residence the last six months in the district in which they are registering.

Due to the million false identity cards put in circulation under the German occupation, registration was expected to be a long, slow process. Starting in Paris today and in the provinces Nov. 10, it will continue until Feb. 4, 1945.

DEMPSEY RAPS KELLY MACHINE FUND SOURCES

Terming his own campaign expenditures modest, John T. Dempsey, Republican candidate for states attorney, last night issued a statement assailing Mayor Kelly and the Kelly machine's sources of revenue.

"Mr. Kelly has recently been making some wild statements thru his candidate for state's attorney," Dempsey said. "He says my campaign expenditures have been extravagant. He asks where the money comes from.

"How Ed Kelly, who could forget a little matter like several hundred thousand dollars on his income tax return for a single year, could consider my modest expenditures extravagant is puzzling.

"How a boss who hands out over a half million dollars on election day dares question my right to purchase billboards is odd. And how he has the nerve to ask the source of my campaign funds is the height of gall.

"Honest Citizens" Contribute.

"Let me take this opportunity to inform you, Mayor Kelly, that every dollar of my campaign contributions came from honest, reputable citizens who are anxious to see that your stand-in shall not become the state's attorney of Cook county. These contributors feel that a state's attorney independent of you is the best way possible to help reestablish the good name of Chicago."

Dempsey listed the following sources that his funds "did not come from":

1. Vice lords paying for the privilege of operating.
2. Tax fixers paying for the privilege of having their customers' tax reduced.
3. Tavern keepers forced to contribute for fear that they might otherwise lose their licenses.
4. Companies making large profits by selling to the school board.

Predicts He'll Win.

5. Bus companies with contracts to haul crippled children to school "at high prices."
6. Garbage disposal contractors or operators of city dumps.

"My campaign funds, Mr. Kelly," the statement concluded, "come from the good people of Chicago who on Tuesday are going to see that your 'experienced prosecutor' who never prosecuted a case is not going to be the state's attorney of this county."

They are possessed of the true spirit of democracy for all."

NEW DEAL RUIN BY ITS FACTIONS SEEN BY WARREN

Sacramento, Cal., Nov. 3 (AP).—Gov. Warren of California tonight asserted an "armed truce" exists among supporters of President Roosevelt for the purpose of bringing about his reelection, and predicted there would be disharmony if Roosevelt wins.

Unable because of illness to broadcast at a studio for the Dewey-Bricker ticket, Warren's remarks were made by transcription prepared at the executive mansion.

"The New Deal machine," Gov. Warren said, "is being held together today by the domination of one man, not by a common philosophy of government or by any common program for the future of America.

"Many incongruous elements are saddled on to the conservative Democrats of the south. This conglomerate New Deal machine advocates one doctrine in one part of the country, the opposition in another.

"The alignment is neither natural or workable. It is designed to win this election. If it succeeds, it will break open at the seams after election."

WAR IS ALL THAT KEEPS NEW DEAL IN RING—LUEDER

F. D. R. Claims to Credit for Victory Ridiculed.

President Roosevelt should be the last person in the nation to use the winning of the war for political purposes, State Auditor Arthur C. Lueder declared last night in the final radio address of his campaign for reelection.

"If it were not for the war the New Deal would have been swept out of office as one of the greatest political failures in our nation's history," Lueder charged.

In another radio address State Sen. Arnold Benson, Republican nominee for secretary of state, said the vast majority of the people of Illinois do not believe "the fourth term candidate's story of the promised land."

"Last Desperate Effort."

Benson said that Roosevelt in his Chicago speech "took the people of this country up to the mountain top and showed them the promised land of peace." It included jobs for all, higher wages, no burocratic control, more farm income, foreign trade trebled, and a million new homes a year.

"Unfortunately, I cannot believe the fourth term candidate's story of the promised land and neither can the vast majority of our people in Illinois," Benson declared.

"Here in Illinois we have long memories. We know those broken promises. Those broken promises of the last 12 years are more reasons why we cannot believe the fourth term candidate's promises of this year—promises made in a last minute desperate effort to prevent his defeat."

Lueder charged in his radio address, broadcast by station WIND, that Roosevelt, not content with being commander in chief, is making the winning of the war the spearhead of his campaign for a fourth term.

War Credit Not Limited.

"He is attempting to make political capital out of the gallant fight which our boys in the armed forces are making," he said. "As they struggle and die to preserve world freedom, the commander in chief, who is that thru the courtesy of the Constitution, tells the nation that he and his New Dealers are winning the war. I say they can no more take credit for winning the war than they can for keeping us out of it.

"American resourcefulness, American ingenuity and American courage of our fighting men are winning this war, and no one man or set of men can rightfully take credit for the human genius of our fighters and the power of the greatest nation on earth."

CIO Accused of Sellout.

The communist leaders of the CIO political action committee "are selling out the working men and women for whatever political deal they can get from the Roosevelt administration," Clarence O. Mahoney, a UAW-CIO representative in the aviation division of the Studebaker war plant, charged before a 22d ward political rally.

"One of the major issues in this campaign," Mahoney said, "is whether labor shall be free or shall be enslaved by a corrupt political machine controled by communist labor leaders and big city bosses.

"The goons and czars in organized labor have counted heavily on the benediction and protection of the Browder-Hillman-Roosevelt axis to carry on their dictatorships. They realize that the election of Dewey and Bricker means the freedom of labor, which they can't afford.

HENNING MAKES VOTE FORECAST ON AIR TONIGHT

The series, entitled "Capitol Comment," will be heard from 6 to 6:15 o'clock tonight and on successive Saturday evenings hereafter. In his initial broadcast Henning will make his own forecast of the outcome of the major national political contests to be decided Tuesday.

M'GINNIS OUSTER LINKED TO PLOT ON SOLDIER VOTE

The transfer of Lt. Comdr. Edward F. McGinnis, navy voting officer in the Pacific war area, on order of Mayor Kelly and Sen. Lucas [D., Ill.], has revealed a "sinister and sordid conspiracy to remove the safeguards from the ballots of our fighting men," Richard J. Lyons, Republican nominee for senator, declared last night in a speech over station W-G-N.

"Recently this startling news leaked out of Washington," Lyons said, "showing that my opponent had used his influence to remove this naval officer from his job of protecting the service man's vote.

"Sen. O'Daniel of Texas and Sen. Ferguson of Michigan disclosed the truth that Mayor Kelly objected to McGinnis because 'He won't get any votes for Roosevelt and I'm going to see that he is removed, and if necessary I will go direct to the White House and see that it is done.'"

"Feared He'd Do Duty."

Mayor Kelly has admitted that he complained at a dinner party in Washington about the assignment of McGinnis as voting officer and that he voiced in substance the objection quoted by Lyons.

Citing the record of Comdr. McGinnis as a naval officer and business man, Lyons charged that Sen. Lucas and Mayor Kelly got rid of the voting officer because "they feared he would do his duty and protect the ballots of his comrades from the machine spoilsmen."

"What interest has my New Deal opponent shown in the soldier vote?" Lyons asked. "Up and down the state he has gone, protesting his love for the service men and his determination to see that our fighting men had no vote except the short ballot, which does not list the names of the various local, state, and national candidates.

"Foremost Supporter."

"Scott Lucas was the foremost supporter of the bob-tailed ballot. The Kelly-Lucas removal of Comdr. McGinnis may have brought to light the reason for my opponent's emotional appeals and fervent protests for this bob-tailed ballot."

Lyons asked all voters to pause and think thru the issues of this campaign.

"Shall we," he asked, "allow the New Deal to continue or replace it with a vigorous, courageous and capable administration under Gov. Dewey and men of his caliber to guide America's destiny during the difficult days ahead?

"The American people on Nov. 7 will make a decision as important as any in the nation's history. It will do no good to condemn the New Deal on Nov. 8. The effort, the plans, and the dreams of our weary and suffering people for an end to the failure and decitfulness of these 12 tragic years will have resulted in frustration or hope the day after the polls close."

McSweeney, who ordered him to look for a war job.

DEMOCRATS BID FOR SUPPORT IN RADIO SPEECHES

Lucas, Courtney and Tuohy in Appeals.

State and county Democratic candidates augmented a score of mass meetings and ward rallies with radio addresses last night as party workers were urged to closer organization efforts to swell Democratic majorities in Chicago wards and overcome the strong downstate Republican trend.

Sen. Lucas in an address over Station WMAQ renewed his attacks on his Republican foes for the soldier vote act passed in the Illinois legislature last January and for their opposition to his federal bobtailed ballot bill, which failed of passage in congress.

Assails Soldier Vote Act.

Lucas said that in Madison county with more than 15,500 in military service, "fewer than one-third applied for ballots due to the red tape of the Illinois soldier vote law." The Democratic senator charged that "Republican leaders in Illinois are following the philosophy of Sen. Taft when he said men overseas had no right to vote because they knew nothing about the issues or the candidates."

Thomas J. Courtney, Democratic nominee for governor, spoke over station WHFC in an address directed to citizens of Lithuanian descent. He paid tribute to Lithuania and thanked the Lithuanian voters for their support when he was candidate for state's attorney.

At ward meetings where he spoke, Courtney challenged Gov. Green to "forget Communism for a moment and talk about the accomplishments of your administration." Courtney charged that in 1940 Gov. Green was shocked at the record of 31 escapes from the Illinois State Training School for Boys near St. Charles in a year, "but apparently is unperturbed by the fact that there have been 208 escapes thus far in 1944."

Sees Democratic Victim.

William J. Tuohy, Democratic nominee for state's attorney, speaking over station WBBM, declared that political opinion polls and straw ballot samplings appeared to point to the election of all the Democratic candidates and charged that Republican foes "have failed in their effort to promote national disunity in the name of Americanism."

In his address Tuohy declared it would be his policy as state's attorney "to lend the fullest measure of cooperation to all the law enforcing agencies without usurping any of their functions. There will never be a time when the doors of my office will not be open to one and all, as has been the case for the past 11 years."

SOLDIER VOTES IN 16 STATES MAY DECIDE ELECTION

New York, Nov. 3 (AP).—Enough soldier votes are likely to be cast in next Tuesday's election to change the political complexion of at least 16 states.

Sealed in millions of bulky envelopes from ships and camps over the world is the power, an Associated Press survey indicates, to overcome the pluralities which Wendell Willkie achieved in six states four years ago, and the same power to erase President Roosevelt's margin in 10 others.

If the division of the civilian vote is approximately the same this year, the military ballots could assure victory for the President or for Gov. Dewey, his Republican opponent, in all 16 of the states. These states represent 235 of the 531 electoral votes.

Michigan a Key State.

Michigan, with 19 rungs in the electoral ladder, is an outstanding example of a state whose Presidential preference could be reversed by the soldier vote.

Willkie carried Michigan by slightly less than 7,000 votes—a small fraction of the 165,000 G. I. ballots expected to be tabulated there Tuesday night.

Such a reservoir of votes could wipe out the Democrats' 1940 deficit. It could counteract a substantial civilian shift toward the Republicans at the same time. There is the equal possibility that it might top the Republicans' hair breadth victory of 1940.

400,000 in New York.

New York's estimated 400,000 soldier votes are nearly 150,000 more than Roosevelt's 1940 plurality there. The 30,000 probable service voters from Maine, which gave Willkie a 7,473 plurality could shatter the Republican tradition of their native state.

The 16 states are not the only ones in which the soldier vote may have a marked effect. Officials in Pennsylvania and California, to name two of the most populous states, have been quoted as believing the soldier vote may be decisive.

The 16 are merely those in which the soldier vote appears likely to outnumber the 1940 plurality of either party. Six of them gave Willkie a total of 56 electoral votes, the others gave Roosevelt 179. Here they are, with [R] indicating states carried by Roosevelt, and [W] those carried by Willkie:

Cruelty Charged

MRS. VIOLET OWEN.

Mrs. Violet Owen, 26, of 2818 92d ct., Elmwood Park, was granted a divorce by Judge Joseph Sabath in Superior court yesterday from Harold Owen, 27, a war worker. They were married July 7, 1940, in Greencastle, Mo. Mrs. Owen, represented by Atty. S. Edward Bloom, charged her husband with cruelty. She was awarded a $1,000 cash settlement and $10 a week support until she finds work.

WILL YOU SMASH GAMBLING RING? NOMINEES ASKED

Replies Requested by Crime Commision.

The Chicago Crime commission yesterday sent telegrams to all nominees for the Municipal court, state's attorney, and sheriff charging the existence of an alliance between gambling and politics and asking the candidates whether they will "honestly attempt to enforce all laws" concerning gambling.

The telegrams were signed by Guy E. Reed, president, and Virgil W. Peterson, operating director of the crime commission. Prompt replies were asked.

"Investigation by the Chicago Crime commission," the messages stated, "has established definitely:

"First, that wide open protected gambling in Chicago and Cook county has been responsible for the growth of racketeering, gangsterism, and gang killings;

Charges Officials Permit It.

"Second, that it exists only because responsible officials permit and encourage it to exist;

"Third, that political ramifications in the gambling racket are strong;

"Fourth, that wide open, syndicated gambling can be and has been suppressed overnight when responsible officials so order."

The crime commission then stated that Judge Joseph A. Graber, of the Superior court, in reinstating Capt. Eugene Barry to duty after dismissal by the city civil service commission for alleged laxity in halting gambling, had remarked that it is virtually impossible for police to stop handbook gambling when betting at the tracks is legal.

Will You Adhere to Oath?

The commission went on to say that legal methods exist to change laws that no longer express the will of the majority of the people. Nevertheless, it added, anti-gambling laws exist, and are enforceable. Therefore, the commission asked the candidates:

"Will you, if elected, adhere to your oath of office, and honestly attempt to enforce all laws regardless of your personal opinion as to the desirability of such laws?"

NEW DEAL FEARS WOMEN'S VOTES: VIVIEN KELLEMS

The hand that rocks the cradle will cast the vote that decides this election, Miss Vivien Kellems, Connecticut manufacturer of war goods, told a mass meeing of women sponsored by the Citizens' U. S. A. committee in the Engineering Building auditorium, 205 W. Wacker dr., last night.

"New Deal politicians are afraid of this vote and have excellent reasons to be," she said, "because the mothers, wives, and sweethearts of this country, whose loved ones are in hospitals, cemeteries, and on 72 battlefronts scattered thruout the world, are not going to forget idle promises made by the New Deal.

"The election of Gov. Dewey and Gov. Bricker will take care of cleaning out our capitol," she added, "but there still remain two important jobs for American women to do."

Urges Schools Cleanup.

First of these, according to Miss Kellems, who has been an industrialist for 17 years, is to get mothers out of war factories and back into their homes to take care of children.

"It's a thrilling thing that a mother may rivet the wings of an airplane on which her son may fly to victory, but the delinquency rate indicates she should be at home," Miss Kellems said.

She listed the second important accomplishment ahead for women as the task of cleaning out the public schools.

"Let's take a broom and sweep out every pink and red infesting our schools and see to it in the future our children are graduated with healthy minds as well as bodies," she suggested.

Can't Escape Politics.

Miss Kellems assailed Mr. Roosevelt and his "again and again" promise that "Your boys are not going to be sent into any foreign war."

"That promise was made on Oct. 30, 1940, four months after France had fallen," she said. "If Roosevelt did not know then that war was swiftly and inexorably engulfing us, then he knew less about foreign affairs than any taxi driver in the streets of Washington. And they don't claim to be farsighted as Mr. Roosevelt does."

Miss Kellems urged women to assume their proper responsibility in government.

$1,200,000 ASKED OF WHOLESALER IN SUIT BY OPA

A suit for treble damages of $1,200,000 and for an injunction to restrain violations of office of price administration price regulations was filed in United States District court yesterday against the Marwyn Dairy Products corporation, 141 W. Jackson blvd.; its president, Mark H. Fox, and the sales manager, George Pfeiffer.

Marion W. Isbell, Chicago metropolitan area OPA director, charged that the defendants, operating largely in Wisconsin, sold roller process whole milk powder, sweetened condensed skimmed milk, and butter at prices in excess of OPA maximum wholesale ceilings.

Preliminary and permanent injunctions to restrain further alleged violations were sought. The case was assigned to Federal Judge William J. Campbell.

WALLACE RUNS COPS RAGGED IN MYSTERY N. Y. STREET CHASE

New York, Nov. 3 [Special].—The unusual scene presented by the Vice President of the United States running along New York streets pursued by detectives and described today as an aftermath of Mr. Wallace's campaign tour of the city Tuesday. The few facts which reporters were able to gather from witnesses were:

Accompanied by two detectives assigned him as a bodyguard, Wallace left the Hotel Astor when he discovered he'd lost his speaking schedule. So the party drove to police headquarters seeking help. The two detectives went inside and Wallace remained in the car.

When they came out with Chief Inspector John J. O'Connell, Wallace was gone. There was a moment of consternation, then the Vice President was spotted running down Center street. The detectives gave chase. The inspector fell out early but the detectives kept on until finally a bystander grabbed the running man, supposedly figuring he was wanted by the detectives.

After Wallace had made speeches in Harlem and Madison Square Garden, he staged another footrace with his bodyguard. From the Garden to the Hotel Astor, thru the Broadway crowds, the fleet Vice President led his bodyguard, by now increased to four. He fled up to his room and barred them. The reasons for Wallace's foot races remained a mystery.

PARENTS' GROUP HOLDS DEMPSEY RALLY TONIGHT

Ten high school girls spent most of yesterday afternoon passing out handbills in the loop urging parents to vote for John T. Dempsey for state's attorney and to attend a parents' rally at 8:30 o'clock tonight in the American room of the La Salle hotel.

The Parents' Committee on Public Schools, which has pushed Dempsey's campaign as a means toward obtaining relief from the present school administration, is sponsoring the meeting. Dempsey will speak and his address will be broadcast at 10:15 over WMAQ.

YANKS HAMMER 2 MILES DEEPER INTO GERMANY

Capture Village; British Take Vlissingen.

SUPREME HDQ. ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, Nov. 3 (AP).—The southern flank of the United States 1st army assault swept two miles southeast of captured Vossenack today, overrunning the German village of Schmidt only three-quarters of a mile from the river Roer, next enemy barrier on the way to the Rhine 28 miles to the east.

The Americans gouged out their advance in hard fighting thru heavily mined woodland under leaden clouds that made close air support virtually impossible. But fighter bomber pilots of the 9th air force dealt what blows they could, knocking out three German tanks and probably destroying three others.

Fighting as fierce was going on in the last hours of the battle for Walcheren Island, which will open the docks of Antwerp to allied shipping.

South Schelde Front Silent.

The tempo of battle also rose along the Mark river line, five miles south of the Maas [Meuse] river in western Holland, and beyond Baccarat in France, where American and French forces are battling toward the passes which lead thru the Vosges mountains to the Rhine and Germany.

The swampy south Schelde pocket was liquidated as the last Nazi sniper nests were cleaned out, and for the first time in the 28 day Canadian offensive that front was silent.

On Walcheren Island to the north, the laft of the port blocking big guns of the Germans also fell silent.

Vlissingen [Flushing] was captured. Its garrison commander and many of his men surrendered. The rest fled to the east into a triangle menaced by a British-Canadian bridgehead broadening on the east shores of the island around the causeway from South Beveland Island.

Wake Second Landing.

Just south of the causeway, other troops of the Canadian 1st army were ferried across the mile-wide inlet and won a second foothold inside the triangle. Along the Mark river rearguard line Polish forces drove a third birdgehead across the stream. Others were won earlier in the day by Americans and British to the west.

The weather was better over the Canadian army sector, and the R. A. F. in 400 flights strafed German troops trying to form up north of the Mark river and hit remaining strongpoints on Walcheren.

British mediums bombed a bridge at Venlo, German base on the Maas in eastern Holland from which an enemy surprise offensive was launched a week ago. Supreme headquarters had no new information on gains wiping out ground won by the counter-attack, but front line dispatches said British patrols reached Meijel, one of the towns the Germans re-won, and found it apparently undefended, indicating the Germans had pulled back to their original positions.

Yanks Take 2 Villages.

In the south, Americans of the 7th army slashed forward on the north flank of the French drive which captured Baccarat, capturing the villages of Vaxainville, four miles north of Baccarat, and Reclonville, six miles north.

Medium bombers of the 9th air force attacked five bridges, two near Trier, in the Siegfried line, one at Coblenz and others near Bad Munster and Kaiserslautern. Clouds prevented observation of results.

NO MAN'S TOWN GIVES BELGIANS A NUT TO CRACK

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

EUPEN, Belgium, Nov. 3.—This border town close behind the American battle line is a political no man's land between Belgium and Germany. Its population of 16,000 is predominantly German. Its administration is Belgian again for the second time since 1918. Its population is uncertain whether in the future it will be Belgian or German.

Eupen's authorities, with the assistance of American civil affairs officers, are dealing already with a great post-war political problem, the question of what is to be done with volkdeutsch around the fringes of Germany—people who are German in blood and often in spirit and for the last four years, at least, have been German in name.

The three cantons of Eupen, Malmedy and St. With, were given to Belgium after World War I. In 1939 they had pro-German political movements and Eupen returned a pro-German majority to the city council. In 1940 these cantons were reincorporated into the reich.

People Debate Future.

Today in Eupen the Belgians are discussing what to do with the cantons after this war. Belgians from the interior often propose to deport the whole German population to avert Belgian-German friction.

The Belgian burgomaster of Eupen, Hugo Zimmerman, who speaks German, believes that will not be necessary. He has returned to his post after four years' absence in Brussels. Zimmerman said today that in conferences with Eupen's leaders he had found them "only too willing to coöperate" with the Belgian government.

After four years in which to compare the Belgian and the German administrations, he added, Eupen is largely pro-Belgian. The people have the greatest respect, he said, for the American army.

Many Pro-Nazis Flee.

The greater part of the pro-German leaders of Eupen have fled to Germany, Zimmerman continued, and those who stayed behind have been arrested and can be deprived of their citizenship and deported to Germany if found guilty of disloyalty to the Belgian government. While deportation of masses of the population is not necessary, he said, the Belgian government must re-educate them.

A major who heads a counter-intelligence detachment in Eupen describes the citizens as coöperative but reserved. Rumors of underground Nazi activity have yet to be proved.

Nevertheless, Belgian police have found it advisable to take at least 350 citizens into custody on charges connected with their behavior during the German occupation. The American authorities have arrested eight, some of whom have been released. Some were members of the Heimattreuefront [True Home Front], a pro-Nazi organization established in western Belgium before the German invasion. The principal leaders have fled to Germany.

Town Under Curfew.

Contrary to the rule in the pure Belgian parts of the country, citizens of Eupen must stay off the streets from half an hour after sunset until half an hour after sunrise.

The town is administered by Zimmerman and six members of the city council believed to be loyal. The seven other councilmen went to Germany or have been arrested. Assistance has been given to the Belgian administration by the American 1st army civil affairs detachment.

Germans in Latvia Port Doomed, Moscow Claims

LONDON, Nov. 3 (AP).—The Moscow radio said tonight the Germans had been cleared from all the Baltic states "except for a patch around Liepaja, Latvian port, which is being mopped up." Germans who fled to the port "have a futile hope" of escape, it added.

MIDDLE WEST PILOTS SHARE IN BIG AIR VICTORY

LONDON, Nov. 3 (AP).—American losses in the great air battle over Merseburg, Germany, yesterday in which 208 Nazi planes were destroyed were reduced today to 40 bombers and 10 fighters. Forty-one bombers and 28 fighters had been reported lost but a bomber and 18 fighters were found to have landed safely on the continent.

New reports credited midwest flyers with these victories:

Three in the air, Lt. Ernest C. Fiebelkorn, Lake Orion, Mich.; one in the air and two on the ground, Lt. Edward J. Moroney, 573 Glenview av., Highland Park, Ill.; one in the air, Lt. Jude G. Vear, 427 Northwest st., Wheaton, Ill.; Lt. Harold D. Mitchell, Holly, Mich.; Lt. Leonard A. Wood, Lansing, Mich.; Lt. Harold O. Hand, 10120 Avenue M, Chicago; Lt. Robert E. Welch, Brown City, Mich.; Lt. Clifford C. Gould, Pleasant Ridge, Mich.; Lt. Tunis H. Holeman, 16349 S. Park st., South Holland, Ill.; Lt. Dick D. Connelly, Ottumwa, Ia.; Lt. DeWayne J. Maxwell, 9215 Kingston av., Chicago; Lt. Harry L. Edwards, Muncie, Ind.; Lt. Robert L. Pubentz, 1216 Oakland av., Joliet, Ill.; Lt. Donald E. Chrissinger, South Pleasant, Iowa, and Lt. Jack D. Leon, Detroit, Mich.; one on the ground, Capt. Joseph C. Engelbriet, Benton Harbor, Mich.

SWEDISH TALK ABOUT LOST WAR STIRS NAZI IRE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Switzerland, Nov. 3.—German anger has been aroused over a statement made to the Swedish riksdag [parliament] by Foreign Minister Christian Gunther that "Germany has already lost the war," according to information reaching here from the reich.

A Wilhelmstrasse spokesman reportedly warned, "Such statements are most dangerous. Swedish opinion seems to have considered that Germany respected Sweden's neutrality because the Nazis found that Swedish grapes were too green; but it should be remembered that at the time the Wehrmacht swept thru the continent and also occupied Norway, Hitler guaranteed Swedish neutrality and it has been scrupulously respected to this day." Sweden, nevertheless, was forced to let German troop trains pass thru Swedish territory.

MIDWEST YANKS DECORATED FOR VALOR IN ACTION

BY ROBERT CROMIE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE AMERICAN 3D ARMY, on the Moselle River, Nov. 3.—A number of midwesterners have been decorated for their work under fire by order of Maj. Gen. John S. Wood, commander of the 4th armored division.

Three Illinoisans won silver stars for gallantry. They are Corp. Lyle Francis, 32, Du Quoin; 1st Lt. Tenho K. Makela, 29, of De Kalb, and Pvt. Ralph E. Schuman, 23, of route 7, Decatur.

Corp. Francis, a medical aid man, exposed himself to enemy fire in order to help the wounded and finally was captured while aiding German casualties. He then was recaptured by his own unit and immediately obtained fresh equipment and resumed the job of tending the wounded.

Saves Wounded Yank.

Lt. Makela advanced 200 yards under enemy fire near Juvelique, France, to give first aid to an American wounded man and then carried the latter to safety.

Pvt. Schuman helped remove burning ammunition from a blazing half-track hit by enemy fire, thus preventing injury to his comrades pinned down near by, as well as saving the vehicle from complete destruction.

A Chicagoan, Sgt. Stanley J. Gerwatowski, 27, 4825 S. Marshfield av., was awarded the bronze star for his conduct under fire which included "complete disregard for his personal safety."

The bronze star also was given to Maj. Fred T. Hammer, 29, of Hindsboro, Ill., for "high qualities of leadership and devotion to duty" while serving as executive officer of the 704th tank destroyer battalion. He is a University of Illinois graduate.

Iowan Awarded Star.

Other midwesterners honored included Corp. Edward J. Bouwman, 28, route 2, Rock Rapids, Ia., who won a bronze star for continuing his duties as a peep driver during an intense enemy shelling.

Robert Vannett, 25, of New Era, Mich., earned a silver star for "valorous action beyond the call of duty." He helped rescue three wounded comrades from a blazing tank despite fierce enemy anti-tank fire and the danger of exploding ammunition.

First Lt. Stuart F. Silas, 28, of Ishpeming, Mich., won the bronze star for courage under fire. Second Lt. Richard A. Coleman, 22, of Newton, Ind., was awarded the bronze star for stellar work in rallying a company to which he was sent as a replacement for a wounded officer.

2 NAZI SOLDIERS FOUND HITCHING RIDE TO PARIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 3.—Two tired German soldiers in dirty uniforms were captured by railroad workers today after a chase thru lines of cars in a Paris freight yard. The prisoners said they were Erich Vachter, an SS [elite guard] officer, and Otto Ropsbach, a private.

They said they had escaped at Le Mans two months ago and had lived on food stolen from freight cars. They had hoped to reach the German frontier.

The Germans seemed to have only a vague idea of the war's developments but defiantly expressed confidence that their country would win.

BRITISH BATTLE NAZIS FOR FORLI AIR FIELD, ITALY

ROME, Nov. 3 (AP).—British infantry and armor fought tonight for Forli air field, two miles southeast of the highway junction of Forli at the edge of the Po valley, while the season's most violent rains virtually halted action on the American 5th army front south of Bologna.

The British, pushing thru deep Italian mud, reached a corner of the Forli air field yesterday and by tonight had a firm hold on two sides of the field. Entrenched Nazis, supported by tanks, clung desperately to the northwest and northeast corners. Only a demolished canal bridge separated the opposing troops at the northeast corner.

German troops made several counter-attacks south of Bologna today, but the storm and fog-bound Americans maintained their positions. Many Yank forward units were unable to get a full quota of supplies because of washed out bridges over swollen streams.

GROCER ROBBED OF $295.

Jack Grossman reported to police that he was robbed of $295 yesterday in his grocery store at 6920 Halsted st. by a Negro who appeared to have a gun.

CENTURIES OF LAND RECLAIMING UNDONE BY HOLLAND FLOODS

SUPREME HDQ. ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, Nov. 3 (AP).—The war torn map of Holland will have to be redrawn when peace returns, for flooding is rapidly undoing the work of centuries in winning the lowlands from the sea.

Big Walcheren Island, one of the oldest diked and most important crop lands, has been two-thirds lost as a result of the hard necessity of allied aerial attack which breached the dikes. German defensive flooding has done nearly as much damage to adjacent Beveland.

But of even greater consequence is the possibility that final liberation will disclose the loss of the entire 40 mile long, 20 mile wide reclaimed belt from the lower Maas and Dutch Rhine to Ijssel Meer, formerly the Zuider Zee, thru Rotterdam and Amsterdam. The heart of Holland and most of Amsterdam and Rotterdam are well below sea level.

45 SEAMEN MISSING AS FREIGHTER SINKS IN THE ST. LAWRENCE

MANTANE, Que., Nov. 3 (AP).—Forty-five merchant seamen were missing today after a British freighter sank in the St. Lawrence river near Mantane. With the cause of the sinking obscure, there was speculation that German submarines had again penetrated the St. Lawrence.

The ship went down last night after two explosions. Seventeen survivors, who rowed across the St. Lawrence for six hours in the only lifeboat known to have left the vessel, landed at near-by Petite Matane this morning. The St. Lawrence is 30 miles wide here.

The ship was outward bound. The crew, one of the survivors said, totaled 62.

That's the sixth hit and run case we've had this month.

BLUM REPORTED IN GOOD HEALTH IN NAZI PRISON

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Nov. 3.—Socialist circles in Paris report that the latest news received from Leon Blum, leader of their party and former premier, date back to the end of August. He was in "good health and full of confidence in the future."

Blum is alone in his place of confinement "somewhere in Germany." Georges Mandel, former minister of the interior, was his companion in detention for a long time until he was brought back to France early in July last as a "hostage" and was killed by Joseph Darnand's militia.

Other sources report that Paul Reynaud and Edouard Daladier, both former premiers; Gen. Maurice Gamelin, former commander in chief; Leon Jouhaux, labor union leader; Jean Borotra, who for a time was Marshal Petain's sports minister; and Col. Casimir de la Rocque, leader of the French Social party, are interned in a German town.

Plea Denied

Legal efforts of Paysoff Tinkoff, a tax accountant at 6359 N. Clark st., to force Northwestern university to admit his son, Paysoff Jr., 14, as a student in the college of liberal arts, met a setback yesterday when Superior Judge John P. McGoorty denied his motion for an injunction. The court ruled that the case should be heard in a court of law, instead of chancery, and Tinkoff said he would ask that it be sent to such a court.

EUROPE TO TAKE NEARLY ALL OF SWEDEN'S PULP

New York, Nov. 3 (AP).—Europe, including Great Britain, is planning to take most of Sweden's paper products and raw wood pulp, indicating the United States will get little help in her present paper shortage from that source, the American Newspaper Publishers' association said today.

"The vast needs of all Europe for paper convince Washington officials that this country will get little wood pulp from Sweden and other Scandinavian countries for some time after the European war ends," the association said.

"The British require most of the stockpile of wood pulp now in Sweden and, even if the United States got what was left, it would not be of any appreciable benefit," it added.

The Swedish and other Scandinavian supplies for Britain and Europe would be in addition to continuing shipments from this country, the study showed.

The report urged continued support for waste paper collection and pulpwood cutting campaigns in this country.

MOSCOW, Nov. 3 (AP).—Moscow papers published a Tass news agency dispatch from Lublin today saying a Polish court had imposed the death sentence in the first of 90 cases of alleged traitors during the German occupation. The first convicted was a former chief of a Lublin transit camp for Poles being sent to Germany as prisoners. He signed a confession admitting he tortured women and children among Poles attempting to escape German persecution.

NAVY RETIRES SOUTH PACIFIC'S PBM PLANES

HONO

HOW U. S. PILOTS BEAT OFF JAP RAID ON FLEET

Tribune Man Sees Attack in Philippines.

BY THOMAS MORROW.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE PACIFIC FLEET OFF THE PHILIPPINES, Oct. 29 [Delayed].—About 24 Japanese airmen, jarred into activity by American carrier plane smashes at shipping and air fields in the Manila bay area, made two futile visits to this naval task force off the Philippines. Two enemy planes penetrated the air fighter protective screen. Eighteen others were shot into the sea by patrol pilots of this ship.

The bugle blare of "general quarters" sent the gunners scrambling to battle stations shortly before noon.

"Japanese planes 30 miles from the ship," the craft's loud speaker announced.

As all scanned the sky the ship's planes reported a dog fight with the Japanese and that one Jap plane was down. The loud speaker said enemy planes were approaching closer, then "Heads up, they're circling the ship!"

Dives at Carrier.

One Jap fighter plane, damaged by a patrol pilot, came out of the sun, its engine smoking, and started a dive at a sister carrier.

The chatter of more machine guns joined the roar of the larger weapons. As it closed on the carrier, the enemy plane was outlined in the black bursts of the large shells, the red and yellow of tracer bullets and lighter anti-aircraft weapons. Then the plane burst into flames, and crashed into the sea. The watchers cheered.

Guns swung upward as a Japanese dive bomber 10,000 feet above the ship dropped its nose for a dive. Vicious anti-aircraft fire began to find him. The pilot pulled up and headed for home. Our fighters barked at his heels.

Driven Off by Fighters.

The second attack came about sundown. This time the Japs were driven off by our fighters before they got within sight of our carriers. Two Zeros were shot down by Lt. [j. g.] Walter J. Sheen, who lived in Waukegan, Ill., for four years. His wife, Mildred, lives on Rt. 2, Des Plaines, Ill.

"Ens. William F. Short of Princeton, N. J., and I ran into four Japs," Sheen reported. "I scared one off Bill's tail and discovered two on mine. We started going around in circles.

"I got above and behind one of the flyers and got in a deflection shot. The front of his plane fell off and he splashed. The second guy cut in in front of me. I don't know why. He was just going that way, I guess. I gave him a burst and kept on giving him bursts until he rolled over and burned. Bill got the other two."

He was asked if he planned to dedicate the planes to his wife and their baby which is expected before Christmas.

Dedicates Planes to Flyers.

"No," he said. "These were to the memory of two boys killed in training who never got a whack at the Japs, Johnny Bishops of Delta, Utah, and Earl Schilling of Los Angeles, Cal."

Lt. Comm. Leonard J. Check of Minot, N. D., was champion of the day. He sent four Jap planes down in the second attack. Ens. Seaborn R. Hubbard, Dallas, Tex., was a close second. He accounted for three.

Elsewhere in the Philippines, American pilots shot down four Jap planes and destroyed five on the ground. They probably destroyed many others at Clark and Nichols air fields in the Manila area. Our bombers dropped two 1,000 pound bombs oh two cruisers in Cavite harbor.

Japs Empty Gas Tanks.

Pilots said that the Japanese apparently are not leaving any gasoline in parked planes so that they will not burn when they are hit. They also reported 150 planes were sighted at Clark field and 50 at Nichols field, indicating that the enemy is moving planes to the Philippines from the home land and the coast of China.

Lt. [j. g.] Joseph Geraghty, 1026 Forest av., Evanston, Ill., was given credit for one bomb hit on a cruiser, Lt. Dan Kalus of Cudahy, Wis., was in a dog fight, and Ens. Paul Holland Jr. of Brighton, Ill., got a burst into a Japanese fighter which he believes went down. Unfortunately, no one could verify it.

Lt. [j. g.] Norman C. Draper, Knoxville, Tenn., after downing an enemy plane and sharing a second with another pilot, ran out of ammunition. The other pilots said he had shot at a third Japanese plane with his .38 calibre revolver before starting home, but Draper denied the story.

R.A.F. MOSQUITOS BOMB BERLIN IN NIGHT ATTACK

LONDON, Nov. 4 [Saturday]—(AP).—British Mosquito bombers raided Berlin during the night, an air ministry bulletin said today. More than 1,000 British bombers dropped 4,000 tons of explosives on Duesseldorf, Ruhr armaments city, Thursday night. The planes left large fires, the air ministry said, and destroyed nine planes. One target was the Rheinmetal Bersig plant, armament works. British Mosquito bombers attacked the German rail center of Osnabruck. The R. A. F. loss in these operations was 21 bombers. During October, American and British planes flew a combined total of 200,000 sorties. The royal air force hit the continent with 67,200 tons of bombs and the U. S. 8th and 15th air force bombers dropped 57,700 tons.

B-29'S BATTER RANGOON; USE BASES IN INDIA

Washington, D. C., Nov. 3 (AP).—Super Fortresses carrying record shattering bomb loads and for the first time working in a mission with smaller bombers, hit the Japanese in Burma today with results described as good. The target was the big railroad yards at Rangoon, where cargoes are transshipped from sea to rail.

[The Tokyo radio said last night that approximately 100 bombers and fighters, including more than 30 B-29s, attacked the air fields and suburbs of Rangoon. The broadcast claimed that one Super Fortress was damaged and that three fighters were destroyed.]

Take Off from India.

The giant planes, which usually operate from bases in China, took off from India on what for the B-29s was a short haul to Rangoon—perhaps no more than 700 or 800 miles. The Super Fortresses, a 20th bomber command bulletin said, "carried the largest bomb load per aircraft so far known to have been lifted in aerial warfare."

[The heaviest bomb loads so far reported are for the British four engined Lancaster, a plane comparable in size with the American B-17 and B-24. The Lancaster can lift more than eight tons.]

The bulletin said there were no losses of B-29s on this mission "as a result of enemy action." The attack was in daylight.

The "substantial force" of Super Fortresses made the strike in coordination with units of the eastern air command, the bulletin said. That command includes the 10th air force based in India, indicating that bombers of the Flying Fortress or Liberator types may have gone along on the mission.

Recapture Burma Road City.

CHUNGKING, China, Nov. 3 (AP).—The Chinese campaigning to reopen a land supply route from India recaptured the Burma Road bastion of Lungling today and extras on Chungking's streets proclaimed the triumphant news.

Fighting had swirled around the strategic city for four months. The Chinese launched an offensive to retake it Sunday. The enemy remnants were reported in retreat southwestward tonight, with the victorious Chinese in pursuit.

Lungling, in Yunnan province 100 miles across the mountains from the allies' North Burma base at Myitkyina, was the last major enemy strongpoint barring a junction of the Ledo Road out of India with the old Burma Road in southwest China.

Clear Jap Road Blocks.

SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND HDQ., Kandy, Ceylon, Nov. 3 (AP).—Troops of the 5th Indian division driving southeastward from Tiddim, in northwestern Burma, have cleared Japanese road blocks 12 miles from Tiddim and are forming a three-pronged attack on enemy positions at the so-called "vital corner" of the Tiddim-Fort White road, it was announced today.

Deserter Charges Nazis Take Up Shoes at Night

WITH U. S. 2D ARMORED DIVISION, WESTERN FRONT, Nov. 3 (AP).—An Austrian deserter told an American officer today that the Germans were taking shoes from their foreign soldiers at night to prevent desertions. The shivering Austrian walked into American lines in his stocking feet and surrendered, saying he was "tired of it all."

JAPS RING KWEILIN; CHINESE HOPEFUL OF ENDURING LONG SIEGE

CHUNGKING, Nov. 3 (AP).—Kweilin, a potential stumbling block for the Japanese effort to seal off free China from American landings along the coast, virtually was encircled tonight. The Chinese high command admitted that one Japanese column had swung around to a position six miles west of this city in northeastern Kwangsi province while another, moving around from the east, was 18 miles southwest of Kweilin. The enemy arc was anchored north of the city.

Japanese on the east were only two miles from the city, and on the north they threw in two tank supported attacks near the railway station in the suburbs which the Chinese said were thrown back six miles. Despite these developments, an army spokesman appeared confident Kweilin could endure a long seize.

U. S. Liberator bombers sank a Japanese destroyer yesterday and left a large transport listing in the South China sea.

MAJOR TELLS 2 DRAWBACKS OF WAR IN JUNGLE

The rigors of jungle warfare were described yesterday by Maj. Lawrence C. Buskett, formerly a classified advertising salesman for THE TRIBUNE, now a veteran of 33 months overseas service. He is home on sick leave visiting his wife, Harriet, 599 Central av., Highland Park.

Maj. Buskett, who entered active service as a second lieutenant in Feb., 1941, said that the rain and the difficulty of seeing one's enemies were two of the worst features of jungle war. He took part in the Guadalcanal and Bougainville campaigns and was the organizer of the first tank attack on the latter island. He has been awarded the combat infantry badge, the bronze star for meritorious service, and the American defense ribbon.

He said that the Japanese rarely surrender, but he hoped that the bombing of Tokio might weaken their will to fight. Maj. Buskett was surprised at the shortage of cigarets here. There's no such lack in the Pacific, he declared.

FRANCO TIGHTENS RULE IN SPAIN, SAY DIPLOMATS IN U. S.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 3 (AP).—American and foreign diplomats here confirmed today that Generalissimo Franco has tightened his control in Spain as an aftermath of recent disturbances in the northern provinces.

The possibility of a return of the monarchy has thus been delayed, said an informed source who, withholding the use of his name, reported Franco's aim to be the monarchy's reestablishment.

[A Reuter dispatch from Madrid stated that Gen. JAPANESE LAND MORE TROOPS TO STOP MacARTHUR

Seek to Avert Disaster in Battle for Leyte.

GEN. MacARTHUR'S HDQ., Philippines, Nov. 4 [Saturday]—(AP).—Under slashing American aerial attack, the Japanese army landed strong mechanized reënforcements and began its first potentially formidable attempt yesterday to avert disaster on Leyte Island.

The Japanese counter-attack, which began with an attempt to break out of the Ormoc trap, presages a flareup in the battle for Leyte.

The Japanese suddenly halted their ostensible withdrawal from Leyte and shot large new forces into the battle. These troops moved north toward Carigara bay.

Planes Attack Convoy.

The reënforcements landed at Ormoc Wednesday night and Thursday morning from four large transports and escorting destroyers.

Yanks of the 24th division advanced five miles westward from captured Carigara. They were two miles east of Pinamopoan, northward anchor of the road from Ormoc.

Along Carigara bay, the Yanks brought up heavy artillery to bottle Ormoc valley, the only northward escape route from Ormoc bay.

These guns now cover the opening of Ormoc valley at Carigara bay.

Apparently timed with the new thrust on the west coast the Japanese air force last night intensified what the bulletin described as "harassing" raids over Leyte.

35 Japanese Air Raids.

From dusk until daylight, 35 low level bombing and strafing runs were made on airfields and dock areas.

The assaults provoked an American pyrotechnical display which caused interested spectators to duck as a fusillade from every kind of weapon—from .30 caliber machine guns to heavy ack-ack—swept the air at roof top level.

One American merchantman at the dock burst into flames when hit. The fire was extinguished. Explosions in a small ammunition dump added to the din. The Japanese lost five planes to anti-aircraft fire and five to interceptors. One American plane was lost.

Bomb Troop Train.

American planes bombed a Japanese troop train on Luzon, main Philippine island, among widespread attacks on Philippine and Southwest Pacific targets, Gen. MacArthur announced in a supplementary bulletin.

Five Japanese planes were destroyed aground on Cebu Island, when hit by medium bombers on patrol. Cebu is believed to be the staging base for Japanese reënforcements sent to Leyte.

Heavy units bombed Alicante airdrome, Negros Island, hitting supply and personnel areas. Five of an unspecified number of Japanese interceptors were shot down, and four American bombers were lost.

NIMITZ NAMES NEW ADMIRAL TO POST IN PACIFIC

HONOLULU, T. H., Nov. 3 (AP).—Appointment of Rear Adm. Walden L. Ainsworth of Wonalancet, N. H., as commander of cruisers and destroyers, Pacific fleet, was announced today by Adm. Nimitz. He succeeds Rear Adm. James L. Kauffman of Miami Beach, Fla., who has been assigned to another sea command.

Ainsworth, a descendant of Jacob Walden who served with John Paul Jones in the Revolutionary war, commanded a cruiser division in most of the recent combat operations in the western Pacific. He participated in every major naval action in the South Pacific except one since December, 1942.

Ainsworth was a gunnery officer aboard the steamship American convoying troops to France in World War I. He commanded a destroyer squadron and neutrality patrol in the Caribbean area in 1940 and 1941. Later, he did convoy escort duty in the North Atlantic.

REDS PREDICT MME. CHIANG TO SEEK DIVORCE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 3.—According to the Communist news sheet, The Week, a juicy scandal is brewing in China. The publication said today:

"A public action for divorce brought by Mme. Chiang Kai-shek against the marshal as a means of registering and emphasizing the final break between him and the powerful families with which she is most intimately connected, may be the early next step in the development of the Chinese crisis which finally broke into the open with the recall of Gen. Joseph Stilwell."

The Week also predicts that Chiang's success in getting the American general out will lead him to intensification of preparations for civil war against the Chinese Communists plus further diminution of the war effort against Japan.

a raid by Lightnings on four freighters and six destroyers and destroyer escorts bringing reënforcements into Ormoc yesterday. Two freighters were sunk. Other Lightnings shot down 26 Jap planes guarding the ships.

The 26 plane loss is the largest ever inflicted on the Japs in one day by the 5th air force fighter group. It brings the total shot down by this group, the famed 49th, to 530. The group is the first in the world to pass the 500 mark. Lt. Millbene Mather of Cedar Falls, Ia., shot down the 500th plane.

Lt. Robert Campbell, a Chicago pilot who joined the group only three weeks ago and met Zeros for the first time over Ormoc, downed one plane. Capt. William Drier, of St. Louis, Mo., was high with three, his first in 22 months of combat flying. Lt. Albert Meschino, 833 S. Paulina st., Chicago, set one plane afire, but a companion finished it off and thus gets the credit.

U. S. FLYER WINS GAME OF DEATH TAG OVER LEYTE

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

IN LEYTE VALLEY, Leyte Island, Nov. 3.—Lt. James Powers of Crawford, Neb., was flying in his Cub plane at 2,000 feet, his eyes toward the ground as he hunted Jap concentrations. There was a clatter of machine guns. Powers looked up. A Zero was coming out of a dive directly overhead.

Powers dived straight down. The light plane's maximum speed is supposed to be 10 miles an hour but the Cub was traveling about 165 miles an hour. Looking up Powers saw the Zero join two others. They headed away apparently thinking the Cub had been shot down.

When Powers pulled the plane out of its dive barely above some coconut trees, the Zeros came back. One by one they made passes. The lieutenant turned and twisted. After about five minutes of this death tag game the Zeros gave up and left. Powers came in on the strip of highway used as an air field.

GERMAN TERROR REIGN REPORTED INSIDE NORWAY

LONDON, Nov. 3 (AP).—A great new German terror campaign to crush resistance in Norway was reported by the Norwegian government. A government spokesman said the Germans were making mass arrests to begin an attempted "crushing blow" to Norwegian patriots.

The Norwegians were told that "by careful thought, cool calculation, and discipline we shall smash the attack." The warning said it was "urgently necessary" that all patriots who might be caught should immediately go into hiding.

GEN. LEESE NAMED HEAD OF ALLIED ARMY IN SOUTHEAST ASIA

LONDON, Nov. 3 (AP).—Lt. Gen. Oliver W. H. Leese tonight was appointed commander of the newly organized 11th army group which includes some American troops formerly commanded by Gen. Stilwell and will operate in southeast Asia under the direction of Adm. Louis Mountbatten. Leese has headed the British 8th army in Italy since Jan. 5.

Gen. Oliver Leese.

A group contains more than one army, but the only part of the 11th group so far identified publicly is the British 14th army, now operating in Burma. The American and Chinese forces in northern Burma, who were directed by Gen. Stilwell prior to his recall to Washington, are a part of the 14th army and, therefore, will be under Leese's over-all generalship.

Lt. Gen. Richard L. McCreery, 46, was appointed Leese's successor as 8th army commander.

STILWELL BACK; SHUNS NEWSMEN AND GETS LEAVE

Washington, D. C., Nov. 3 (AP).—Gen. Stilwell reached Washington from China this afternoon, denied himself to reporters, and arranged to take a short leave of absence.

An announcement that Stilwell would have nothing to say publicly concerning his recall from the far east was made by the war department.

"Gen. Stilwell arrived in Washington this afternoon by air and after conferring with war department officials will take advantage of a short leave of absence," the announcement said. "Gen. Stilwell stated he had no public statement to make and therefore would not give any interviews to press or radio."

MARINE'S DONALD DUCK VOICE HARANGUES JAPS

PELELIU, Palau Islands, Nov. 1 [Delayed] (AP).—The Japanese didn't know it, but when Ralph Teodosio Soncuya crept up to the slits of concrete bunkers during the savage Peleliu battles and harangued them to surrender they were hearing a voice like Donald Duck's.

JAPS' NAVY NOW 5TH RATE, SAYS ADM. MITSCHER

Home, He Sees Pacific War Slow-Up.

San Diego, Cal., Nov. 3 (AP).—Japan has been reduced to a fifth rate naval power by the recent battles off Formosa and the Philippines, Vice Adm. Marc A. Mitscher, commander of task force 58, said today on his return to the mainland.

The admiral also said Japanese naval aviation had practically been eliminated. He added, however, that despite the land, air, and sea victories in the Pacific the war there would slow down instead of speed up because of the supply problem.

Statistics released for the first time on the activities of task force 58 credited the carrier group with destroying 4,425 Japanese planes and sinking or damaging 795 naval and merchant ships from January 29 to October 27.

7 Jap Carriers Sunk.

The first high ranking naval officer to return home since the naval victory in the Philippines, Mitscher said at least seven Japanese carriers were sunk in the engagement.

"All they have left is a few battleships, a couple of major carriers, and some baby type carriers," Mitscher said. "Despite Japanese claims of great damage to our fleet, particularly in the engagement off Formosa, not one American carrier was hit there."

He described the Formosa battle as the toughest of the war and the toughest he ever experienced. "They made it a bit difficult for a while," he added.

American flyers held an 8 to 1 edge over the Japanese in combat, Mitscher said, while the Japanese losses in the Philippine-Formosa battles from combat and operational duties exceeded ours 4 to 1.

Gives Figures on Sinkings.

Detailing task force 58 successes, Mitscher said that in the January-October period the score showed:

Navy ships: Sunk 88, probably sunk 25, damaged 89, for a 202 total.

Merchant ships: Sunk 282, probably sunk 78, damaged 233, for a 593 total.

The merchant tonnage was 1,425,000 tons, which the admiral termed a conservative figure.

Aircraft destroyed by his task force included 2,568 shot down in the air and 1,857 destroyed on the ground. These totals Mitscher also described as conservative because they do not include planes on the ground bombed but not observed burning.

Army Planes Guard Japan.

Mitscher said the Japanese navy had been given the task of providing protection to its island outposts and the army air force the job of guarding the homeland.

"The Japanese homeland is now pretty wide open," said Mitscher, "but our supply problem is getting terrific. When I say the war will slow down in the Pacific until the supply problem is solved I do not mean it is going to stop. People at home have no idea of the effort involved getting supplies 10,000 miles out in the Pacific."

Mitscher, a native of Hillsboro, Wis., said he was on leave to get away from routine but that his health was not a factor.

U. S. AND CHINA IN FULL ACCORD, SAYS CHIANG AID

CHUNGKING, China, Nov. 3 (AP).—T. V. Soong, Chinese foreign minister, declared today that China and the United States have reached "complete agreement" on closer military, political, and economic coöperation and denied reports that the United States had exerted pressure on China to settle her communist problem.

In the first detailed statement from a Chinese government official since the recall of Gen. Stilwell as commander in chief of American forces in the China-Burma-India theater, Soong said the recall was "entirely a question of personality"—that Stilwell and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek simply did not like each other and could not work together.

"The recall of Gen. Stilwell was entirely a question of personality and has nothing to do with any difference of policy between China and the United States," the foreign minister said in a written statement, which he later supplemented in a talk with foreign correspondents.

Cites Hurley, Nelson Mission.

"On the contrary," he said, "when Maj. Gen. Patrick Hurley and Mr. Donald Nelson, as personal representatives of President Roosevelt, came to confer with my government on closer military, political, and economic coöperation, complete agreement was reached between us.

Soong acknowledged that the matter of coöperation between Chiang's government and the Chinese Communists had been discussed at the meeting in Chungking, but he said the discussion was held in the most friendly manner. The matter, he said, was an internal problem of China and was respected by the Americans as such.

In discussing what he called "l'affaire Stilwell," Soong also denied that there had been any disagreement between Chungking and Stilwell over the campaign in Burma. Soong said the dislike between Stilwell and Chiang had existed from the first year of Stilwell's stay in China.

Hail Wedemeyer Choice.

The foreign minister said the Chinese welcomed the appointment of Maj. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer as Stilwell's successor in China, and that the impending return of Nelson to Chungking under Chiang's urging injected a hopeful note into the situation.

Nelson's purpose in coming to China, the foreign minister asserted, was to find practical means whereby China, in coöperation with the allies, could contribute a fuller share in the task of beating Japan as quickly as possible.

The resignation of United States Ambassador Clarence E. Gauss was in no way connected with the Stilwell episode, Soong declared.

U. S. PROPOSES PLAN TO RULE WORLD'S FLYING

Dumbarton Oaks Scheme Used as Model.

BY FRANK HUGHES.

The delegation of the United States presented yesterday to the international civil aviation conference a plan to set up global air control machinery patterned after the world security plan devised at the recent Dumbarton Oaks conference.

Under the plan of the American delegation, an international aviation assembly would be created, with each contracting state having one vote. In addition, there would be a 15 member executive council having two members appointed by the United States, two by soviet Russia, two by the British commonwealth of nations, and one each by Brazil, China, and France.

All Continents Represented.

The remaining six members of the council would be selected with a view to assuring that all other major areas of the world are represented. Three of the six would be selected to represent continental Europe, two would represent the western hemisphere, and one would represent Asia and Africa.

Soviet Russia, which is assigned two seats on the executive council, is not represented at the international conference under way in the Stevens hotel.

Under the proposed plan a majority of the total voting strength of the council would control actions by that group, which would be the working agency and clearing house of the international aviation assembly.

Council Would Settle Disputes.

The plan also provides that disputes between member states would be settled by a majority of the total possible votes in the executive council.

States discontented with the decisions of the executive council would be granted leave to appeal to the chamber for summary procedure of the permanent court of international justice or to take their case before a board of arbitration.

Outside of the makeup of the executive council, which is expected to bring forth extended if not bitter discussion before the conference, interest in the American delegation's plan centered in an article that would mark a radical change in American policy, if the convention is adopted here and approved by the United States senate.

Proposes Innocent Transit.

At present, foreign commercial aircraft are permitted to land in the United States under bilateral agreements with the foreign countries involved. Under the proposed plan, each contracting state of the international aviation assembly would grant the right to fly across its territory without landing and the right to make technical stops in its territory to the aircraft of the other contracting states.

At the conference, this arrangement is known as "freedom of innocent transit." The article covering it provides that any state may withhold permission to fly across its territory to an air transport enterprise of another state where substantial ownership or control is vested in nationals of a state not a party to this convention.

This provision presumably is designed to protect the contracting states from "dummy" air transport enterprises set up by states not affiliated with the assembly.

Major Committees Organize.

Yesterday's sessions of the international conference, which has drawn delegates and advisers from more than 50 allied and neutral nations, were devoted chiefly to organization of committees to draft recommendations.

Most important of these is the committee on a multilateral aviation convention and international aeronautical body, headed by John Martin, co-delegate from the Union of South Africa. Subcommittees were named to consider the matters of international organization, principles of air navigation and principles of air transport.

Other major committees that began work are to consider technical standards and procedures, provisional air routes, and recommendations concerning an interim council to carry on until the end of the war.

Assistant Secretary of State Adolf A. Berle Jr., who is president of the conference, held the first of daily press conferences intended to give background to the 90 newspaper reporters who are covering the conference. The meeting is the first international affair of the kind which has admitted the press to plenary sessions and to meetings of the principal committees.

SELLOUT OF U. S. AIR RIGHTS AT PARLEY FEARED

but deliberately refusing to pledge the release of these same aircraft to American air transport companies on equal terms.

Developed by Americans.

3. Attempting to turn over to all foreign countries gratis the "great range of aids to navigation and flying" which were developed by the United States army, navy, and industry during the war. Berle deleted this statement from the text of his speech after it was mimeographed in Chicago and after a stormy session of the American delegation and the threat of a protest from the American joint chiefs of staff, it was learned here.

The spokesmen who expressed alarm over America's air future unless the New Deal position is altered hold that control of the skies is the "key to world peace," just as control of the seas meant the key to peace in former years.

They say that Harry Hopkins, confidant and chief adviser to the President, is behind the scheme to set up an international air covenant that would give Great Britain control of the skies after the war, just as she has held control of the sea up to the present. Hopkins, they say, looks forward to the life of an English country gentleman after the war.

No Reciprocal Rights.

America originated 80 per cent of the world's aerial freight and passenger traffic before the war and should furnish that much or more after peace, the spokesmen assert. Pre-war commercial agreements with 60 foreign nations were made by one American air transport company, Pan-American. None of these required the United States to grant a single reciprocal right to the foreigners.

In only five instances—those of the United Kingdom, Canada, France, and a couple of South American countries—was the state department, which might have had to make diplomatic concessions, even called in.

Berle, who takes his orders from the White House, is prepared to junk this advantageous American method, they say, and to "give America's shirt away" in a spirit of international camaradarie. They declare that the foreign nations—England, France, Holland, and Russia among them—would have to permit American aircraft to tap their countries in order to bring in American dollars, American travelers, and American trade. We do not have to make reciprocal arrangements to get the air rights, they say.

Foreign Use of Bases.

Those who protest Berle's policy say that he proposes, thru "freedom of innocent passage," to allow foreigners to use our Hawaiian and Alaskan air bases, where no foreign aircraft were permitted before the war because of military precaution. These bases are essential to trans-Pacific air travel, and would enable Canada and Great Britain eventually to grab off that traffic.

The British, Canadian, Dutch, Chinese, and others pay lower wages to pilots and ground crews, lower wages to aircraft factory workers, and have lower operating costs than do Americans. Given a few years, the spokesmen say, these foreign nations could run American transport companies out of the Pacific air if they had access to Hawaii and the Aleutians. They also point to the military danger of foreign craft, which may be owned and operated by enemy nations under the title of an "innocent" and peaceful smaller power.

New Deal Policy.

The air concessions granted to foreign nations in the Berle statement follow a New Deal policy that has existed thruout the war, it is said. British operators are flying American Clipper planes from Baltimore to London—"lend-lease planes and lend-lease gas"—and have hauled 20 to 30 American congressmen to England free of charge, according to these spokesmen.

Canada refused to let Americans establish air lines over her soil, so the United States gave the Canadians the planes and allowed them to do their own flying in American craft, the spokesmen say.

Harry Hopkins, they assert, made the original promise to the British of American transport planes in quantity. The British, however, as soon as North Africa was conquered, froze out the already established Pan-American Airways Line by military edict and grounded it. Then the British military commander permitted British Overseas Airways to establish a new route from London, thru Gibraltar, and Tunis to Egypt. This was flown with American aircraft, it was said, presumably on lend-lease.

The excuse was given to Americans that this was an "alternate route" from London to Moscow, but the Russians apparently did not know about it. They refused to let the British fly from Egypt to Moscow, so the line terminated there.

The spokesmen here said they recognized a familiar theme in the speech of Viscount Swinton, head of the United Kingdom delegation, at the Chicago conference yesterday. Swinton said that before the war the United States and the United Kingdom agreed to run the trans-Atlantic service on a "fifty-fifty basis." He also said that each nation should have "a fair share of its external air traffic."

The officials here presume that the British intend to regard Americans flying from the United States to England as American traffic, but that these same persons on the return trip would be British traffic and therefore would be flown by British air lines.

A photostatic copy of the journal of the British house of lords displayed in private circles here today and dated Oct. 12 quoted the remarks of Lord Rothermere in discussing the Chicago air conference.

Tells of Russian Position.

"What policy are the government going to lay down there?" Lord Rothermere asked. "I understand that another great country of the world is not going to be represented there. Russia has received an invitation but she is not going to the conference. That is greatly to be regretted by everybody. It would be a great advantage if she took part in such a conference on civil aviation. Perhaps, after the Chicago conference, there will be another one in Moscow."

It was said here that if Russia's refusal was known in England on Oct. 12, it should have been known by the American state department, which issued invitations to the conference, before Oct. 30, which is the day the state department says it received the notice.

Officials here say they presumed that Russia was sitting back waiting for the international air conference to decide America's air future, whereupon the strongly nationalistic soviet would take the necessary steps to protect its advantages.

The spokesmen said that they have been informed of some of the machinations which went on in closed conferences of the American delegation in Chicago yesterday.

Direct from President.

Berle's original speech said the United States felt that "a condition under which one country controls, thru ownership or otherwise, the internal aviation of another is fundamentally unsound." When some of the American party questioned this statement, Berle reportedly said that it was not up for discussion because it came direct from President Roosevelt.

It was pointed out to Berle, according to this report, that the state department already had prompted Pan-American Airways to take over and operate some air lines of foreign nations in South America because of fear that the Nazis would get control of them.

Berle then reportedly was asked if he wanted to label American state department policy as "fundamentally unsound" and own up to a mistake. He then agreed to delete this phrase and the final draft read "each country should, so far as possible, come to control and direct its own international air lines."

Part of Common Heritage.

Also in the original draft was the statement that the navigation and flying aids which were a product of the war "should be made available to the world. For ourselves, we ask neither monopoly nor compensation, but rather bring them to this table as a part of the common heritage."

This statement it was said, was excised after much argument and upon threat of some military men to appeal to the joint chiefs of staff to issue a statement of protest if it was retained. It also was reported that Berle attempted to keep copies of his speech from the hands of the rest of the delegation before he delivered it but was forestalled by some of the other members.

When the delegates, in secret conference, came to the paragraph which said that America is prepared to release civil transports used by the army on nondiscriminatory terms "to those countries which recognize, as do we, the right of friendly intercourse," he was asked to include American air transport companies in the phrase.

According to the reports here, he refused to do this because he felt it would offend the foreign countries to mention the United States or its interests by name.

So Much "Poppycock."

The spokesmen here said that the fear he expressed of offending any foreign nation and the fear that the British would create a "bloc" against America if an international air conference was not called, is so much "poppycock."

They said Americans can fly to any place in the world except India under the commercial arrangements that prevailed before the war, and can use French West African and Algerian ports as an entry to Europe if Britain tries to freeze the United States out. The only reason for crossing India would be to get traffic there, they said, and that would be a small factor in world air trade.

Visitor from Pacific

The Rt. Rev. Walter H. Baddeley as he visited Mrs. James South in Chicago yesterday.

The Rt. Rev. Walter Hubert Baddeley, Anglican bishop of Melanesia, yesterday met Mrs. James South, 5116 W. Lake st., whose son, Edward, was confirmed by the bishop at Guadalcanal on Oct. 1. The service at which a dozen American service men were confirmed was the last episcopal act of Bishop Baddeley before boarding a plane for the United States. Edward South entered the service before Pearl Harbor and was a member of one of the contingents to land on Guadalcanal. Wilfred, a twin brother of Edward, is a member of the army in the South Pacific. Bishop Baddeley addressed a union missionary meeting yesterday afternoon at the Chicago temple under auspices of the United Council of Church Women.

PROPOSES TO SPAN WORLD AIRWAYS WITH BRITISH PLANE POOL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 3.—A scheme to span world airways with British planes drawn from a national pool was advocated today by Brig. Gen. A. C. Critchley, director general of the British Overseas Airways corporation. Under the plan, public or private companies would charter planes they need from the reservoir which, it is proposed, should be directed by the British corporation.

Critchley envisaged the possibility of the pool being used also by dominion and foreign air line operators. Its supporters said the pool would have an advantage as to national security. Private enterprise would be free to use planes, while the government would retain control.

It is also proposed to create a central repair organization for British air liners. The combined organization, it was said, would ensure proper standards of safety, efficiency and improve services.

GROPER'S PROGRESS.

"No country has devised a permanent way, a permanent solution, of giving work to people in the depression periods as well as in the boom periods. The only method devised so far that seemed to give 100 per cent of relief, or nearly so, is the method of going in for armaments, putting the unemployed to work manufacturing goods which have no permanent capital value—goods which do not reproduce wealth. Of course, everybody knows that, while that may work for a year, or two years, or a few years, it is by no means the permanent solution of the problem. We are all groping and trying to find a way of doing it without the use of armaments."

That is a statement made by President Roosevelt at a press conference on June 28, 1938. At the time the drop in business, which started in the fall of 1937, and which was described by Harry Hopkins in a report as the fastest of record, had then been in progress for nine months. Before making the quoted statement Mr. Roosevelt had told the reporters that there was then "more unemployment than ever before in history—in world history." He said he was blindly groping for ways to put people to work, but hadn't found any way of doing it except by war expenditures.

Note that Mr. Roosevelt had already been in office six years. His second term was half over and still he could see no way of creating jobs. This is the man who asks to have his term of office extended to 16 years!

That in a war there would be a job for everybody was no new discovery. The trick is to have full employment without having a war, or getting ready for a war. Mr. Roosevelt, after serving one term and half of another one, didn't know how it was done.

What has Mr. Roosevelt to offer for the postwar period that he confessed he couldn't furnish in the pre-war period? And if he couldn't do it in his first eight years, can it be assumed that he can in the next four? Is the problem going to be easier?

There were more than 10 million out of work when the President, dismayed and confused, said that there was just no answer for his depression except boondoggling, or, as he put it, expenditures "for goods which have no capital value." But, after the war, there will be not 10 million out of work, but 20 million. There will be the 10 million jobless who plagued Mr. Roosevelt's first two administrations, plus the 10 million who have since become old enough to go to work.

The biggest peace time problem for the United States is to find work for 20 million people. Roosevelt couldn't find enough jobs to go around when only half as many new ones were required as will shortly be needed. It should be clear that America's first step in post-war planning is to get rid of Mr. Roosevelt.

The country has had many periods of hard times. None lasted so long as the one the war brought to a close. The reason for the persistence of such serious distress that after six years Mr. Roosevelt was compelled to say that "unemployment is the worst in history—in world history" was that Roosevelt wouldn't let the country recover by the methods from which full recovery had been realized before.

A few months ago a study on tax reform was made under the sponsorship of the committee for economic development. Those making the study and signing the report included not only eminent college professors and business men, but a number of men who had been prominent in the New Deal. Among the latter were Gardiner Means, who had acted as expert for many of the studies of Adolph Berle and Dr. Howard B. Myers, who in turn had been the expert for several of the New Deal ventures. This committee stated that "if the deliberate aim of our present tax system were to hold down the peace time volume of employment our present tax system would go far to accomplish it."

In plain language, this committee said that the Roosevelt tax methods had prevented employment from expanding. And if they had gone into other economic measures of the Roosevelt administration and examined them with equal care they would have found they, too, played a part in keeping down the volume of jobs.

Unemployment persisted under Mr. Roosevelt because of what he did. Private enterprise was prevented from expanding enough to provide work for every one. The President told the people in his famous tax message of 1935 that the way to better times was to "bring about a wider distribution of wealth." He was correct in the belief that the problem of better times is a mathematical problem. But it can be solved, not as Mr. Roosevelt has believed, by division, but by multiplication—not by divvying up what we have, but by encouraging production upon a scale of rising magnitude. By penalizing the wealth and income of the business man Mr. Roosevelt destroyed the opportunity of the poor man to earn a living.

Given another four years, Mr. Roosevelt will take an even more destructive course, because those who are backing him this time—the Hillmans, the Browders, etc.—are much more radical than any previous braintrusters, bad as they were.

The big post-war problem is to provide 20 million new, permanent jobs outside of war factories.

Mr. Roosevelt has demonstrated that he can't solve it. His confession can be read in his published papers. Even in his campaign talk he spoke of more government spending. In contrast, Mr. Dewey is for methods which over many years have never failed to produce prolonged periods of full recovery. For permanent peace time jobs for all, vote for Dewey.

LITTLE BALLOTS.

Illinois voters will find two referendum proposals on their ballots Tuesday. The proposal to give sheriffs and county treasurers unlimited tenure of office should be defeated. The amendments to the state banking law should be approved.

The state constitution contains the wise provision that the principal custodians of public funds, state and county treasurers, may serve but one term consecutively. Chicagoans' memories run back to the late County Clerk Sweitzer, whose office is not under this prohibition. He left office at the end of 24 years unable to account for about half a million dollars. Passage of the amendment would open the way for Sweitzer cases in every county treasurer's office in the state. Law enforcement might be improved if sheriffs were allowed to succeed themselves, but the inclusion of treasurers in the amendment makes it too dangerous to be tolerated.

The state constitution contains the rather clumsy provision that any amendment to the state banking act must be submitted to a referendum. The result is that voters must pass, from time to time, on technical matters with which it is most difficult for them to familiarize themselves. The present amendments, designed to broaden lending powers of banks, have been approved by the legislature, both candidates for state auditor, and the Illinois Bankers association.

Chicago voters are asked to approve $3,000,000 in short term bonds to pay for modern street lights in outlying sections that either have not lights or have obsolete and expensive gas and gasoline lights. The Civic federation has approved the issue, altho it takes proper exception to the use of sinking fund bonds, which have fallen into disrepute because of misuse of funds accumulated to redeem the bonds. Approval of the bonds is recommended.

EVERYBODY'S PAL.

In his White House radio speech Mr. Roosevelt again argued his indispensability. It seemed that he is the only candidate who is sufficiently global to be able to call all the international remittance men who are benefiting from lend-lease and UNRRA by their first names.

"It is only thru an understanding acquired by years of consultation," said he, "that one can get a viewpoint of their problems and their innate yearnings for freedom."

He indicated an intimacy with characters as varied as the Negus of Abyssinia, the wazir of Afghanistan, the Imam of Yemen, King Zog, the Tongsa Penlop of Bhutan [Sir Ugyen Wangchuk, if you don't place him offhand], and the holder of the hereditary crown of Darius of Persia. In Liberia he is well and familiarly known to President Barclay, now in his second term, and may, for all that is known, envy him a bit, for the Liberian presidency is for a term of eight years, and four terms would add up to 32 years instead of 16.

The implication of Mr. Roosevelt's remarks was that Mr. Dewey, who has not been so fortunate as to have made the acquaintance of his majesty Maharajadhiraja Tribhubana Bir Bikram Jung Bahadur Shah Bahadur Shumshere Jung of Nepal, and others, will for that reason not be as gifted in dealing with matters of state as Mr. Roosevelt. The handicap is considerable, but perhaps not insurmountable.

Mr. Roosevelt knows that monarchs and statesmen of what he was pleased to call "the more remote nations" command few votes in the United States. As a consequence, he was a little more frank in his electioneering when it came to beaming remarks to Americans whose forebears came from the countries of Europe. He mentioned his familiarity, for instance, with Premier Mikolajczyk of Poland, but that was as far as he went. It would have been embarrassing to him had he reviewed the slight encouragement he has given to those who have attempted to obtain some commitment from him on the integrity of Poland's pre-war boundaries. Nor did he mention the tacit encouragement he has given Stalin in his predatory designs upon Poland, Lithuania, and the other Baltic states. He did not find it politic to touch upon the subject of incurring for Poland the everlasting hostility of Germany by compelling her to accept East Prussia in settlement of Stalin's rape of the eastern provinces.

Mr. Roosevelt has taken a lot of trips and met a lot of people, but the benefits to his own country are not apparent and the contributions to a lasting peace that might have been expected to result are slight if not nonexistent. His travels and his penchant for personal diplomacy have given him something to boast about over the radio, but the result of them has frequently been to plant the seeds of disaffection which can again lead to war.

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain of Britain was in many ways not too intelligent, but when war finally came he at least had the wit to know why it was being fought and what must come of it. "If out of the struggle we again reëstablish in the world the rules of good faith and the renunciation of force," he said, "why, then even the sacrifices that will be entailed upon us will find their fullest justification."

Mr. Roosevelt, in hobnobbing with the world's great and collecting names as avidly as a Broadway columnist covering his beat, seems to have forgotten that the war began over the integrity of small nations and of Poland in particular. The "experience" of which he makes so much has been a pursuit of drama and personal glory. He has made friends and influenced some people by being free with the resources of the public treasury, and has influenced others by benevolent nonintervention in their designs upon their neighbors and his country's allies.

Like many another hail fellow well met, he probably will be remembered among his international pals in the time-worn phrase, "He was good while he had it."

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

Reg. U. S. Pat. Office

MR. PEPYS AND HIS CLAN.

4th Nov.—Attended a big family dinner the other night with no less than 115 present, all members of the same clan and united by the bond of printer's ink and overworked fountain pens. In other words, it was the annual dinner of Line o' Type or Two contributors, at which they took off their pseudonyms and confessed to their right names.

We assembled in the rooms of the Chicago Bar association's quarters, a favorite place for such soirées, and after mixing together merrily like alumni at a class reunion we sat at table. It was, I thought, a goodly company, pleasing to the eye and amiable of discourse, and when the time came for speaking, the toastmaster, Duke Bakrak, put many thru their paces.

Kept a score of those called upon and find it ran to 25, known to readers of this column as Philardee, Marjorie F. W., Thomas Curtis Clark, Eugenia Gerlach Stein, M'Tavish, Davy of the Navy, Irene Koenig, Shandy Gaff, W. L. Hudson, Max of the Second Gallery, Little Girl, The Rebel, Hig, A Looper, Frieda Zimmerman, Tabarin, Carolus, Mary V. Farnum, Alexander Belfuss, Warren Estey, Roy Engel, Chiggers, C. O. R., Casual, and Quizzicuss. Maybe I missed a few as they rose and fell, because once in a while I would do a little mental rehearsing of my own speech, so as not to be unready.

And so, with much good cheer, the fifth Line dinner of my time passed into history, and the 21st or voting age birthday of the Linebook was fittingly celebrated.

THE LITTLE PEOPLE.

Dear Lord:
Be kind to Little People everywhere,
They are so lost, so herded here and there;
They stumble blindly along war-torn roads,
Bewildered, docile, sometimes carrying loads
Of household goods, more often a small child
Who has forgotten he once played and smiled;
They stand on piles of rubble, once their homes,
And burrow in dark caverns like old gnomes;
They never have expected much of life,
Some bread, a hut, freedom from fear and strife;
Not theirs the blame of war, and yet they pay
With everything they have, day after day:
O, God, the Little People are so thinly worn,
Their shoulders sag, for too long they have borne
The yoke of war. Speak to the hearts of men
That Little People may not pay again.

Ladies and gentlemen, I have just been informed that Aloysius Angelico Jenkins has been struck by an automobile and killed. Not only our community and nation, but the entire world has suffered an irreparable loss. MacARTHUR'S PROMISE.

"I go, but when I can I shall return,"
MacArthur said, at sad Corregidor;
"Know that my heart will never cease to yearn
For you who fight as few have fought before."
Around the globe the news of battle sped;
The Philippines seemed lost in all the din,
And when our flag was furled above the dead,
Our darkest page seemed fully written in.

The long way back was hard and grimly won,
With beachheads bought at truly fearful cost,
And yet the progress with such pain begun
In glory gains what sad misfortune lost.
And now exultant hearts on every hand
Greet news of promise kept in distant land.

Chicago's First Elections.

Chicago's first official election was held in 1826. The village was a voting precinct of Peoria county, "the first precinct to include all that part of the county east of the mouth of La Page river where it empties its waters into the Aux Plain." The 35 voters, most of them French, cast a solid Whig vote for Ninian Edwards, governor; Samuel H. Thompson, lieutenant governer, and Daniel P. Cook, congressman. The judges were John Kinzie, J. B. Beaubien, and Billy Caldwell. Archibald Clybourn and John K. Clark acted as clerks. The date was Aug. 7, 1826, and the polling place was "Cobweb castle," the popular name for the house where Dr. Alexander Wolcott, Indian agent, and numerous spiders lived undisturbed.

The first election for a President fell on Nov. 3, 1828. When the ballots were counted that night in John Beaubien's house, Chicago had chosen John Quincy Adams over Andrew Jackson, 26 to 14. C. G. F.

You would not be entitled to hospitalization in a veterans' hospital for the reason that your active military service was peace time service and the condition requiring your hospitalization is in no way connected with your active military service.

R. S. T. asks: "Can you tell me why some Chicago draft boards are pulling some boys right out of high schools regardless of what semester they are in while other boards do not? Shouldn't they all be treated alike?"

High school pupils in the last half of their senior year or the last half of any academic year may request a delay in induction by writing to their draft boards. The draft boards, bound by section 5 [f] of the regulations are required to postpone the induction to the end of the academic year if the pupil continues to pursue his studies.

SOFTENING OF THE BONES —PAGET'S DISEASE.

No single malady demonstrates more perfectly than Paget's disease the fact that the system is a chemical laboratory. Some factor [as yet undiscovered] leads to the softening of certain bones while other structures may become thickened.

Altho the difficulty has existed for centuries, it was not described until 1877, when James Paget recognized a few cases. The symptom that drives the patient to the doctor is usually pain which is confined to the lower extremities, the back, and the head. The sufferer may assume that he is experiencing rheumatic twinges. The truth is that new lines of stress and strain are developing and, in consequence, ligaments are overstretched. The curving of the legs may so alter weight bearing that discomfort, merging into severe nerve irritation, may appear. While beginning symptoms may imitate arthritis, it is not uncommon for this latter condition to accompany Paget's.

What regions of the framework are involved? We must look for trouble within the skull, the spine, the pelvis, the thigh, and the tibia [in the lower leg]. Sometimes the disorder will come on so slowly that it is not identified for a long time. Instances have been reported where in progress was apparently arrested after some loss of stature had been experienced.

The mineral constituents of bone are largely lime and phosphorus. And we are all familiar with how readily fractures will heal. Nature rushes to the rescue with specialized cells which can lay down cementing and mending material. But in Paget's, the process is in reverse. Mineral elements are dissolved—taken away—only to be redeposited where they are not needed. Thus, the skull may become far denser than normal.

Fortunately, length of life is not interfered with. Nor is there anything about the disease that affects intelligence. In other words, mental acuteness is not disturbed in the slightest degree. But as the parts become firmer they are less pliant and this accounts for possible distortion—bowing of the legs, for example. Cysts may form, but after an interval these spaces fill in with what seems to be normal tissues.

We know the relationship of the endocrines, one to the other and, a few years ago, the suggestion was made that perhaps the parathyroid glands [located adjacent to the thyroid] had become overactive. Extract of adrenal cortex has been administered over a period of approximately one year. In one case, complete recession was observed. Other authorities have recommended large quantities of calcium with vitamin D. The only real hint of success is that which has followed adrenal gland therapy. We can control pain with X-ray exposures, at the same time aiding the patient with proper supports to prevent deformities.

The ailment bears the technical title of "osteitis deformans" which means merely a type of inflammation which may lead to crippling. The whole matter sums up into one of abnormal nutriment to certain parts of the skeleton. Instead of functioning as firm, supporting timbers, the bones will be prone to bend under the pull of the muscles and the weight of the body. Victims will need to be more careful than the average person about injuries, as fractures are somewhat more likely to occur.

COMPLETE REMOVAL.

L. U. writes: What is there about a fistula that makes it difficult to heal?

REPLY.

The fact that it may be tortuous. Complete dissection is advised, from the external opening to the bowel. This is essential for the removal of all infected tissue. If nests of "corruption" remain, recurrence may be anticipated.

CROOKED TOES.

J. W. writes: What is meant by clawfoot?

REPLY.

A condition in which the toes are bent downward because of contracted muscles. After a time, atrophy and distortion may create a permanent deformity. The services of a skilled orthopedist should be sought.

ABOUT THE SAME.

T. M. writes: Are injections into the arm as effective as those given elsewhere?

REPLY.

The particular site makes very little difference. The arm is used because of convenience. The leg would do just as well.

O, Them Lovely Voices.

This department could have gone to "Aïda" the other evening and, we understand from our betters, laughed ourselves sick, were it possible to laugh oneself sick. We could have gone to any of the several bedroom comedies in town. We could have finished the Bennett Cerf anthology of humor, "Try and Stop Me" and possibly picked up a few good stories that have only been told 99 times before. Instead, we tuned in for the second time in four years to the sybilline voice of Miss Dorothy Thompson and found that this, too, was fun.

It was fun to be a neophyte at the feet of The Presence. It was also surprising. We were prepared to give her that good old open mind for which this department is renowned. It was astonishing to find that she required no mind at all. It was also comforting.

We had always been told Miss Thompson snorted at the microphone. We had always cherished a mental picture of a microphone shrinking timidly away from the strident syllables of intellect uninhibited.

It was nothing of the sort. Some one has been defaming that poor woman, and let it be understood now that such a party no longer can get away with that sacrilege. Miss Thompson has a gentle voice. Sometimes it whines. Sometimes it babbles. Sometimes it minces. Sometimes it gets hysterical. Sometimes it gets ahead of its prepared script. Sometimes it sounds shrewish. But, gentlemen, that voice is not strident. It is not always even articulate. It does not always even make sense.

Upon this lovely, merry night the voice started out as tho it were doing a news broadcast of the great naval victory in the Philippines, but that wasn't it at all. The voice was telling about the commander in chief of the United States navy. It was a touching story. It told how as a boy of 16 he had wanted to run away from school to go to sea. "Things must have been tough at Groton," observed an impertinent guest. It told how when he finally got two roofs over his head, one at the White House, one at Hyde Park, he filled the houses with ship models. Then the voice throbbed at last, throbbed deliriously. "Ships! Ships! Ships!" it cried. "Everywhere, ships!" Behind the ships, the voice said, were maps. "Maps! Maps! Maps! A man who has always had the range of the world in his vision!"

It went on in similar strain, moving, mighty, magnetic, until it came to the nicest closing we have ever heard Miss Thompson make. It had everything desirable in a radio thriller—the tremulous gulp of the tonsils, a touch of poignancy, a touch of beauty, a touch of prevision, and just that little touch of slang which we hoi-polloi love! ". . . the man whose sky-blue eyes were ever lifted to the horizon, the big old man of the future—our grown-up future!"

Really, it may not affect you the same way. You may not like it at all. But don't fail to listen to Dorothy Thompson the next time the Democratic committee buys time on the air for her. It is an experience which should be denied no man or woman, and pay no mind to those carpers who say that, like supreme unction, it should be experienced only once.

And don't let this department influence you in any way. It is a glutton for punishment. The other time it listened to Miss Thompson was in 1940. She was speaking from Brussels that night. She said the Nazis would never invade Belgium. Three hours later they did.

ALL'S WELL IN THE OZARKS.

Mountain View, Mo., Oct. 28.—I note that you have taken a straw vote in 28 wards of Chicago and that the result shows a loss for Roosevelt with a corresponding gain for Dewey. That is gratifying to all Americans and will, no doubt, increase the sale of aspirin tablets to the communistic element.

We have taken a poll down here recently, too. Not that we had any doubts about how the Ozarks would go in the election, but just to learn how strongly Republican we were going.

Out of 4,765 votes mailed in, each with a 3 cent stamp on the envelope, the vote showed exactly four to one for the Republican candidates over the Democrats, with the exception that Gov. Donnell, who is running for the senate, ran slightly ahead of his ticket, with better than four to one in his favor.

With this wholesome indication of the Missouri trend, and so close to election day, too, I can sleep calmly now until Nov. 7, knowing that we Ozarkers will take proper care of our duties in this section of the country.

What we are fighting hardest to prevent in Missouri is any possibility that a stooge of old Boss Pendergast, the ex-convict who built up and sponsored Harry Truman into the senate, gets into a position where he might become our President. Such an addition to the gang of Hillman, Browder et al., would be a disgrace that even the Ozarks could never live down. Keep your eye on Date township down here in the Ozarks. We will have an honest count in that precinct on election day, as I am to be the election judge. As Date township goes, so goes the nation.

GERMANS TASTE FREE AMERICA'S JUSTICE; LIKE IT

Two Acquitted of Aiding Nazi Soldiers.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VERVIERS, Belgium, Nov. 3.—Two frightened German farmers were tried and acquitted here today by an American general military court on charges of aiding and sheltering five Nazi soldiers under the nose of advanced 1st army elements near the town of Horbach, Germany, in September.

They were the first civilians tried before the military court qualified to inflict the death penalty and judging from their pop-eyed expressions they were the most surprised persons in the improvised courtroom when the silvery haired presiding officer, himself a professional soldier for nearly three decades, read the verdict late this evening.

Nazis Found on Farm.

The two defendants were Robert Michel Hogen, round faced, double chinned and balding, and Karl Packbier, a slender, sharp featured little man with a ragged fringe of hair around a bald pate that glistened with sweat more than once during the day long trial. Hogen owns a farm several hundred yards outside of Horbach. Packbier, his cousin, who was evacuated from Aachen, was staying with him when American troops discovered the German soldiers hidden on the farm.

According to the charges they failed to turn over the Nazi fighting men to our forces occupying the region.

Defense Plea Upheld.

The defense plea, which was upheld by the court, was that allied propaganda, including repeated radio broadcasts, has urged the German people to give all possible aid to deserters from the wehrmacht and thus encourage them to try to make their way into the allied lines.

It also was the contention of the defense counsel, Capt. Robert McKeever of Port Chester, N. Y., and former police magistrate Capt. Herman Schupp, also of Port Chester, that the defense had no way of knowing whether the farm house was securely inside American lines or whether the Germans might retake the ground, in which case they would have faced serious consequences in turning German soldiers over to the Americans.

Priest Is Witness.

The witnesses ranged from doughboys from combat with mud clinging to their clothes, to a German Catholic priest, the defendants, themselves, and plump Frau Hogen. She told the court that her husband once sheltered a Russian worker who had fled from a slave job. As a consequence of this, she asserted, Hogen has been blacklisted by the Nazi labor exchange and was suspected of anti-Nazi leanings.

The Rev. Reinhardt Klein, a Catholic priest of Horbach, who has been serving as acting burgomeister [mayor], declared that Hogen was such an anti-Nazi that he had warned him a number of times to "be more careful."

Similar to Court in U. S.

The fact that nearly 4,000 miles separate this courtroom from the nearest one in the United States made no difference in procedure or atmosphere in today's trial. There was the same stiffness and tautness as in the atmosphere surrounding American courtroom scenes where men's lives are at stake.

The trial was held in the Belgian army barracks in which the Germans were quartered for the last four years. Today an American flag was hung across one wall and beneath it, on a raised platform, sat the five man court headed by Col. Hurley Fuller of San Antonio, Tex., a member of the regular army.

Indianapolis Man a Judge.

The other members were Lt. Col. George S. Wilson of Indianapolis, Ind., Maj. Charles P. Sisson of Providence, R. I., former state's attorney general; Capt. Alfred Henderson of Dedham, Mass., and Lt. Robert C. Wilkens of Glen Cove, N. Y.

The court reached a verdict within five minutes.

When the interpreter asked the defendants what they thought of American justice Hogen shook his head mutely, but Packbier responded with a rush of excited German:

"As a long standing democrat I know the high ideals of the American democracy. I had no fear."

Did you ever perfect yourself in practice and muff the actual test? [Asked of cast of Ice Follies of 1945].

WHERE ASKED.

THE ANSWERS.

Frick, Basle, Switzerland.—Once in a movie I had a tongue twisting sentence to repeat. Each time I said it I'd get the words twisted around and each time I twisted the sentence we had to go back to the beginning of the scene. Before we finished the sequence we repeated the action six times on my account.

Frack, Basle, Switzerland—When I was in school I longed to play on the soccer team. One summer I practiced soccer diligently with the intention of making the squad. I became quite expert and every one thought I was an excellent player. When tryouts came, I was too excited and didn't make the grade.

Fran Claudet, skating director, Ottawa, Ont. — I was considered one of the best piano players in my class when I was 12 years old. We gave a recital and I was last on the program with a difficult number. I got to the middle, forgot the rest, then started over and forgot again. I did that twice more and quit.

Norah McCarthy, North Bay, Ont. —In Boston last year I had been looking forward to opening night because of a fine part. I got out in front of a crowd of about 15,000 and fell down five times. That's more falls than you take in a whole season usually, but the ice was hard and my skates were dull.

Hazel Franklin, Bournemouth, England — Before a show I practiced one of my spins on the right foot instead of the left and it looked much better. It was supposed to come right at the end of my number as the closing is always the most impressive. When the time came I was so frightened that I went thru my old routine.

Mae Ross, Los Angeles, Cal. — I used to do theater work and one night in a play I made a horrible blunder. I had quite an important part and all of a sudden my mind went blank. The words just wouldn't come. One of the other actors paused for a whole minute and then went ahead with the next lines.

OPPOSE BRITISH SCHEME TO SELL LEND-LEASE AID

BY WILLIAM MOORE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 3.—Members of the senate protested today after Capitol hill had heard that the Roosevelt administration has been secretly considering giving the British 3½ billion dollars worth of lend-lease material for resale in the British export trade after the war.

Chairman Reynolds [D., N. C.] of the senate military affairs committee said:

"I'm 1,000 per cent against it. I'm against giving any country lend-lease supplies after the war. The money for that kind of giving will come right out of the pocket of G. I. Joe."

Ask "All They Can Get."

Sen. Thomas [R., Idaho] said:

"I'm opposed to it. But you can expect the British to ask for all they can get."

The story, as heard by the few members of congress still in town during the congressional recess, is this:

With the war in Europe nearing its end, the British are asking 6½ billion dollars in lend-lease for the post-war period, 3½ billions of it in nonwar supplies which the British may resell to their export trade.

The proposal, members of congress were informed, was presented by John Maynard Keynes, British financial theorist. It was indicated that if the British are unable to get 3½ billions' worth of materials to resell, they will accept 2½ billions' worth.

Traced to Morgenthau.

The British project was reliably reported to have been presented to President Roosevelt by Treasury Secretary Morgenthau at the President's September conference in Quebec with Prime Minister Churchill. Since then, Keynes and a British delegation are said to have been holding conferences on the subject with the American government.

Disclosure of the project met a hush-hush response.

The British declined to comment, but said a statement would be forthcoming from the White House or the treasury.

"Diplomatic Denial."

President Roosevelt said at his press conference today he had never heard of the story. A reporter told him it appeared in newspapers this morning. The President replied that he was sorry, implying he still had not heard of it.

[In London the Daily Mail described Mr. Roosevelt's reaction to the story as a "diplomatic denial, since the election is only a few days off."]

Lend-lease authorities denied the British had asked any substantial nonmilitary supplies for resale.

It was explained in informed circles, however, that Keynes probably would not be dealing with the foreign economic administration, which handles lend-lease, but would go over its head to negotiate directly with the treasury.

This fitted in with the story that it was Morgenthau who proposed the project for the British at Quebec.

Anger over Morgenthau's taking the initiative in the lend-lease negotiations is credited here in part with the opposition to his German peace plan from the state and war departments. Officials in these departments and FEA are reported to have been bitterly resentful over having lend-lease negotiations put beyond their control.

News Is Given of Fighting Men in Pacific Area

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE progress of the campaign in the Pacific is followed anxiously by the parents of the thousands of young men who are involved in it or who are believed to be in the Philippines area by their anxious relatives. When Capt. Elliott Detchon of the marines left for duty in the Pacific recently his wife and their year old daughter, Debbie, returned from California to live in the Lake Forest house which they have rented for the duration.

Lawrence D. Smith Jr., who has been with the marines in the South Pacific for more than 14 months, recently was promoted to the rank of sergeant. Now a corporal is Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Jaicks' son, Agar, who also is with the marines in the Pacific. Lt. Theodore Tieken, Lt. F. Strother Cary Jr., and Lt. [j. g.] Richard M. Lamport, are with the navy in the Pacific and probably in the thick of things, their wives believe.

Some of the other young Chicagoans probably involved in the struggle to liberate the Philippines are Pvt. Russell Kelley Jr. of the marines, who has been in other recent Pacific campaigns; Ensign Charles Spalding, Lt. Garret LeVan, Lt. Walter Watson, and Lt. Lloyd Bowers, all of the navy; Lt. Kent Chandler, Lt. Otis Carney, and Pvt. Thomas McGowen, all marines, and Lt. Lester Armour Jr., an army air forces bombardier.

Debutante News.

Saturday, Dec. 30, which seems to be the night New Year's eve celebrations will be held this year, has been set as the date for a tea which Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Hansen of Barrington will give to introduce to society their daughter, Leslie. Miss Hansen is a student at Vassar.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Rogers' daughter, Margaret, will make her debut at a luncheon which her great-aunt, Mrs. Wallace Patterson of Evanston, will give Dec. 21 at the Indian Hill club. Miss Rogers, who is called Penny, was graduated in June from the Mary C. Wheeler school in Providence, R. I., and now attends Northwestern university.

Dr. and Mrs. James P. FitzGerald have reserved the afternoon of Dec. 22 for a debut tea at home for their second daughter, Patricia Anne. The bud has two sisters, Dorcas, a debutante of several seasons ago, and Sheila, who is in boarding school in St. Louis, and a brother, Lt. Richmond FitzGerald of the marines, who, with his wife is living in Cherry Point, N. C.

Week-End Calendar.

The open fields in the area around Green Bay road at the north end of Lake Forest will be the gathering place all day today and tomorrow for shooting enthusiasts who will watch the annual field trials of the English Springer Spaniel Field Trial club of Illinois. Many service men will be among the spectators as guests of the American Red Cross, which will receive the proceeds from the two day event.

Today they will watch a shooting dog stake, in which Capt. James Simpson Jr. of the marines, recently returned from the South Pacific, and his wife will be among the competitors. The Simpsons' famous champion, Stoneybroke Sheer Bliss, will compete tomorrow in the open all-age stake. Exhibitors and members of the club will meet for an informal dinner tonight in the Deerpath inn.

Chicagoans in quest of cigarets will be able to purchase them at tomorrow's Misericordia hospital benefit breakfast at 1 p. m. in the Stevens hotel. The hospital auxiliary, headed by Mrs. Grey Sullivan, has been collecting cigarets since before the shortage, so acute right now, and packages of all brands will be dispensed by a group of pretty young women, captained by Miss Julia Hursen. More than 1,000 reservations have been made for the breakfast, which will be the auxiliary's 28th annual one.

Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis will preside at the opening meeting of Les Rosettes et Rubans de France at 3 p. m. today in the Arts club. Jacques W. Walsh, director of French press service and information in Chicago, will be the speaker, and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey will preside at tea.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Have You a What?

From a reader comes the latest addition to WCG vocabulary. The greeting among the nurses in some of the G. I. hospitals, she reports, is: "Good morning, have you a lycanthropist in your ward?"

Borland's medical dictionary, eighth edition, defines a lycanthropist as "a patient who has the delusion that he is a wolf."

No Tips in a Foxhole.

One evening several of us white collar girls decided to splurge a bit. You know, every day we have to watch our pennies, figure for bonds, money to send home, community drives, rent, clothes, food, and other necessities, and once in a while we get the urge to go some place really nice just to see how it feels. So, we took a California guest to a "really nice" night club, made a reservation, were there on time, cooperated with the waiter—with the result that he flipped a $10 bill in our faces [when we gave him a 10 per cent tip] and said: "This is what I call a real tip."

The boys overseas, husbands and sweethearts of girls like us, are not counting on tips. They are not asking for anything in return for wounds or even their lives. Am I all wrong to have come out of that evening appalled and embarrassed by the greediness of the waiter?

JUST ANOTHER SAD WCG.

She Chews Gum.

Whatever has become of the o. f. office girl who didn't smoke?

HARRY JOE SMEDLEY.

Job Waiting.

About six months ago a Chicago woman, Benita McCormick, concluded that there still was an untapped source of labor supply—the women in the home who remain deaf, perhaps, to other appeals, yet, womanlike, are not deaf to the tinkle of the telephone.

So, a telephone survey was conducted to discover the reaction of the woman in the home who may not have contemplated taking a job—who, precisely, is not seeking a job, yet is remarkably amenable to the idea. Fully 95 per cent of the women queried showed a willingness and a desire to work.

First of all, Mrs. McCormick has learned, these women need a build-up. They must be reminded they are needed. They require encouragement. "What shall I wear when I go for an interview?" . . . "Is my hair all right?" . . . "I haven't worked for 15 years—will I fit into a present-day office?" . . . "Can I systematize my housework so I can be spared from my home?" . . . "Do you suppose I'll be too rusty?" These are their misgivings.

Reassured, their confidence restored, they talk things over with their husbands, neighbors, friends, and relatives, and a few days later are ready for a job. For those whose husbands object to a paying position, helpful suggestions are made for volunteer work. "No willingness is overlooked," Mrs. McCormick commented, "for the sake of the task that confronts us and the sake of the woman herself who—above everything else—has a real hunger to be needed."

Kitchen Pointers

By Mary Meade

"When a recipe calls for rolled oats can the quick cooking kind be used or must one use the old fashioned, regular type?"

The two kinds of rolled oats can be used interchangeably in cakes, cookies, breads, and so on.

"What is the best way to remove down from ducks, mudhens, etc."

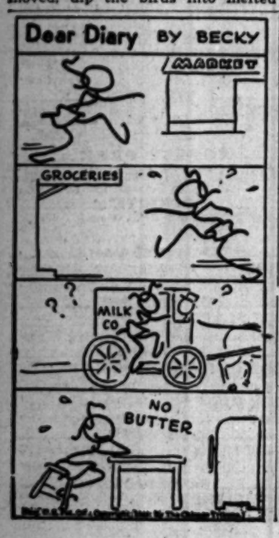
After the feathers have been removed, dip the birds into melted paraffin quickly in order not to cook the flesh. When paraffin is set, remove it and along with it the down, which will come off easily.

"How is pheasant prepared and what would be appropriate to serve with it?"

Pheasant is roasted like chicken in an open roasting pan at a moderate temperature, 325 to 350 degrees. As pheasant tends to be somewhat drier than chicken, extra precautions must be taken to prevent drying out of the flesh. To do this, lay strips of fat salt pork or bacon over the breast and baste frequently. The average time of roasting is 1 to 1½ hours. Test for doneness as you would any type of poultry. Very young pheasants may be broiled after brushing well with melted butter or margarine. A delicious way to cook cut-up pheasant is to brown the floured, seasoned pieces, then add 1 cup light cream and simmer, covered, or bake at 350 degrees for half to three-quarters of an hour. Serve with mashed potatoes and gravy, a green vegetable, cranberry jelly, relishes, and any desired dessert.

"When wine has been poured over fruit cake, should it be stored immediately or allowed to dry out a little?"

Wine should never be poured over fruit cake, but rather drizzled over the surface in small quantities, from 2 to 3 teaspoons at a time, then stored in several thicknesses of waxed paper and basted again in a few days. Basting with large quantities of wine induces molding.



Service Club's Benefit Draws a Full House

BY ELEANOR PAGE.

A capacity audience, plus skating enthusiasts who accepted standing room only space, poured into the Chicago Arena last night for the opening of the "Ice Follies of 1945." Many of the spectators were up past their usual bed time, for the entertainment is such that appeals to young and old alike, a fact that particularly pleases the Service club, which for the third time sponsored the opening of the show as its annual benefit.

"We're doing better than last year," said Mrs. Robert A. Cavenaugh, president of the club, meaning that her committee would clear more than the $14,000 it netted from the last follies. Dressed in a stunning green satin gown and decked lavishly in white orchids, Mrs. Cavenaugh spent a hectic evening in Service club headquarters, directing the crew of pretty young women who were selling flowers to raise additional funds.

Four of the youngest ringside spectators were Gina and Katherine Laun and Bobby and Billy Pope, who watched from the box shared by their parents, the William Popes, and the Harold Launs. The Popes and the Launs dined at the Woman's Athletic club. In another youthful group of spectators who began the evening with dinner at the same club were Margo and Betty Stoll, Tommy and Bill Gehl, and Denby Allen. They also occupied box seats.

Other ringside spectators were Mrs. Edward J. Kelly, Mrs. Loyal Davis, the Homer P. Hargraves, Mrs. James Ward Thorne, Mrs. Alden B. Swift, the Rev. and Mrs. Dudley Stark, and Robert F. Carr, who had adjoining seats.

"It's cold in here," was a comment heard on all sides. Many ice skating regulars brought along robes to spread across their knees, as did the Arthur Wakeleys, the A. R. Petersons, and the Hugh Petersens. One of the prettiest costumes, and a warm one, too, was worn by Mrs. E. Franklin Motch, who arrived in a lavender tweed skirt and pink wool blouse, with a tiny hat of lavender. She and Lt. Comdr. Motch, the W. Denison Dunnings, Mr. and Mrs. E. Cumimngs Parker, John L. Fortune Jr., Mrs. F. Strother Cary Jr., and the Robert Emerys came in a group following dinner at the Woman's Athletic club.

On from dinner at the Key club came Mr. and Mrs. Edwin W. Sims Jr., the John A. Morgans, the Paul Butlers, Mrs. Wayne Wills, Dr. and Mrs. Paul Holinger, and Capt. and Mrs. George Rose, among others. Frank W. McNair, with two young grandsons in tow; Mr. and Mrs. Whipple Jacobs, Mrs. Justin A. Stanley, Mrs. Charles Borland, and Miss Anne Borland were others present.

1,000 See Style Show

BY HARRIETT PRIBBLE.

The South Shore Service league piped a merry tune for its "Fashion Merry-Go-Round" yesterday afternoon, which drew a large percentage of the Service club's supporters to the Racquet club for cocktails preceding the Ice Follies. More than 1,000 guests thronged the benefit, which should pile up a goodly sum for the Chicago Maternity center, which the league supports.

Mrs. John Andrews King, chairman of the Maternity Center board, and Mrs. Howard Linn, chairman of the extension committee, watched the mannequins parade thru the club's upper rooms at a ringside table. Mr. and Mrs. James Hoskins, she in a chic black velvet suit with its collar and matching muff fringed in ermine tails, came to watch their daughters, Yvonne and Jamee, model in the show. To Mrs. Anthony Ryerson and Mrs. Philip D. Armour Jr., who bear two of Chicago's most distinguished names, fell the role of impersonating maids in the show—Mrs. Ryerson bearing a mop and Mrs. Armour with a feather duster in hand—and modeling aprons made by the Hull House shop. Mrs. William P. Budd was general chairman of the benefit.

War Working Girl Is School Problem, Teacher Declares

The war time behavior of adolescent girls in the class room has deepened the frown and raised the eyebrows of school teachers who are confronted with new and alarming problems not provided for in text books, according to Rena L. Hodgen, state supervisor of home economics education.

Miss Hodgen is one of the speakers at the 23d annual convention of the Illinois Vocational Homemaking and the Illinois Home Economics association, meeting in the Morrison hotel. Some 900 instructors are attending the conference which is an attempt to arrive at some practical techniques each teacher can adapt to her own situation to combat the teen age problem.

"Today's adolescent girls are almost too much for Sinatra so you can see what home economic teachers face," Miss Hodgen said.

She blamed war time employment for much of the trouble. "Girls have been pushed into adulthood and now we find many of them returning to the role of school girl after spending the summer as working girls, participating in grownup activities," she said. "It's hard for them to return to school activities and it's up to the teachers to help them."

"Teachers cannot do it by sitting behind desks," she added, "but will have to become a friend of each student and a guidance instructor."

Arts Club Puts Two Moderns' Works on View

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The Arts club opened its first exhibition of the season yesterday with a showing of the work of two moderns which will continue to Nov. 25.

The first gallery is installed with the huge, vivid cubistic paintings of Hans Hofmann, who began his career at the age of 18 in Munich. On second thought, Mr. Hofmann's paintings are more abstract than cubist and startling rather than vivid. They are enormous primitive outbursts of emotion aroused by a set theme, and the single one that carries charm is the artist's interpretation of "The Chinese Nightingale." Altho most of the works are dated 1944, in type, technique, and kind, they go back some 15 years to the modernist art of Picasso and his school.

Enrico Donati, on the other hand, he who is showing his work in the smaller galleries at the Arts club, is really 1944. His technique is that of the surrealist but the surrealist who is a poet and rejoices in sunshine, succulent colors, and gay fantasties alive with the petals of flowers and the sweep of birds' wings.

His paintings are full of charm and spirit and whimsical images. A spider's web is a lacy net, a fairy web. Flowers are everywhere, petals or blossoms, bits of coral, weird fish, a bird, the suggestion of circus tents and clowns, a mystic citadel, scraps of poetry almost forgotten, magic bits from the Land of Oz, backdrops for a heavenly ballet—the paintings of Enrico Donati are summed up in Breton's remark: "I love his painting as I love a night in May." Of such stuff as nights in May are made are Donati's creations. They are ravishing.

Recent paintings by Hovsep Pushman make a brilliant show at the Findlay galleries, Michigan av. and Van Buren st. Never have finer examples of this great craftsman's art been gathered together. They are superb. A neighbor new show, which opens today, is that of water colors by Kenneth Shopen at the Roullier galleries, Fine Arts building. This is a laughing show, sparkling, and colorful. Mr. Shopen paints in a delightfully rich manner and convinces us instantly that all's still very much "well with the world." Both these exhibits will run thru November.

Three Yanks at War to Give 20 Trainees a Night at the Opera

The generosity of three young men now on duty in the South Pacific has made it possible for Mrs. Haven Core Kelly of the Illinois Opera guild to invite 20 youths in training at Navy pier and Northwestern university's naval reserve school to be guests at tonight's performance of "Il Trovatore" in the Civic Opera house.

Remembrance of Mrs. Kelly's hospitality to them while stationed at Navy Pier and at Northwestern's naval school prompted the three in the Pacific area—Lt. Pershing Bell, Charleston, S. C.; Ensign Elmer Smith, Spokane, Wash., and Aviation Machinist's Mate 1st Class Gene Forester, Louisville, Ky.—to send checks that would enable young men now in Chicago to enjoy the opera that they are missing. Lt. Bell sent his check, he explained, in memory of a friend, Ensign George Arthur, who was killed at Kwajalein.

Mrs. Kelly is corresponding secretary of the guild and a member of its board of directors.

The Chicago Teachers' union will have its eighth annual benefit card party at 1 p. m. today in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Sherman. Proceeds will go, as they have since the United States entered the war, to neighborhood and central United Service Organizations clubs and to the Chicago service men's centers. Last year 19 centers each received equal shares of the money raised. Ira S. Turley, president of the union, will be master of ceremonies. Mrs. Minnie Zearing is party chairman.

At its monthly meeting at 7:30 p. m. Monday in the Medinah club the Navy Mothers' Club of Chicago will hear Miss Dorothy Andrews, a member of the speakers' bureau of the Chicago chapter of the Red Cross, and Harold Shilling, director of the finance committee of the Chicago waste paper salvage committee of the Chicago Newspaper Publishers' association.

Miss Andrews, who was doing volunteer work at Pearl Harbor on the day of the Japanese attack, will stress in her talk the work of the Red Cross arts and skills corps. Mr. Shilling will represent his committee, which last month presented to the Navy Mothers two checks amounting to $1,000 for the operation of the club's canteen at headquarters, 500 Sherman st. The committee realized the money thru the sale of waste paper.

A Chicago WAC major, Anna Danovsky, 1300 N. Pine av., stationed in Washington, D. C., with the air forces representative on two joint and combined chiefs of staff committees, has requested overseas duty and studied to increase her eligibility for such service.

Her brother, Capt. Andrew J. Danovsky, recently was reported killed in action in France while on duty with the field artillery. "Now, more than ever, I want to go overseas," Maj. Danovsky said. "I want to do everything I can to pay back the enemy."

Maj. Danovsky is no stranger to the countries of Europe. Of Czechoslovakian descent, she studied at Charles university in Prague, receiving a doctor of philosophy degree. Her bachelor of science degree was earned at the University of Chicago, which she entered after graduation from Austin High school.

Maj. Danovsky also has had top flight army training. She was in the first class of women to attend the adjutant general officers' school at Fort Washington, Md., as well as the command and general staff school at Fort Leavenworth, Kas. She left her job as a science instructor at Morton High school and Junior college, Cicero, to enter the first class of officers to be graduated at the first WAC training center, Fort Des Moines, Ia.

With the overseas assignment in mind, Maj. Danovsky is studying Russian.

Mandel Hall Concert Truly a Rare Treat

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

Not so many years ago it was considered a compliment to say that a concert was worth the time and money spent to hear it. But times have changed and so, for that matter, has money. The best I can say for the first of the season's composer's concerts sponsored by the University of Chicago last night is that it was worth the gasoline lavished on a trip to Mandel hall. Apparently these performances arranged by Remi Gassmann in collaboration with Cecil Smith are going to be our sole contact with contemporary music, at least in its 1944-'45 orchestral manifestations. Fortunately, they have turned their responsibility into a pleasure.

Last night's concert was altogether charming in the manner of being stimulating, informative, and attractive. We heard unfamiliar scores of Stravinsky, Barber, Francaix, and Hindemith, played by a chamber orchestra chosen from the Chicago Symphony orchestra, with Rudolph Ganz as piano soloist and Hans Lange as conductor, yielding the baton to Corp. Samuel Barber, who directed his own Capricorn Concerto.

This is a brand new work by the young composer now in the army air forces at the office of the OWI, and it takes its name from his home in Mount Kisco, N. Y. It may or may not concern the tenth sign of the zodiac, but it certainly has a horn [if Gabriel can call his trumpet a horn, so can I], tho it had no perceptible goats. On the contrary, it had a vivid, unmistakable success. Written for flute, oboe, trumpet, and strings, the Capricorn concerto is a fluent and brilliant work, with a direct lyricism that goes straight to the musical point. The scherzo is piquant without being precious and the whole effect is one of freshness and verve.

Igor Stravinsky's Dumbarton Oaks Concerto for chamber orchestra was written in 1938 and has nothing to do with the conference of allied nations. An adroit and quizzical work in the general style of "Dances Concertantes," it plays musical games in acrid tones with astringent wit, and now and then releases a hint of lovely melody leashed.

Perhaps you remember Jean Francaix' tongue in cheek concertino from the time he played it at the Arts club in four hand form with Nadia Boulanger. A saucy work full of impertinent rhythms, a sophisticatedly simple piano, and the licking tongue of a trumpet, it might have stood one more rehearsal in order to reach the evening's highest standard of performance, but a few rough spots were unimportant, considering its witty flair. The concert ended with Hindemith's Kammermusik No. 1, written more than 20 years ago, but still typical of the composer in its vigor, its undeviating sense of direction, and that sense, in chamber music proportions, of course, of something massive in motion.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 3.—Barney Ross' agent asked $200,000 for his life story and while Hollywood will pay anything for a story—or so they say—that deal fell thru. . . . It looks more like Donald Cook than Franchot Tone with Deanna Durbin in "Lady on a Train." . . . At Metro the other day all the WACs, in fact everybody, got the afternoon off. Lana Turner didn't feel like working. So they didn't work. . . . Peter Lawford is being called the poor man's Jess Barker. . . . Larry Stevens, who was christened Dave, and who is to sing with Jack Benny, used to assist at the Turnabout theater, helping with puppets and singing the "snake song" with Mr. Noah. He was applauded nightly. Then at Cocoanut Grove, when a spotlight was turned on him, he got up, sang it—and four more songs. Then Freddie Martin remarked, "Who knows? Perhaps tonight a star is born." It was that night one of Benny's spies heard him.

Another Poll—Gary Cooper's.

Gary Cooper sent out 2,500 cards to editors, etc., all over the country, asking them to select title for his new western. Answers came in [one from London] choosing "Along Came Jones." That's what it's going to be. Incidentally, Coop's always for actors, even now that he's a producer. He chose Russell Simpson for Loretta Young's father, because Russell helped him thru some of his self-conscious days. . . . Errol Flynn wants another director at Warners. I hear he'll get his way, too. . . . What's this? Trouble in the family of Marjorie Reynolds and her captain? Or could she have been in a bad mood at that party the other night? . . . If Martha Raye doesn't want people to believe that she's about to divorce Nick Condos, she'd better have her rows in private instead of at the Beachcombers. Remember, Martha, you have a very carrying voice. And when you flounced out to go to another night spot, leaving your hubby sitting sipping, and yelled, "Remember—I'm a mother!"—maybe you should have remembered it, too.

Ho Hum. Mr. Bogart Again.

Remind me to ask Humphrey Bogart, when he comes back from Washington, where he M. C.'d a radio show for F. D. R., if his reconciliation with Mayo wasn't just for publicity purposes—an armistice till the campaign was over. . . . The fabulous "Frisco" got a call from Republic to come out and talk turkey. He did, they named the salary, and told him he'd play a dentist. "Not me," said he, "My dentist charges me more than that to pull a tooth." . . . Johnny Farrow's "Two Years Before the Mast" didn't fare so well at preview. Cards came back saying torture scenes were too sadistic. . . . Gene Kelly walks in where angels fear to tread. The other day when Ginger Rogers was testing in a black lace nothing for a bedroom scene in "Week-end at the Waldorf," Kelly headed a brigade of five dancers, their chests entirely concealed by F. D. R.'s face. They waltzed around her on the test stage and, without saying a word, waltzed right out again.

At the races Virginia Bruce won the long shot—52 bucks. She once had a Vain Doctor, so she bet on him. Mike Romanoff was the best dressed man. Was he done up? He said, "All the rich saloonkeepers are present, and most of my rich customers, too." I accused Errol Flynn of following Frankie boy [Sinatra]. He wore a bow tie. He screamed "Can't you see it matches my waistcoat?" It did. Andrea Leeds Howard was the prettiest girl there—best dressed, too. She wore chinchilla, gorgeous earrings, and a diamond clip Bob gave her on their fifth wedding anniversary. Then some uninformed folk say she and Bob will separate. I asked if she wasn't going to have another baby. "Not now," she answered, "Bob says we ought to wait. When the war's over we want to go to South America, and the children will be old enough to go along. And with another baby on the way we couldn't do it." . . . The hats were really—well! Gracie Allen wore a purple palm tree. Cute, too. One woman was in a black dunce cap. Kay Williams had on a green coachman's lid—all she needed was the hansom cab. She was with Van Johnson. He stood and photographed the crowd with a movie camera. Four dray horses, that smooth the track after each race, got tired having Seabiscuit's son flash by them, so they ran away and after him. . . . An ironic twist came over the loud speaker when a voice said: "Going home, please don't use Prairie avenue. It would interfere with defense workers going to work."

Screen Antics of Two Yanks Pack a Punch

"ABROAD WITH TWO YANKS."

"MURDER IN THE BLUE ROOM."

A Universal picture, directed by Leslie Goodwins, with Grace McDonald, Donald Cook, Anne Gwynne, John Litel, June Preisser, Betty Kean, and Regis Toomey, and also at the Palace.

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

"Abroad With Two Yanks" may easily be the best thing of its kind since "Charley's Aunt" lived up to its reputation, which it hasn't since I have been encountering it in revival. A walloping farce about two marines fighting over an Australian girl, who does her bit for the good neighbor policy by marrying an Australian, it gets off to a good start, holds its pace like a thorobred, and comes down the stretch in an uproar that had the audience howling at 11 o'clock in the morning. Small miracle!

Maybe you, too, thought there was no fun left in the antics of two brawny soldiers escaped from the chorus line of a G. I. show to which they had been relegated by the guardhouse and a stage struck sergeant. But the sight of William Bendix as a mashed down Sophie Tucker [those shoulders in satin!] and of Dennis O'Keefe as a plausible take-off on Ethel Barrymore of the "Tanqueray" era is something to behold, and nothing is allowed to spoil it. The people who made this picture know their farce, their timing, and their camera.

No use to tell the story. Not fair in the first place, either to you or to the picture, because it would sound like a warmed over version of that two fellows and a girl story you hope you never see again. But this time the usually dim witted Bendix isn't so dim, and Casanova O'Keefe is also a comedian. Their plots and connivings to win pretty Helen Walker are fresh and funny, and when at last, corseted and bewigged in hilarious travesty on the female of the species, they barge into a charity bazar complete with chamber of horrors where skullduggery is adroit rather than slapstick—well, you might even laugh out loud at 8 o'clock in the morning. You understand I don't guarantee it. Maybe no picture is that funny.

As a ruthless enemy of mystery books in which the detective talks the plot to death, I deplore "Murder in the Blue Room," where a sister act bores it to death. These females, all too willing to sing and dance at the drop of a clew, clutter up the ghostly landscape and get their just deserts when a ghost in a derby goes home with them. The whole thing is a frustrated attempt to be mysterious, musical, and amusing, and any junior member of the crime club could spot the villian at a glance. Old Mealymouth! How do you suppose Donald Cook got mixed up in this one?

Look Before You Leap to Punish Child

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"Look before you leap" may be a wornout maxim and certainly [applied figuratively] doesn't fit every situation. But where the matter of reproving or disciplining your children is concerned, I believe in it implicitly. If the leap is a small one, you only need a moment's pause. If, however, something serious is involved, a good long pause to get your bearings first, will often save you from doing real injustice to your son or daughter—little or big. Also quick punishment usually leaves a sensitive and loving parent filled with remorse.

So when a child does something you think needs reproof, either slight or severe, wait if you can, until the next day to deal with it. In nine cases out of 10 you'll find the slight reproof wasn't needed, or that the severe one should have been only a light one. And you'll be glad.

Sometimes our extreme annoyance or quick temper will make us "fly off the handle." We either do a lot of talking or a good deal of scolding, or feel that real punishment is in order.

Usually these quick responses lead us to do something that is, in the first place, unwise or quite unfair. Usually these quick reactions of ours are quite bewildering to our children. If, when the offense is slight we could be made to count 10 [or 20, or 30] before saying a word or doing a single thing, it would be better all around. And when a more severe infringement occurs, if only some outside check would make us wait until the next day to deal with it, the results would be better for both us and our child.

The trouble is that we pay too much attention, for one thing, to every little happening that is out of the way. And in almost every instance, we exaggerate the importance of the offence.

"Hold Everything" would be a good reminder for us to give ourselves. If you are an impulsive person, such a reminder would save you a lot of regret, or even that more disturbing thing, real remorse.

Sequins Give Luster to New House Slippers

BY REA SEEGER.

Frivolous, yet practical footgear designed for indoors are the clever new sequin trimmed crocheted bootees or lounging slippers of yarn. It sounds fantastic, but you must see them to believe the appeal in their glitter. So far they've had the rather unromantic name of "cocktail bootees," but some one will invent a better one soon. If frumpy looking house slippers have caused you to shudder, see these shining new examples of something utilitarian suddenly become decorative.

Crocheted of black, emerald-green, scarlet, and cerise colored yarn, attached to felt soles, they might be dull. But the glitters make them very different. For you can choose black beauties covered with silver or gold sequins all over the toes and in a band around the ankle where the colored sequins take over; the giddy green affairs, likewise encrusted with flashing thousands of sequins, or the scarlet models trimmed with huge quarter size sequins in bright colors, red, green, and gold. The most frivolous of all are the green numbers, each with two huge cerise colored velvet roses on each instep. These are simply unbelievable—until you see them.

Such gala footwear belongs with your dress-up hostess gowns, house coats of padded or quilted velvet or satin, and with velvet lounging slacks and brocade coats. They're the sort of house slippers that take the sting out of the fact you've got to conserve your precious leather street shoes. They're so giddy and gay, that they'd be popular and easy to wear even if the restrictions were off the sale of real leather.

Thru the Looking Glass

Things are as usual in affairs of beauty this season with our mail studded with requests for a "good" night cream. Along about this time of the year many women discover that their skins are not all they'd like them to be and decide to do something about it. The flaking, peeling skin that takes powder in patches and feels rough to the touch tells them that it needs something to soften it. And they don't like the sallowed, coarsened look of the complexions reflected in their mirrors.

One of our pet recommendations to combat these conditions is a wonderfully rich cream which boasts in addition to its lubricating ingredients a mild whitening agent that helps banish the muddied, dull look. We hasten to add that this doesn't make the cream a quick bleach—it's sanely not so strong as that. However, used consistently for a couple of weeks it will very gently chase away any surface yellowing and give the skin a nice, clear look.

The first and foremost mission of the cream is to lubricate the skin and restore it to a state of silky smoothness. It's heavy with oils that are especially kind to a parched skin which reacts almost immediately to its soothing, softening ministrations.

The maker of this cream recommends that it be "nibbled" into the skin after a generous daub of it has been spread over the face and neck. The nibbling is really just a mild pinching, provides a bit of stimulation and exercise which is good for the skin.

If a softening cream is your current beauty need, we think you'll find this one perfectly suited for the job.

SQUABBLE OF 2 UNIONS CLOSES 37 WAR PLANTS

Detroit and Toledo Hit by Walkouts.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 3 [Special].—Twenty-four war plants in Detroit and 13 in Toledo, O., were closed today by a general walkout of skilled mechanics staging a sympathy demonstration over a dispute involving only six men.

The strike was called by leaders of the Mechanics' Educational Society of America, an independent union, most of whose members are expert tool and die makers.

Union officials said their entire membership of nearly 20,000 men had walked off their jobs in the Detroit area in support of a 10 day old strike staged by Toledo MESA members engaged in a jurisdictional dispute with a CIO union.

Spokesmen of the companies involved placed the total on strike at half that number.

Wage Strike Closes Plant.

Another plant, that of Continental Motors corporation, also closed its E. Jefferson Ave. plant today, sending 7,000 production workers home following a strike of 300 employes in five departments. The strikers, who are members of local 280, United Automobile Workers [CIO], said they quit work because the company refused to negotiate a dispute involving incentive pay.

A demand that the MESA walkouts be halted at once was made by Undersecretary of War Patterson in a telegram to Matthew Smith, national MESA secretary. Patterson said:

"Your strikes are stopping the flow of ammunition, guns, trucks, and tanks that are vitally needed at the front. Your strikes have nothing to do with wages, hours of work, or working conditions, and represent no honest grievance. Such conduct is equivalent to treason.

Approximately 2,000 employes of the Nash Kelvinator corporation plant were the first of the MESA members to leave their jobs here. Among the other places closed were three plants of the Michigan Tool company and two of the Detroit Tap and Tool company.

May Spread to Cleveland.

It was expected the strike would spread to Cleveland, O., where executive officers of the MESA were voted authority for a sympathy strike several days ago.

An estimated 4,500 workers are idle in Toledo. In addition to the 13 plants shut down 12 have suffered a slowing up of production.

The Toledo dispute was centered at the Electric Auto-Lite company, where 350 MESA members walked out Oct. 24 over the company's discharge of six employes. Company officials said the dismissals were required under a maintenance of membership clause in their contract with the CIO United Automobile Workers. MESA officials charged the men were fired at the request of the UAW because they left the CIO union to join the MESA.

The Toledo dispute is before the W L B. Undersecretary Patterson today conferred in Washington with WLB Chairman William H. Davis and attaches of the justice department, budget bureau, and office of economic stabilization. It was indicated the plants might be placed under army or navy control.

8 HELD IN QUIZ ON THEFTS FROM TRUCK CARGOES

Eight men, including three truck drivers, were in custody of the police cartage detail yesterday for investigation of the thefts of two cases of shoes, five cases of ball bearings, and 400 gallons of paint from truck shipments.

Those held are August Massaro, 26, of 4234 Wentworth av.; Frank Spoto, 29, of 2534 Emerald av., and Philip Roy, 55, of 6103 Kimbark av., the truck drivers; James Denna, 26, of 2512 Lowe av., a bartender; Erwin Weidmann, 29, of 7025 S. Racine av.; Stanley Brick, 26, of 6634 S. Marshfield av., a gasoline station operator; Carmen Langone, 33, of 5418 Maryland av., a barber; and Orville K. Tucker Jr., 47, of 5521 Maryland av., a painter and decorator.

Sgt. Timothy O'Connell, who arrested the men, said Roy was accused of stealing the shoes and selling them to Weidmann. Police began their investigation when they were notified that Weidmann was selling shoes without coupons and at low prices. Police said the bearings allegedly were stolen by Spoto and the paint by Weidmann. The other persons were arrested in connection with the disposal of the stolen goods.

SON KILLS SELF FIVE DAYS AFTER FATHER IS SLAIN

Found Shot in Chair in His Home.

George Altman Jr., 38, apparently grieving over the death of his father, 60, who was shot in a double murder and suicide tragedy last Sunday, shot and killed himself yesterday in his home at 3420 W. 63d st.

His father and his stepmother, Florence, 40, were shot in their home at 3615 W. 63d pl. by the stepmother's former husband, Edward Lynch, 58, of 3508 W. 58th pl., an ex-policeman. Lynch then killed himself. The Altmans died the next day.

Goes to Home Alone.

Relatives said George Altman, an electrician, was visibly broken up by the murders. After the funeral on Thursday he and his wife, a sister of the dead Florence, went to the home of his wife's mother, Mrs. Ella Boucher, at 3524 W. 64th pl., where they remained over night.

In the morning the electrician told his wife he desired to call on other relatives and left the Boucher home.

Found by Brother-in-Law.

Altman did not reappear later in the day, as he was expected to do, and relatives had no word of him until about 9 p. m., when neighbors in the building called his wife to inform her that the radio in their home had been playing uninterruptedly since midmorning.

Edward Meckes, 6352 S. Campbell av., a brother-in-law, hurried to the Altman home. He found Altman's body slumped down in a chair near the radio, a .22 caliber rifle lying across his lap. There was a bullet hole in his head.

The Altmans had no children.

ALLOW BOOSTS IN GRAPEFRUIT, ORANGE PRICES

Florida oranges and grapefruit will go up at retail in Chicago soon, due to increases allowed producers, the office of price administration said yesterday. Hurricane damage, which meant the loss of the crop from thousands of trees, will result in an increase of 1½ to 2 cents a pound on Florida grapefruit and a cent a pound on oranges in retail stores, the OPA said.

Cooked corn beef will be reduced an average of 10 cents a pound at retail, in a few instances as much as 30 to 50 cents, the OPA said, when new wholesale ceilings are put into effect Nov. 8.

Synthetic rubber heels and soles are back on shoes for the first time since 1941, the OPA announced, at an increase of about 20 per cent over former prices. And they are the kind that don't leave marks on the floor, it was explained, and are otherwise superior to pre-war types.

Additional authorizations for the production of 12,400 domestic electric ranges in the last three months of 1944 have been issued to five manufacturers who are able to make them without interfering with war production, the war production board announced.

Ceiling prices of plug chewing tobacco will be increased by 20 per cent at all sales levels, effective Nov. 8, the OPA announced.

REVIEWS GAINS IN RESTORATION OF HANDICAPPED

R. C. Thompson, director of rehabilitation in Maryland, was elected president of the National Rehabilitation association at the annual convention yesterday in the Edgewater Beach hotel. George Hartray of the Chicago rehabilitation office was elected treasurer and Voyle C. Scurlock, director of rehabilitation in Oklahoma, was elected to become president a year from now.

In the morning meeting yesterday, Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans affairs, Washington, D. C., defined rehabilitation as restoring the handicapped person to the fullest physical, mental, social, vocational, and economic functions of which he is capable. He contrasted the progress this conception indicated with the earliest idea of paying off the disabled soldier and expecting him to live on in inactivity and poverty.

At the afternoon session, employers reported that handicapped persons were doing many jobs now.

TEXAS FACULTY UPHOLDS OUSTED UNIVERSITY HEAD

Austin, Tex., Nov. 3 (AP).—The faculty of the University of Texas tonight unanimously reaffirmed its confidence in Dr. Homer P. Rainey, dismissed president of the university, and asked that when the board of regents is reorganized he be reinstated.

Upon the unanimous request of the faculty Dr. T. S. Painter accepted the appointment of the regents as acting president. In accepting he voiced his disapproval of the action of the regents in discharging Dr. Rainey.

Students Demonstrate.

Earlier in the day students of the university, marching behind a banner proclaiming "academic freedom is dead," demonstrated quietly in the streets of the capital in protest against the firing of Dr. Rainey.

The faculty voted "commendation" to the students for their "good behavior" in their two demonstrations since Dr. Rainey's discharge was announced Wednesday night. Three regents resigned the same night.

Dismissal "Bodes Ill."

Another development in the turmoil that has followed the action came from Washington, where Dr. Ralph Himstead, executive secretary of the American Association of University Professors, said the dismissal of Dr. Rainey "bodes ill" for the university. The association has been investigating alleged instances of suppression of academic freedom at the school.

Student leaders who avoided the use of the word "strike" said students would be advised not to attend classes until Monday or until a member of the board explained why Dr. Rainey was discharged. Malcolm Wallace of Dallas, student president, said if no reply was received students would return to classes Monday "under protest."

Sits on Corporal's Leg and Breaks It 2d Time

Fort Benning, Ga., Nov. 3 (AP).—Corp. Carlton E. Hooker, former Washington, D. C., orchestra drummer, broke his leg running an obstacle course here. Just after the cast was removed, one of Hooker's buddies visited him at the hospital, plumped down on the patient's bed and on his almost healed leg. Now Hooker's wearing a new cast.

FREEDOM OF PRESS PROMISED POLAND BY EXILED REGIME

LONDON, Nov. 3 (AP).—Poland was promised a post-war press with "full freedom and independence" today by Karol Popiel, minister of reconstruction in the exiled Polish government. He said in a broadcast that a new law, already accepted by Prime Minister Stanislaw Mikolajczyk's cabinet and under consideration by the Polish national council, would eliminate press censorship and abolish the "very tiresome requirement" that papers publish government bulletins and official acts.

Under the new law "special regimentation of publishers will cease entirely" and old statutes permitting confiscation of newspapers would be canceled, he said.

Popiel said the new law would protect the right of individuals by raising the maximum penalty for libel to 10,000 zloty [about $16,000].

800,000 GALLON COUPON THIEVES GET YEAR TERM

Sentence of a year and a day each in prison were imposed by Federal Judge William J. Campbell yesterday on three defendants who had pleaded guilty to charges of conspiracy in connection with theft of coupons for 800,000 gallons of gasoline.

The defendants were George C. Taylor, 44, of 6220 St. Lawrence av., a Negro guard in an office of price administration warehouse at 569 E. Illinois st., where the coupons were stolen; Nathan Buckley, 43, of 6218 Eberhart av. and Paul Benney, 36, of 10757 Avenue M.

Judge Campbell, who termed the offense "tantamount to treason," also fined Taylor $2,000, Buckley $3,000, and Benney $5,000. Benney and Buckley were employed by the Republic Steel company. The defendants were given a 10 day stay of sentence.

$15 AND WHISKY STOLEN.

Burglars stole $15 and four quarts of whisky valued at $14 from the restaurant at 9458 South Park av., the owner, Albert Martin, told police yesterday.

Columbus, O., Nov. 3.—Along with a lot of forward passes, there'll be a Big Nine championship haze in the stadium atmosphere here tomorrow when the once beaten Indiana boys and the untrimmed, untied Ohio State Buckeyes kick off for 60 minutes of gridiron frolic before a crowd that may swell beyond 60,000 proportions.

The Buckeyes look on the affair as the last imposing obstacle in their path to the conference title and have made preparations accordingly. So, too, do the Hoosiers, whose lone hope for the championship appears to be in whipping tomorrow's foe and thus offsetting their one defeat by Illinois earlier in the season.

Both Seeking No. 4.

Both teams will be aiming at a fourth conference success, Ohio having dumped Iowa, Wisconsin, and Minnesota, and Indiana having done similarly with Iowa, Michigan, and Northwestern.

For once— and a plaque should be awarded for this—neither coach is approaching the meeting under a smoke screen of injury laments. Carroll Widdoes, the Ohio boss, admits Tackle Bill Willis and Center Gordon Appleby, both highly valuable, have recovered from earlier mishaps. Bo McMillin, the Hoosier strategist, makes a similar admission about his important tackle-guard, Joe Kempf.

Neither coach made a secret of his starting lineup, but that merely means 11 men on either side. What McMillin lists as an end might be a wing back. What he calls his quarter back is a tackle on offense and there are other peculiar shifts.

Buckeyes Use Same Style.

Ohio has similar habits. Guards suddenly become tackles and vice versa. Ends change places. Anybody in the Ohio back field might suddenly slip, momentarily, into a full back role. All of this, naturally, is expected to add confusion to a game that might turn into a free-for-all scoring brawl.

The Ohioans, while conceding they own a puncture proof line and an extensive set of fancy backs headed by Les Horvath, profess to expect trouble handling Bob Hoernschemeyer, the Hoosier expert on pitching and running. Some of this fear probably traces back to a year ago when the same lad tossed a last minute pass that beat the Buckeyes, 20 to 14.

Tomorrow's struggle will be the 28th in a series that was launched in 1901. Indiana has won seven times and three of the other games were ties.

MAJOR LEAGUE MEET WILL BE HELD IN CHICAGO

Will Harridge, president of the American league, yesterday announced shifting of the annual winter major league baseball meeting from New York to Chicago and a change in the dates to Dec. 11 and 12. The date was altered to eliminate a conflict with the minor league meeting, scheduled for Dec. 6 and 7 in Buffalo, N. Y. The Chicago powwow will be held in the Palmer House.

Announcement 10 days ago of almost simultaneous dates for the two meetings led to a minor storm in baseball circles, inasmuch as the delegates wanted to attend both meetings.

Harridge said that Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis will preside at a joint meeting of the two leagues on Dec. 13 in the Palmer House.

JUST A GAG, SAYS DUTCH LEONARD OF BRIBE OFFER

The revelation that Emil [Dutch] Leonard, veteran pitcher of the Washington Senators, had been offered a bribe to lose deliberately the final game of the 1944 American league baseball season to the Detroit Tigers, had Dutch in a dither yesterday as he passed thru Chicago from New York en route to his home in Auburn, Ill.

Leonard was surprised that the story reached print, inasmuch as it was commonly known in Washington that on the morning of Oct. 1 he had been approached in a phone call made to his hotel room in Detroit. But a New York baseball writer, talking to Leonard Thursday, wrote the story, bringing it into the open for the first time.

Considered It a Gag.

"I looked upon the offer of a bribe as a gag," said Leonard in Auburn yesterday, "but just to be in the clear I went to Coach Clyde Milan of the Senators and told him of the incident. What happened was this: The caller asked me if my name was Leonard. When I told him it was, he asked me if I was going to pitch that afternoon. I told him I was, then he asked: 'How would you like to make $2,500 or $3,000?'"

"Then," said Leonard, "I answered, 'Why you so and so——' The caller then hastily replied, 'I was just kidding. I called to wish you luck against the Tigers.'"

No One Took It Seriously.

Teammates, including George Case, the pitcher said, laid the call to a telephone gagster.

"I had forgotten all about it," said Leonard, "until I reached Chicago and saw the story all over the sports pages."

Leonard was in New York preparing for the overseas junket of big league ball players and writers. He and Nick Etten left yesterday to spend two days at home before making the trip. Etten, first baseman of the New York Yankees, lives in Chicago.

On Oct. 1, last day of the hot pennant race, the Browns and Tigers were tied for first place. Leonard proceeded to beat the Tigers, holding them to four hits, and kill their championship hopes.

Will Harridge, president of the American league, said his office is convinced the call was a joke.

"We are not taking this report seriously," he said. "We are confident it was made by a fellow in the nut or screwball category. Leonard, of course, did the right thing by reporting the call to Clyde Milan, the Washington coach."

LIBERTYVILLE'S STREAK HALTED BY LAKE FOREST

Libertyville High school's unbeaten record in football, which had extended thru four seasons and 24 consecutive games since October, 1941, ended yesterday when Lake Forest High defeated the Wildcats, 13 to 7, in Libertyville.

Libertyville had won all seven games this season before yesterday's final gave the Northeast Conference title to Lake Forest. Lake Forest had won six and lost only one, 19 to 7, to Arlington Heights, a team beaten 24 to 0 last week by Libertyville.

BY HARRY WARREN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 3.—A spirit of revelry reminiscent of the Gophers' halcyon days of 1940 and 1941, swept thru Minneapolis tonight on the eve of Minnesota's homecoming football game with Northwestern tomorrow afternoon in Memorial stadium.

A crowd of at least 45,000, the largest since 1942, will be on hand for the kick-off. Even the flood of 'I don't see how we can win' tears that were being shed by Coach George Hauser of Minnesota and Coach Lynn Waldorf could not dampen the enthusiasm of the homecoming crowd.

Gopher Wails Impressive.

Dr. Hauser lists among his wailing material the following:

Red Williams, regular left half back and chief ground gainer of the Gophers, in the hospital with a wrenched back; Davey Day, right guard, out of practice all week because of bruises; Bill Juhl, left end, in bed nursing a cold; Matt Sutton, full back, has a bad knee that has kept him inactive all week; Tom Wainwright, right end, still limping with the same ailment that kept him out of action against Ohio State last week.

Coach Waldorf gets into a weeping mood at the mere mention of the fact that he lost 10 men in naval transfers week and then really gets into a downright, tear-dropping stage in pointing out his severe losses, to wit: There was Bill Roper, promising half back, shifted to the University of Michigan by the navy; Eugene Justak, who did not even make the trip to Minneapolis because of a flu attack; Full Back James Meulendyke, called up by the navy air force; Jack Harper an end who also has been sidelined, etc.

Williams Key Man.

Notwithstanding the doubts of Coach Hauser these Minnesota athletes are a hardy lot and Gopher followers are of the opinion that the only thing that needs to happen to get Red Williams on his feet is the sound of the referee's whistle tomorrow. This Mr. Williams has earned quite a reputation as a ball carrier and Minnesota fans have to remember no farther back than last Saturday when he accounted for 126 yards of the 286 the team made against Ohio State. All in all, Williams was a fairly active character thruout the afternoon, carrying the ball 16 times, making a 45 yard run, throwing passes, blocking and tackling, and doing most of the punting.

However, if Mr. Williams is unable to part company with his bed tomorrow his chores will be in fairly capable hands. Bob Kasper during practice this week has proven that he is well equipped with the working tools of a master left half back and there is a youngster named Phil McManus who is ready to step into Red's shoes if invited.

In an impartial analysis there is the record to prove that these Minnesota-Northwestern football games are always hard fought affairs and during the years they have opposed each other on the gridiron the games have seldom followed the pre-game script of the dopesters.

CUB FARM CLUB PITCHER KILLED IN NEW GUINEA

Officials of the Chicago Cubs yesterday learned that Pvt. Roman Wantuck, a pitcher on the national defense list of the Los Angeles club of the Pacific Coast league, a Cub affiliate, was killed in action June 16 in New Guinea.

Pvt. Wantuck lived with his mother, Mrs. Antoinette Wantuck, five sisters and four brothers at 9126 Blackstone av. He is the first ball player in the Cubs' organization to be killed in action.

Wantuck, 6 feet 1 inch tall and weighing 195, was rated an outstanding big league prospect.

BALTIMORE Md., Nov. 3.—Cliff Hobbs, Wake Forest's place-kicking specialist, had been booting all the extra points with his right foot until just before the North Carolina State game, when he suffered an injury to his right knee. . . . So he switched to his left foot and kicked three points against the Wolfpack. . . . Pacific coast football fans still are talking about the free-for-all which featured the football meeting of Modesto and Compton Junior colleges. . . . With only 90 seconds to play, fists started flying all over the gridiron and it took the combined efforts of local and military policemen to set things in order. . . . Then, after the game, the feud flared up in the dressing rooms and again the law had to take a hand. . . . It looks like a short winter—New York baseball writers already are selling the Cubs' Lou Novikoff. . . . Lt. Verne Miller, former Harvard tackle, now in Italy with the army, weighs 311 pounds and has a jeep all to himself. . . . Georgie Black, former Milwaukee, Wis., fighter, is recovering in a hospital in England from wounds suffered in a parachute attack on the Nazis in Holland. . . . Southern football scribes are singing the praises of Vaughn Mancha, Alabama's freshman center, who is 6 feet 1 inch tall and weighs 240 pounds. . . . His coach, Frank Thomas, calls him the best pivot man he has seen in a decade. . . . A Philadelphia fan's reaction to the report that Connie Mack plans to buy the Minneapolis club of the American association: "What does Connie want with ANOTHER minor league outfit?" . . . Ohio State's new baseball coach, Lowell Wrigley, is superintendent of Baker Hall, a men's dormitory. . . . He is not related to the Chicago baseball Wrigleys. . . . Six of the forwards on the Detroit Red Wings hockey team shoot with the left hand. . . . Ed Levy, the former big league infielder, who was with the Milwaukee Brewers last season, is recovering from a back operation in a Baltimore hospital. . . . Levy's injury, incurred in the Coast Guard, resulted in his discharge. . . . He was traded to the Brewers by the Yankees in the deal involving Herschel Martin. . . . Jimmy Cashion, 17 year old star of the Texas Aggies eleven, grew up on the campus. . . . He is the son of the Y. M. C. A. secretary there. . . . Of the Pacific Coast league's 264 home runs in 1944, only six were hit in the huge San Francisco park. . . . Seventy-six were blasted out of Los Angeles' Wrigley field. . . . Fred Earley, Notre Dame half back last year, has put on weight and now is playing full back for Navy. . . . Because of Navy's stout defense against line plays, the Irish are expected to do more passing tomorrow than they have in any other game this season. . . . The Middies, preparing for the expected aerial assault, will use a back field made up of tall men when Notre Dame has the ball.

Let Me Sing Now.

Let me sing now while yet I may,
My little songs for every day—
For some one, lonely, somewhere, who Still seeks to make bright dreams come true,
Whose heart at times is sad—or gay.

And if in singing I can say
Sweet things to lighten some one's way,
To bring him peace when day is thru—
Let me sing now.

For it is true a song will stay
Long after dreams have gone astray—
When mem'ries pass in sad review
With all their gladness and their rue—
While still I can hold grief at bay—
Let me sing now.

At Bantry Bay.

I am dreaming in the twilight of the days that used to be
When we romped the fields together long ago,
And the perfume of the lilacs seemed to breathe an ecstasy
In the splendor of the sunset's golden glow.
I can hear your silver laughter ringing thru the evening air
When your youthful heart was jubilant and gay,
Sure we never knew the shadow of solicitude and care
As we tripped across the fields to Bantry Bay.

How we gazed upon the waters where the clustered stars at eve
Bloomed like bluebells in the bosom of the bay,
And the silver thread of moonlight on the ripples seemed to weave
A bright tapestry of scintillating gray;
And our young hearts beat the faster as we held each other's hands,
Peering deeply in each other's beaming eyes,
And we told the phantom shadows of the future we had planned—
Of a future filled with wonder and surprise.

I am dreaming in the twilight looking out on Bantry Bay,
And the heart that once knew joy is filled with gloom,
O, how little did I reckon when we used to pass this way
That you'd sleep tonight in silence in the tomb.
All the stars have lost their splendor and the moon is ghastly pale
And the lilacs all have turned to ashen gray,
And the breeze has veered from music to a melancholy wail
As it sweeps across the blue of Bantry Bay.

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 3.—The Purdue university football machine, once so bright and shiny and as hard to penetrate as battleship armor, has come loose at the seams. It rattles and it creaks, but its motor still is running.

Tomorrow when it is wheeled into Ross-Ade stadium it will bear only a slight resemblance to the smooth functioning, streamlined, gridiron monster that swept thru the 1943 campaign unbeaten and untied and wound up sharing the Western conference championship with Michigan.

New Back Field Array.

Due to V-12 transfers and injuries to key men this week, the Boilermakers will present an almost completely altered back field tomorrow in an effort to turn back the challenge of Harry Stuhldreher's Wisconsin Badgers before a homecoming crowd of from 16,000 to 18,000.

Chalmers Elliott and Stan Dubicki, left half backs; James Walley, reserve quarter back, and Ted Held, reserve right half, have been transferred by the navy. Ed Cody and George Mihal, full backs, are on the sidelines nursing injuries that forced their early withdrawal in the Michigan disaster.

Dimancheff Is Mainstay.

Coach Cecil Isbell has rebuilt the Boilermakers' back field so that now it revolves about Boris Dimancheff, versatile ball carrier and defensive star, who will work at full back as he did against the Wolverines. Bill Canfield, reserve quarter back, will take over Dimancheff's right half duties while Stormont Pfohl, a freshman from Goshen, has been given the left half back assignment. As a result of the wholesale use of spare parts, Ray Schultz, pass-pitching quarter back, who will be playing his final game before navy transfer, probably will be called upon for 60 minute duty.

The Badgers will be led by their sensational freshman left half, Earl [Jug] Girard, while big Jerry Thompson at full back, Joe Campbell at right half, and Allen Shafer at quarter round out the Wisconsin ball carrying department.

Badgers Hold Series Edge.

History reveals that anything may be expected when Boilermaker and Badger meet on the gridiron. Upsets have been the rule rather than the exception. Tomorrow's game will mark the 10th straight time the Badgers have provided the "even year" homecoming opposition and on the occasion of their last two visits, Stuhldreher's combinations put a damper on the old grads' festivities. In 1940, Wisconsin won, 14 to 13, with two touchdowns in the last six minutes and in 1942 the Badgers triumphed, 13 to 0. For the series as a whole, Wisconsin holds the edge with 13 victories to Purdue's 10. Five games have resulted in ties.

This year Purdue has beaten Marquette, Illinois, and Iowa while losing to Great Lakes, Iowa Pre-Flight, and Michigan. Wisconsin defeated Marquette and Northwestern and lost to Notre Dame, Ohio State, and Great Lakes.

JOE LOUIS WINS 1ST EXHIBITION BY KNOCKOUT

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 3 (AP).—Sgt. Joe Louis, world heavyweight champion, just returned from a tour of exhibitions for service men in England, North Africa, and Italy, knocked out Johnny Denson of Indianapolis in 1:30 of the second round of a scheduled three round exhibition tonight.

Louis, weighing 212 pounds, hardly got warmed up before his flurry of blows with the 14 ounce gloves dropped the 210 pound Denson to a sitting position which Denson held for the count.

Jack Lamotta, stocky little puncher from New York, pounded out a technical knockout in the ninth of a scheduled 10 round bout over George Kochan of Akron, O., in wind-up bout of the regular program before 10,908 fans who paid a gross of $31,874.56.

Drake Eleven Rallies to Defeat St. Olaf, 26 to 13

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 3 (AP).—Undefeated Drake university gained its sixth football victory tonight, coming from behind twice to defeat St. Olaf of Northfield, Minn., 26 to 13. The visitors scored first in the opening period, and went out in front 13 to 7 in the second. Drake tied the score 13-all to end the half, and scored in each of the final periods.

CROWD OF 8,115 BRAVES RAIN FOR CHARITY RACES

Sportsman's Park winds up its regular 16 day meeting this afternoon, but racing will continue at the track next week under the auspices of The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., which will distribute the net proceeds to the week's racing to war relief agencies. The track management will act as agent for The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., next week, just as it served in that capacity yesterday and will again today for the National Jockey Club Welfare fund. Net proceeds for these two days of racing will go to designated Chicago charities.

Yesterday's rain failed to dampen the enthusiasm of 8,115 charity minded fans who poured $555,829 thru the mutuel windows.

Pucci Leads Jockey Race.

The Socony purse, feature mile and an eighth race on yesterday's card, was won by B. C. Kelley's Van Flag, ridden by Willie Hawksworth, and returning a $19.20 mutuel. The secondary feature, the International Allowance seven furlong sprint, went to Ben Fogelson's Vinum, ridden by Marcos Pena, which paid $13.80.

Bruno Pucci, former Harrison High school student, forged far ahead yesterday in the $2,000 war bond race for riding honors, which will continue thru next week. He accounted for a $15.80 double, riding Liberty Flight to win the opening dash and guiding David B. Jr., home in the second race. Liberty Flight paid $7.20 and David B. Jr. was worth $5.

Pucci booted home his third winner aboard Miss Anna C. in the fourth event.

Good Record at Stake.

Co-features on today's card will be the $3,000 Great Lakes purse, a seven furlong sprint for all ages, and the National Jockey Club handicap, a two mile and 70 yard marathon, the longest race of the Chicago season.

Chipamink, winner of his last three efforts at Sportsman's Park, will carry top weight of 126 pounds in the Great Lakes, two more than Hard Twist, stakes winner at Long Acres and conquerer of Burgoo Maid in his last start here. Prince O'Mars is assigned top weight of 115 pounds in the Jockey Club handicap.

ATTORNEY SUES MIKEL FOR FEE IN RACING CASE

Atty. Charles J. Michael filed suit against John D. Mikel for $15,000 in Superior court yesterday for services in connection with Mikel's fight against an order by the Illinois racing commission barring him for life from training or entering horses on Illinois tracks.

The suit says that Michal was retained by Mikel Aug. 16, 1935, after the latter had been barred on recommendation of the stewards at Lincoln Fields, who charged that he entered My Bane, 3 year old horse, in a race as a maiden 2 year old.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 3.—Notre Dame, one of the nation's great offensive football teams, tomorrow will encounter Navy, one of the country's stoutest defensive elevens, before a capacity crowd of 63,000 in Baltimore's Municipal stadium.

The Irish, who came to town this morning, have gained 2,184 yards by rushing and forward passing in their first five games while the Navy has made only 1,756 in the same number of engagements. The Sailors, however, have a wide margin on defense. They have allowed only 108 yards thru their powerful line and 406 on passes. Notre Dame's line has yielded 672 yards and opponents have piled up 386 thru the air.

Irish Have Close Call.

The caliber of competition determines in part a team's statistical showing, but certainly none can say that Notre Dame's adversaries have been more formidable than Navy's. The Irish overwhelmed Pittsburgh and Dartmouth and gave Tulane and Wisconsin fairly decisive whippings, but had a close shave in beating Illinois, 13 to 7. Navy, meanwhile, had taken on North Carolina Pre-Flight and Georgia Tech, both of which were victorious, and Penn State, Duke, and Pennsylvania.

Chick Maggioli, whose long run gave the Irish a fourth quarter triumph over Illinois last Saturday, has joined the marines, but otherwise the Notre Dame lineup will be intact.

Coach Oscar Hagberg of the Middies said today he would start Al Duden at quarter back, Bob Jenkins and Bill Barron at halves, and Clyde Scott at full back.

Hamberg to See Action.

Hal Hamberg, Navy's offensive ace, is recovering from a leg injury and will be available for part of the game, at least. It was a forward pass from Hamberg to Barron that accounted for Navy's touchdown against Notre Dame a year ago. The Irish won that contest, incidentally, 33 to 6, before 82,000 in Cleveland's Municipal stadium.

Navy has been meeting Notre Dame annually since 1927 and, despite the wide advantage in games won by the Irish, the series has been one of football's greatest crowd pullers. Tomorrow's game has been sold out for several weeks. Notre Dame has won 14 of the 17 games between the two institutions, and Navy, three. The Sailors' last victory was in 1936.

Terlep Faces Last Game.

Coach Ed McKeever planned tonight to use George Terlep at the half back spot vacated by Maggioli. This will be Terlep's last appear-

KELLY TO ANNAPOLIS.

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 3 (AP)—Official word was received here today that Bob Kelly, star Notre Dame half back from Chicago, had been nominated for appointment to the United States Naval academy. University officials said Kelly was expected to finish the season with the football team.

They said the naval V-12 trainee was expected to be returned to civilian status and would remain at the university until next spring, when his appointment to the academy becomes effective.

Last Wednesday, Kelly received orders to report immediately to the Lido Beach [Long Island] naval center, but the orders were countermanded a short while later.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 3.—Michigan, absent from this football conscious community since 1939, tomorrow will be back in Franklin field, the great arena in which Tommy Harmon et al astounded the natives in a 19 to 17 Wolverine triumph over the University of Pennsylvania on the occasion of the last Michigan visit. Crowd estimates remained at 50,000 with promises of fine weather.

The past performance sheets for this season make it look a breeze for the Wolverines, but a lot of sly dopesters around town are winking the eye and saying that Penn may surprise Fritz Crisler's boys. Navy, they point out, is the only team that has whipped Penn and last Saturday Coach George Munger's fellows gave the midshipmen a lively fight in the early phases of the contest, tho they did bog down to take a 26 to 0 tanning at the finish.

They'll Miss Two Roberts.

Easterners who are thinking that Penn may spring an upset are ones who know about the departure of Bob Wiese and Bob Nussbaumer after last week's Michigan 40 to 14 victory over Purdue.

In the face of the fact Wiese had outscored all other Big Nine stars in league play, and Nussbaumer signed off with top mark in rushing, it would take optimism of the kind found in no football camp to conjure up the thought that Robert and Robert won't be missed in the Michigan scheme of things. On the other hand, the two stars did their stuff because they were there to do it, thus cutting down the chances of others to sparkle a bit on their own.

Lund Gets His Chance.

However, there are those who did a bit of ground gaining even when Nussbaumer and Wiese were around—Gene Derricotte, for instance, who has gained 316 yards in 59 tries. Ralph Chubb, who will be starting in Nussbaumer's spot, right half, will have the thrill of his first assignment in a starting lineup. He has done well, however, in the understudy role. Don Lund, who will play full back, has been waiting three years to be the boss of the spot.

Don, by the way, is one of four players in the starting lineup who are of voting age. He is 21. Milan Lazetich, who is 23, is the other voting starting Wolverine. Bob Hedberg and Walter Stickel of Penn are the two other graybeards, each 22. The two starting lineups will average 19 years.

Bears Recall 1935 and Get Hutson Jitters

The Green Bay Packers, who hope to sweep a season series from the Bears by winning tomorrow before 45,000 in Wrigley field, last did this in 1935. The main man in that double defeat will be present tomorrow and before any one starts a guessing game—he's Don Hutson.

That was Don's freshman year and this first game in Green Bay, against the Bears was the professional football debut for the skinny kid from Arkansas. Coach Curly Lambeau thought he had fashioned a secret pass play with Arnie Herber throwing and Hutson catching. But by game time the secret was out and every one was waiting to see what happened. Green Bay fans had little hope that the secret play would be devastating enough to break the Bears' string of seven straight victories over the Packers.

Don Gallops to Score.

The Packers received the game opening kick-off and carried it back to their 17 yard line. On the first play Herber faded back and Hutson went down the field rapidly. He whizzed past Beattie Feathers, the Chicago safety man. Now Herber, well protected, had retreated to his goal line. Finally he wound up and fired a high pass which Hutson took in stride on the Bears' 35 yard line. There was no one near him and he galloped over. The Packers kicked the goal and that was the game—7 to 0.

More spectacular was the second game played in Wrigley field. It was on such a day as yesterday—rainy and dark. Now, with 3 minutes to go, the stands, which were packed at the beginning, were half empty. Chicago was in front, 14 to 3. Even the die-hard Packer fans were leaving.

It's Herber to Hutson Again.

Then Herber hit Hutson with a 53 yard touchdown pass and the Packers kicked goal to move up to a 14 to 10 score. Lambeau had taken out many of his regulars in the line, but Buckets Goldenberg [he'll be in a Packer suit tomorrow, too] pleaded to be sent back into the game. In he went with a few other first flight linemen. Bernie Masterson of the Bears caught the ball on the kick-off.

There was a crash when Goldenberg bounced into Masterson and Bernie fumbled. Green Bay recovered inside the Chicago 20 and in no time at all Herber had pitched a pass to Hutson in the end zone. This one ended 17 to 14.

Since then, the Bears have had what is known as Hutson jitters.

1945 ICE FOLLIES IS LIKE ALL THE OTHERS, A SMASH

BY EDWARD PRELL.

There really isn't any rhyme or reason in telling Chicago's ice show devotees about the Ice Follies of 1945, which opened a run of 22 performances last night in the Arena. This is the ninth time around for the Follies since Eddie and Roy Shipstad and Oscar Johnson started the business with a variety show on skates conceived right here in Chicago.

Chicagoans have learned what to expect from the Follies and that's why the phone operator in the Arena had a busy evening telling callers that everything but standing room was gone until Nov. 13. And the show closes on Nov. 19.

Comedy Appears Early.

As usual, the show runs the gamut from the sublime to the ridiculous. Some of the stuff starts out on the esthetic side and then changes character, like the number presented by Roberta Barton and Jack Millikan. They looked very serious until Jack's suspenders came out into the open and Roberta had trouble with a bright green sash.

Sooner or later, almost every article you could name makes its appearance on the beautifully colored ice. There are three gondolas, a piano, gals smacking tamborines, a chorus of 24 simulating blackbirds, make believe turtles and snails, an ancient Ford, a kiddie car, a playground slide, a teeter-totter, and enough washtubs for all the washer women in the ward.

Heinie's Still a Star.

You can't go wrong digging out all the superlatives—grace, speed, and dazzling costumes that are a designer's delight. This one perhaps has more comedy than past Ice Follies and it's no mistake as there's something about a psuedo-intoxicated sailor reeling all over the place, and bouncing up into the crowd to kiss a pretty girl that stirs a crowd. This gent was Heinie Brock, who once played baseball and hockey at the University of Minnesota. This is steady work for him. He has been with the Follies from the start.

The opening number, "Moonlight Serenade," in which the three gondolas appeared, set the pattern of the show, with a combination of the exotic, individual performances, and comedy. Then, for two and a half hours came a succession of features. The vehicle is broken up into 15 parts. There were the Shipstads and Johnson out there on the ice skating with all the verve of the newest gal in the chorus line of 24. There were the unbelievable Frick and Frack, a couple of Swiss who defy the laws of gravity, leaning backward further than a home town umpire.

The Whole Cast Is Good.

None of the many artists has top billing and when the show's over the reason is apparent. They're all good in their own particular specialty. It's a shame they can't all be singled out, but none in the fashionable first night crowd could forget Mae Ross, who was the vivacious Venetian in the opening number. Bobby Blake, a youthful red head wearing a canary colored costume, was the darling of the adolescents with his rug cutting gyrations.

Opening night was sponsored by the Chicago Service club. Proceeds will go to 50 national and local charities.

SPANIEL TRIALS TO OPEN TODAY AT LAKE BLUFF

Arthur Welch, Milwaukee, Wis., and Maxwell Riddle, Cleveland, O., judges of the annual spaniel trial sponsored by the English Springer Spaniel Field Trial Club of Illinois, will start the first stake of the trial at 8:30 o'clock this morning on the official trial grounds west of Lake Bluff.

The puppy, amateur shooting dog and amateur all age stakes are on the program today with the open all age event scheduled for tomorrow. Included in the gallery today and tomorrow will be hundreds of convalescent service men who will be brought to the trial grounds by American Red Cross workers.

Iowa, Huskers to Meet for 33d Contest

Nothing to Lose

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 3.—Iowa and Nebraska, in their day two of the great football powers of the midlands, who have been arguing with each other thru three wars, tomorrow will battle each other for the 33d time since 1891. As football runs these days, it should be one of the most balanced games of the season, seeing as how Iowa will open with 10 freshmen and Nebraska with nine.

Neither school has been endowed with the service talents of so many of its rivals. Nevertheless, a crowd of 10,000 is expected to watch these teen age civilians argue it out, with the Hawkeyes seeking to dent the Huskers' record of 20 victories, nine defeats, and three ties.

Madigan Is Optimistic.

For the home lads, it will be another effort to score a first victory. They have played four thus far in the 1944 campaign, yielding to Ohio State, 34 to 0; Illinois, 40 to 6; Purdue, 26 to 7, and Indiana, 32 to 0. Their guests of the morrow were not too well off until last week when they arose and smote Missouri with a spectacular 24 to 20 upset. The two teams have encountered only one common opponent—Indiana, which trounced the Cornhuskers, 54 to 0.

The ebullient Slip Madigan, who has been doing a superb job of handling civilian teams since his arrival here last year, today allowed that this might be the game for his youngsters to win. He was, however, pressed into admission that at least five members of his starting personnel are not in the best shape.

Single Wing Offense.

Coach Lew Lewandowski, the personable young man who has been given the job of carrying on the same sort of non-service job as Madigan faces, arrived today with a full squad of 37 players. Their landing in this college town also was an innovation, for it has been many a day since the visiting team enjoyed a Friday workout here, most invading elevens bivouacking in Cedar Rapids or Davenport.

The Nebraskans brought with them a single wing offense, replacing the T which had preceded the surprising victory over Missouri. Chief proponents in this attack are Full Back Ken Hollins and Left Half Back Jack Selzer.

PEAK CIGARET OUTPUT IS FAR BELOW DEMAND

Consumption Gains Yearly Since 1933.

Probe Is Started

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 3 (AP).—Victor E. Anderson, United States district attorney, said today that Attorney General Biddle had designated St. Paul as the "guinea pig" area for a national probe of cigaret shortage and that a grand jury to study the matter will meet in St. Paul if it is decided to call one. Officials of the district office of OPA said two investigators were assigned to study retail cigaret sales.

With per capita consumption of cigarets at a record level and shipments to the army and navy double those of last year, manufacturers despite peak production are unable to cope with the present demand, industry sources said yesterday. Besides this unprecedented demand the industry is beset with machinery, man power, and leaf tobacco shortages.

A new record in cigaret use has been set each year since 1933, with the expansion since 1940 at a faster rate than any time in the preceding 20 years. Altho tax paid withdrawals [for civilian sale] in the first eight months this year were 2.1 per cent smaller than a year earlier, over-all sales for the full year will exceed last year's estimated volume of 293 billion cigarets by a substantial margin, it was predicted.

Increase Tax Free Shipments.

The record volume is expected because tax free shipments to the army and navy are likely to be about 70 billion cigarets, against approximately 35 billion last year.

One of the snags intensifying the problem is the loss in current inventories because of the time lag in the shipment of cigarets overseas. Shipments to the military over long distances take substantial supplies out of current inventories and have the effect of reducing cigaret stocks during the time of transit. The rate of consumption continues during this period.

The outlook for any substantial increase in cigaret production immediately is unfavorable, but the down trend in tobacco stocks is expected to be checked thru a rise in leaf tobacco output and the resultant increase in allocations to manufacturers. The rate of gain in consumption is expected to taper as the saturation point in per capita use is neared.

Rates of Consumption.

The domestic consumption of cigarets rose an average of 11.7 per cent annually between 1920 and 1929. After decreases in 1931 and 1932 the trend turned upward and has established new highs each year since 1933. Per capita use of cigarets rose from 790 in 1926 to 1,877 in 1943.

Much of the increase in consumption was attributed to the vigorous advertising used by manufacturers to sell their product to women, thus obtaining social approval of smoking by women and doubling the potential market.

The trend of buying, which had been chiefly centered in four well known brands until 1931, was altered that year by a change in pricing, industry sources said. This change, termed the industry's one serious pricing error, was made in June of that year, when cigaret prices were increased despite rapidly falling tobacco costs.

New Brands Affect Market.

Consumption slumped then and did not increase again until two years later, when new brands, selling at 10 cents a package, were introduced. Before that time the four leading brands controled about 97 per cent of the market, but today account for only about 77 per cent of consumption.

Tax paid withdrawals in 1926 totaled 89 billion 400 million cigarets and increased steadily to 119 billion 600 million units in 1930. This trend was reversed in 1931 with 113 billion 400 million and decreased further to 103 billion 600 million in 1932. The upward trend was begun again in 1933 with 111 billion 800 million and has continued steadily to the 257 billion 100 million last year.

Charge Fraud by Kirkeby in Hotel Contract

BY AL CHASE.

The Avenue Hotel corporation, owner of the Stevens hotel, yesterday filed in Circuit court an answer to the $100,000 suit filed on Oct. 23 by Arnold S. Kirkeby, former Stevens minority owner and manager.

The answer admitted that Stephen A. Healy, president of the corporation, signed a contract to pay Kirkeby $100,000 but asserted this was effected thru "fraud, duress, and compulsion" on the part of Kirkeby. It was for these and other reasons that $20,000 was not paid Kirkeby on Oct. 1, said Healy, altho the contract stipulated that Kirkeby was to be paid that amount each Oct. 1 for five years. The corporation denied that a valid obligation existed.

Lease Offer Turned Down.

Healy said he asked Kirkeby if he wished to lease the Stevens if Healy's was the successful bid for the property, then owned by the government. Kirkeby replied he would not be interested, but would serve as manager if he could have a 15 per cent ownership.

Healy said he agreed orally to this, but with the understanding that "his name be not publicly disclosed at that time as an interested party in said bid."

The "Kirkeby" bid of $5,251,000 was high and title was turned over to him. The government was paid $300,000, of which Kirkeby supplied $45,000 and Healy $255,000. As part payment on the $4,951,000 balance, Healy said, the First National Bank of Chicago agreed to lend $3,150,000 against the hotel.

Kirkeby Demands Charged.

Kirkeby, however, asserted that either Healy must sell "all his right, title and interest in the property and the whole project" for $100,000 or pay Kirkeby $100,000 and return money advanced by him to Healy for a "conveyance and transfer of all the rights and interests of plaintiff," Healy charged.

He said Kirkeby asserted that otherwise he would retain title and not join in execution of the mortgage. To prevent the loss of the money he had invested, said Healy, he agreed under duress to pay Kirkeby $100,000 "for services rendered."

Beckman, Healy, Reid & Hough was counsel for Healy. Poppenhusen, Johnston, Thompson & Raymond represented Kirkeby. Kirkeby operates the Drake and Blackstone hotels in Chicago and several other hostelries in other cities.

GRAIN FUTURES FIRM ON SMALL CORN OFFERINGS

EXTRA DIVIDENDS VOTED BY CHICLE AND SYLVANIA

American Chicle company and Sylvania Industrial corporation yesterday declared extra dividends of 50 cents and 25 cents, respectively, in addition to regular quarterly payments of $1 and 25 cents, respectively. Similar extras were paid last year. United Elastic corporation voted an extra 10 cents with a 35 cent dividend.

INCENTIVE PAY URGED TO END CLASS STRIFE IN LABOR RELATIONS

Incentive pay for workers eliminates the class distinction created by labor unions and the government, J. F. Lincoln, president of the Lincoln Electric company, Cleveland, O., yesterday told the time and motion study clinic of the Industrial Management society in the Medinah club. Describing class distinction as the "greatest present handicap to efficiency," he said:

"With incentive pay there is no warring faction called 'labor' which is pitted against another warring faction called 'management,' with whom they fight under the name of "collective bargaining,' until one beats down the other and a resulting armistice called a 'contract' is reached; all of which is to be repeated at a later date when each side, recovering from its previous wounds, repeats the same routine."

He said directives from Washington make impossible increasing of wages in proportion to production, but expressed the hope that American voters will not "allow such a shortsighted policy of present bureaucrats to rob them of the rewards this system [incentive] produces."

DISTRIBUTION IS TERMED KEY TO PEACE ECONOMY

Distribution will supersede production as the key factor in the post-war economy, Guy Gundaker Jr., field sales manager of B. F. Goodrich company, told the Association of American Battery Manufacturers yesterday in the Palmer House.

"Only thru good distribution and all that it embraces in good selling, good advertising, and good public relations can this country move and absorb goods in the volume needed to keep all the economic wheels turning after the pump priming effect of war's demands has ceased," he said.

Gundaker warned that distribution costs must be cut to meet keen competition and maintain prices which will appeal to the largest possible number of consumers.

FRANCE OFFERS BOND ISSUE TO CURB INFLATION

PARIS, Nov. 3 (AP).—Calling on the French to meet their chaotic money situation in the same spirit as they fought the battle of resistance, the government announced today an unlimited loan to curb inflation.

Unlike Belgium, France will not call in bank notes which were issued in astronomical figures under German occupation, but is asking the citizens to turn them in for bonds bearing 3 per cent interest.

The loan is not a forced one, said a government spokesman, but the cabinet announcement said "future measures depend on the results of this loan." It was termed a measure to reduce currency in circulation, not borrowing to meet current expenses. The provisional government assumed obligations of the Vichy regime amounting to 1,200 billion francs, half in bank notes whose circulation has been cut 11 billion francs in two months. Taxes have met current expenses.

STORE SHELVES PLAN TO MERGE WITH SUBSIDIARY

Directors of the 12th Street Store, Halsted st. and Roosevelt rd., have withdrawn a proposal for an exchange of stock and merger with the O. and S. Merchandising company, Harry Okin, president of the store, announced yesterday.

The subject of several stockholders' meetings in recent weeks, the proposal was set aside in the "best interests of the store and all its stockholders." Okin said there was no record vote by shareholders, but declined further comment.

Holders of 36,675 preferred shares of the store would have received in exchange new preferred stock of $17.50 par value plus $2.50 a share, and owners of 50,000 common shares a like number of new common shares. O. and S., a wholly-owned subsidiary, was to have been dissolved.

HOGS END LOWER ALTHO RECEIPTS SHOW DECREASE

Altho farmers reduced shipments of hogs to marketing centers again yesterday, prices at the Chicago stock yards failed to hold the gains won on light volume Thursday. Comparing extremes, the market was steady to 20 cents a hundred pounds lower. Spring pigs weighing 200 to 250 pounds, which comprised a large part of the supply, lost the largest amounts.

Trading in cattle was quiet. Some good to choice steers were steady, the best available going at $17.85, but others were weak to slightly lower. Lambs were steady.

STOCK MARKET PRICES CLOSE MOSTLY HIGHER

North Western Up on Dividends.

New York, Nov. 3 (AP).—Rail and industrial specialties exhibited strength in today's stock market and altho many leaders were depressed by light profit cashing on the recent advance, the close was mostly higher.

Assisting individual climbers were dividend payments and hopeful earnings prospects. North Western common and preferred rose 2 points each in response to yesterday's late $5 disbursements on both issues, but ended up 1¾ and 1½, respectively. The former started on a 20,000 share block and was the liveliest performer.

Await Tuesday Election.

Traders were inclined to caution pending the Tuesday election and further light on the war and foreign affairs. The list turned hesitant after a mixed opening and dealings tapered. A few liquors advanced in the final half hour.

Hiram Walker advanced 3½ points to a 1944 peak at 62½ and Distillers corporation added 1⅛ at 32⅛. Improvement was retained by General Motors, Goodyear, Douglas Aircraft, Westinghouse Electric, Johns-Manville, General Electric, Kennecott, and Great Northern.

The Associated Press 60 stock average was off 0.1 at 55.2, first dip since Monday. Transfers totaled 730,340 shares compared with 790,140 yesterday.

RAIL BONDS ADVANCE.

New York, Nov. 3 (AP).—Bond market activity today was the largest in more than a week as a result of increased interest in reorganization rail loans. A number of such carrier bonds advanced fractions to more than a point. The general corporate list was irregular. Sales totaled $8,203,000 against $6,774,800 yesterday.

Coincident with the voting of initial dividends on the new common and preferred stocks of the North Western, the 4½ per cent bonds of that road advanced about a point on heavy dealings.

CHICAGO LIST HIGHER.

Prices were higher in increased turnover of 31,000 shares yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Volume leaders included North Western, up ⅝; General Finance, up ¼; Commonwealth Edison, up ¼; Chicago corporation, unchanged, and Consolidated Biscuit, down ½. New 1944 highs were reached by Commonwealth Edison, General Finance, Modine Manufacturing, and Midland United preferred.

Christmas Toy Stock Ample, but Selection Will Be Limited

Despite shortages in some types of toys which may limit the selection, the over-all supply will be large enough to fill the Christmas demand, retail and manufacturer representatives said yesterday. More wood and fewer paperboard toys will be on the market than last year.

Shopping already is well under way, they said, with sales expected to exceed those a year ago. The general tendency has been to avoid military types, with more emphasis on construction and farm toys made of wood.

The main shortages, as last year, will be in metal toys, altho a few lots have reached the market, after the government permitted certain factories to finish raw materials frozen at the beginning of the war.

Bad News for Little Girls.

A serious shortage is expected in dolls, with the variety limited, manufacturers' representatives said. The choice in all types of toys will be no larger than a year ago, and possibly skimpier, they reported.

Large early sales were attributed to the disappointment of many persons who were unable to obtain the toys they wished last year and to purchases of toys during early shopping for gifts for men and women in service overseas. One retailer who put out his Christmas line of toys soon after the middle of the year came back to replenish his supply.

"As long as the pay roll checks hold up, business will continue good during the Christmas shopping season," said one manufacturer's representative.

Wood Toys Held Plentiful.

The general merchandise manager of a State street store reported that well made wooden toys, including table and chair sets, housekeeping toys, and educational and pre-school toys were available in abundance, with paperboard used only in toys and game sets where it normally is used.

Sales Are Rising

New York, Nov. 3 (AP).—Retail sales this week, boosted by Christmas shopping and sales of seasonal merchandise, ran 6 to 9 per cent above a year ago, Dun & Bradstreet reported today. In the midwest sales increased 6 to 8 per cent.

Plane Output Lags in Types Needed Most

Washington, D. C., Nov. 3 (AP).—The nation's aerial and ocean strength was swelled last month by 7,429 planes and 145 cargo and transport ships, the aircraft production board and maritime commission announced today.

War plane production met the total October goal, but was far below objectives in certain urgently needed types, said Chairman Krug of the war production board. Output was 169 planes less than in September.

The maritime report was brighter, disclosing a gain in output of large assault vessels for which the navy has been pleading. Fifty-three of the deliveries were military vessels and more than half of those were combat loaded transports, combat loaded cargo ships, and navy transports.

Other October deliveries included 30 fast vessels and 51 of the work horse Liberty ships.

Some plane manufacturers fell down badly, Krug said, but others exceeded schedule by enough to make up the deficits.

Super bombers were behind schedule, as were heavy transports and certain new models of other combat types. Production was generally satisfactory in the standard army bombers, naval carrier based fighters, most transports, trainers, and miscellaneous planes.

U.S. LIFTS CURB ON MAIL, CABLE USE TO FRANCE

Currency Exchange Ban Retained.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 3 (AP).—The United States lifted its ban on free exchange of business and personal information with France today, as a preliminary step toward reopening trade with the French.

Five cent postal service will be started tomorrow, said the post office department. The United States, in coördination with Great Britain, officially removed liberated areas of France from the category of "enemy territory."

Treasury officials, announcing the restoration of commercial communications, disclosed that the De Gaulle government is being permitted to use freely its "frozen" funds in this country.

Freeze Kept on Assets.

This is done thru a liberal licensing technique. The United States still has not released French assets and can prevent their use any time it thinks best. The treasury spokesmen said there are a "number of problems" that must be worked out before the funds are actually "unfrozen."

For the present, private French assets in this country will not be accessible, generally speaking, to the French individuals and companies owning them. Nor will private trade or financial transactions be allowed, except that remittances for the support of an individual may be sent to France thru banking channels, not more than $500 a month.

As for communications, starting tomorrow a letter up to one ounce may be sent to any part of continental France except the territory of Belfort and the departments of Doubs, Meurthe-et-Moselle, Meuse, Moselle, Bas-Rhin, Haut-Rhin, Haute-Saone, and Vosges.

Cables Also Released.

The letter can be on either business or personal matters. Cables also may be sent. Previously only postcards, unillustrated and on personal and family matters, had been permitted.

Without a license, American and French firms may establish business contacts, exchange information, financial records, and commercial reports. Creditors may get in touch with their debtors.

Treasury licenses, however, will not be granted for the present for sending powers of attorney, executed proxies, payment instructions, or other communications which are transactional in nature.

GREEN DEDICATES REHABILITATION CENTER FOR VETS

Called a Major Project in State Plans.

High ranking army and navy officers and prominent doctors gathered with Gov. Green yesterday to officially dedicate the recently opened Veteran's Rehabilitation center, 2449 Washington blvd., a state institution for the treatment of World War II. veterans suffering from nervous disabilities.

The center, a project of the governor's committee on veterans' rehabilitation and employment, is operated by the Chicago Community clinic of the Illinois department of public welfare. It will provide diagnosis and treatment for any service man suffering from nervous disorders and will aid in the reemployment of the veteran at the conclusion of the treatments.

State Takes Responsibility.

In a speech, Gov. Green described the center as one of the major projects in the state's plan to aid returning service men.

"We already have taken many steps in this state to solve the problem of human reconversion," Green said. "For, no matter what the federal government has prepared for the veteran, no matter what public and private organizations have arranged to do for him, in the last analysis here in Illinois we regard our own veterans as our responsibility. This center is evidence of that."

Tact Is Advised.

Col. William C. Porter, director of the army neuropsychiatry school, warned the several hundred people present at the dedication that the family and friends of mentally ill veterans can permanently injure the mind of a neurotic with overzealous attention.

The veterans' center is financed in part by the Illinois Veteran service, a nonprofit corporation, with funds contributed by Chicago race track operators. A large portion of the funds raised by the race track operators came from the five days of racing sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., at Washington Park last summer.

MAIL AID ADMITS THEFTS OF GIFTS GOING OVERSEAS

John Joseph Fanning, 33, described by Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan as a "meanest" man, pleaded guilty yesterday to an indictment for stealing from the mail on four counts. Fanning, an ex-mail handler, who gave his address as the Baltimore hotel, Indiana harbor, stole overseas Christmas packages for service men out of mail bags at the Dearborn st. station. Judge Sullivan deferred sentence until Nov. 10 when Fanning also will be sentenced under the Dyer act for theft of an automobile in Indiana which he sold in Chicago for $20. Fanning, who faces a maximum sentence of 25 years, blamed his troubles on drinking after separation from his wife.

Maj. James F. Sinclair Is Awarded Bronze Star

Maj. James F. Sinclair, 31, of Baltimore, Md., who is serving with Gen. Patton's 3d army, has received the bronze star for distinguished service, his father, Dr. J. F. Sinclair, of 4536 N. Troy av., was notified yesterday. Maj. Sinclair, who has been in the service nearly three years and overseas since last spring, formerly was an employe of THE TRIBUNE. Maj. Sinclair was graduated from Culver Military academy in 1933.

TROJAN HORSE OF INVASION ARRIVES HERE

BY HARRY McCLAIN.

The navy yesterday brought to Chicago one of its most versatile seagoing craft, an LST [landing ship, tanks] which soon will be placed on public display. Used as an all-purpose ship, the LST has been the vital weapon in every invasion from the South Pacific to the beaches of Normandy.

The ship is the largest naval craft ever brought up the waterway from the Seneca ship yards of the Chicago Bridge and Iron company, which has produced more than 100.

Berthed at the navy pier, the LST 652 will be open for the first time to the public beginning Nov. 18 as part of the navy's Sixth War Loan exhibit. Yesterday also was the first time reporters and photographers were permitted to see these amazing craft at close range.

328 Feet Long.

LSTs are completely seaworthy ships of 2,200 tons. They are 328 feet long, with a 50 foot beam. They can carry loads up to 600 tons. The first LST was sketched on paper in November, 1941, and the first ship had its acceptance trial in October, 1942. Now hundreds of the ships, mostly built in inland ship yards, are working with invasion forces.

Designed primarily to land tanks on invasion beaches, the LSTs have bow doors which open to permit lowering of a ramp over which tanks can be driven out of a hold about 275 feet long and 30 feet wide.

Without a single obstruction the holds resemble a huge tunnel. Ample fire protection and huge ventilators permit the starting of tank motors when the ship nears a beach, and with all tanks running, the hold can be cleared of its invasion cargo in a few minutes.

Carry All Sorts of Arms.

During invasions LSTs have carried all sorts of mechanized equipment—guns, tank destroyers, draft animals, bulldozers for clearing beaches as well as large numbers of troops.

Manned by a navy crew of seven officers and 104 enlisted men, the LST also has sleeping space for several hundred soldiers and a dozen or more officers. Enormous tanks carry enough fuel to permit weeks of operation at sea and even use of the LSTs as auxiliary tankers for other ships.

Driven by two powerful diesel engines, the LSTs with their shallow draft can run onto beaches far enough for tank landings and then pull themselves off with a powerful winch to which a huge anchor is attached.

Everything Electrical.

Besides the two propulsion engines the ship has three diesel engines for generation of electric power—enough a supply a town of several thousand inhabitants. All machinery aboard the ship is electrically operated.

Altho the LST is not a fighting ship, it must have adequate fire power to fight off aerial attacks during landing operations. For this reason it has numerous 20 and 40 mm. anti-aircraft guns. In addition guns in tanks carried on the main deck can be used to cover landings.

REQUEST 25,000 MORE BLOCK CAPTAINS FOR 6TH WAR LOAN DRIVE

Steps were taken yesterday to recruit 25,000 civilian defense block workers to assist in the sixth war loan drive, opening Nov. 20.

The civilian defense already numbers 16,800 war bond block captains, so that the desired total is more than 40,000. It will be up to the captains to enroll several neighbors each for the door to door solicitation.

Frank C. Rathje, division chairman, said that at least two weeks per block are needed to insure complete coverage. He asked that all persons willing to solicit bond sales in their blocks or apartment buildings communicate with their block captains or telephone his office, Central 8760.

162d Polio Victim of Year Reported Here; 954 in '43

A new case of infantile paralysis on the north side, a woman 29 years old, was reported to the board of health yesterday. There have been 162 cases and seven deaths from the disease in Chicago this year, compared with 954 cases and 84 deaths in the same period a year ago.

HEIRESS IS CITED FOR NEGLECTING HER 3 CHILDREN

Judge Michael Feinberg in Circuit court yesterday ordered Mrs. Alice Rand De Tarnowsky McIntosh, Barrington heiress, to answer next Friday a contempt of court citation for owing $400 alimony for the support of her three children, and issued an injunction restraining her from selling the furnishings of her Barrington home.

Attorneys Joseph H. and Norman Becker, representing Capt. Alexis De Tarnowsky, who is overseas serving in the army engineers, said they feared Mrs. McIntosh would attempt to sell the furnishings for money to "squander" on Pvt. Charles L. F. McIntosh, 31, who was released Monday from the army rehabilitation center at Jefferson Barracks, Mo. He was convicted by a court-martial nearly a year ago after he went AWOL to be with Mrs. De Tarnowsky, whom he later married.

Out of City, Attorney Says.

Becker told Judge Feinberg he believed Mrs. McIntosh, whom he referred to as "Mrs. De Tarnowsky," had gone to St. Louis, Mo., to join Pvt. McIntosh.

He said she had not made payments the last two months for the De Tarnowsky children, whose custody was awarded to De Tarnowsky after he filed suit for divorce, which is pending. When Judge Feinberg awarded De Tarnowsky their custody last June he declared that their mother's Mexican divorce from De Tarnowsky was a "sham and a fraud."

Can Sell, but Not Lease.

The children, Marie, 15; George, 5, and Alexandra, 3, are living with De Tarnowsky's sister, Mrs. Olga Hudson, in Kenilworth.

De Tarnowsky's attorneys said they had information that a prospective purchaser wanted to buy the Barrington house from Mrs. McIntosh. The house is owned jointly by her and De Tarnowsky. Judge Feinberg said he could not restrain Mrs. McIntosh from selling her half interest in the house, but he ordered her not to lease it to a tenant.

Yank Traces Bride-to-Be Whose Name He Forgot

Pomona, Cal., Nov. 3 (AP).—If Pvt. Cyril T. Rooney lost trace of her it was all his own fault, Yvonne Sorenson said today, but she's willing to forgive and forget. Their frustrated friendship was disclosed when Rooney wrote to a Salt Lake City newspaper for help in locating her. He met her while she was working there. "We were to get married," he asserted. He added that he didn't know her name, that he always called her Bobby. The newspaper learned she was working in Pomona. In the two years since they've seen each other, Yvonne has been married and divorced, and has a baby. "Imagine his forgetting my name!" Yvonne said today.
